USDA's Myers Urges Farmers To Political Activity

BY LISA RISSER

CAMP HILL — In this busy time of the year, it's difficult to become and stay involved in politics, yet that is exactly what Peter C. Myers, deputy secretary for the United States Department of Agriculture is urging farmers to do.

Addressing nearly 120 farmers and politicians Thursday night at the annual FARMERS fundraiser, Myers stressed the importance of farmers to be active in the political arena so that their opinions and feelings could be known in government. The health of the nation's agricultural economy is greatly influenced by decisions made by politicians.

"The agricultural outlook is much better," Myers said. The rosier outlook is due to weather conditions in the rest of the world, which has caused the other countries to increase imports. It also can be attributed to the more positive attitude of farmers and a good farm program, accord-

Conservationist Questions Lancaster's Future Quality Of Life

BY PAT PURCELL

LANCASTER — How relaxing it is to drive through Lancaster County on a summer Saturday afternoon along Route 30! How the pressures of a work day seem to melt as commuters take that slow, leisurely drive home via Route 23, the Route 30 bypass, Route 72 and Route 322.

Today Lancaster County is home to 400,000 people. And if the above scenario leaves you sneering in disbelief then imagine this. By the year 2010, which is roughly 20 years away, 600,000 people will call Lancaster County home. And that estimate is based on current rates of growth which are modest. That is a 50 percent increase. Where will they live? Where will they work? And how will it affect the quality of life as we know it today?

These were the questions with which Douglas Wheeler, Vice-President of the Conservation Foundation challenged Lancaster County concerned citizens Thurs-

Johnes: The Silent Enemy Of Dairy Farmers

BY PAT PURCELL

LITITZ — In Pennsylvania seven percent of all cull dairy animals arriving at slaughter plants are infected with Johnes disease while the national rate is just three percent, according to Dr. Larry Hutchinson, PSU Extension Veterinarian.

"This tells us Johnes is more of a problem in Pennsylvania than in other areas of the country and especially in the Lancaster County area. I would say that a Lancaster County dairy farmer, if he's buying animals in the area, sooner or later he is going to run into Johnes. The best recommendation I can make is not to buy cattle without knowing status of the herd. That is easy to say and difficult to do," said Hutchinson.

Penn State University and University of Pennsylvania have combined are conducting a two-year in-depth study of 20 infected herds in the Lancasterand Lebanon county. Hutchinson says they are working on new methods of testing which are accurate and deliver quicker results. Also, new management practices are being employed to help clean-up Johnes in infected herds.

The only accurate available diagnostic test for Johnes is done by fecal culture and takes three to four months to get results. That is a long time to feed a cow and keep a cow in the herd and exposing other animals to this deadly disease. Researchers at the University of Wisconsin have developed a test using deoxy ribonucleic acid which will produce results in three days. However, it is not on the market yet.

Johnes is a disease of ruminant animals. Although the incidence of Johnes is higher in dairy cattle, all breeds of cattle, sheep and goats are susceptible. It is caused by a slow-growing bacteria which destroys the intestinal lining of the animal and prevents any nutrients from being absorbed from feed. The animal actually starves to Planting time has arrived all across "Lancaster Farming's" circulation area. In this photograph, potatoes were going in the ground on the Kreider Farms, east of Manheim. About 150 of the 500 total acres had been planted by Wednesday afternoon when managing editor, Everett Newswanger, caught up with the operation.

Jan Harding, left, program chairman, and Becky Sonnen, state Dairy Princess, invite all eligible young ladies with a dairy farm background to enter the Dairy Princess Program. For more information and the name of each county chairperson, see "Lancaster Farming's" special color tribute section in this issue.

Beef Check-Off

Will It Die Or Survive The Vote?

BY LISA RISSER

LITITZ — Three could be the lucky number for the national beef referendum. Defeated twice before, in 1977 and 1980, by cattlemen who viewed the promotional check-off as a tax, the program stands a good chance of being voted into permanency according to Bob Coleman, executive director of the Pennsylvania Beef Council.

"This promotion, which has been in effect for 22 months, has demonstrated to the producer, who pays the bill, that it has done good," Coleman stated. "Promotion has changed the public conception of beef as a healthy food."

Approximately two-thirds of the cattlemen around the country are in favor of continuing the beef check-off. The bones of contention lay with dairy farmers who dislike the inequities they see. Primary among these is the dollar taken off dairy cows sold for dairy purposes.

"I think the beef promotion is good, I'm not against it," commented Jed Beshore, a dairy farmer from York County. "I'm against the dollar check-off on dairy animals when they're sold for dairy purposes or sold overseas. I don't think that's fair."

Currently under the '85 Farm Bill, all bovines are checked off when they are sold, regardless of whether it is for slaughter, productive purposes, or growing out.

Another problem dairy farmers have with the beef check-off program is the dollar exacted on a veal calf every time it is sold. Farmers don't like paying the same amount for a 100-pound calf as for a

FUTURES MARKET TRENDS GRAIN AND LIVESTOCK

This market information provided by ACRES ACRES is a copyrighted market information service developed by the American Farm Bureau and available to Pennsylvania farmers on a daily basis through Pennsylvania Farmers' Association Farm Management Services For additional market comments and trading service contact PFA Commodity Futures Service (717) 761 2740

ACRES CORN UPDATE:

Corn futures settled lower today from 1-1/2 cents on the front option to 3-1/2 on the March 1989. Weakness today came on concerns over the larger than expected amounts of readily available corn amid heavy purchases of CCC corn stocks coupled with active producer loan redemptions Long liquidation and the unwinding of Dec/May and Dec/July bear spreads added further pressure Higher basis levels and light farmer movement provided needed support. Generic Certificate bids were steady today.

ACRES SOYBEAN UPDATE:

Soybeans closed lower from 3-3/4 lower on the May option to 9 cents lower on the May 89 option Selling throughout the session was in response to heavy long liquidation with added pressure stemming from an increase in farmer sales Strength in the cash market and increases in Brazilian export premiums limited further price deterioration. Buying was linked to pricing for export trade November closed down 8-1/4 at $6 94 1/4 while May closed at $6 75-1/2

ACRES WHEAT UPDATE:

Wheat futures today closed from 2 to 2-3/4 cents lower on profit-taking selling after the front option failed to hold at $3 30 earlier in the day Caution in front of this week's CCC auction results along with waning bullish enthusiasm on ideas recent export business had been taken into consideration added further pressure However, after the close, the USDA announced that India had been targeted for 1 2 Million metric tonnes of wheat under export bonus. July settled at $3 27-1/4, down 2 cents

ACRES CATTLE UPDATE:

Cattle futures plunged for the second consecutive session on continued long liquidation with June live cattle touching limit down mid morning Today's lower futures prompted lower packer bids for fed cattle which added momentum to the selling A steep increase in open interest yesterday for June added to the selling pressure along with concerns over light boxed beef at lower prices

FEEDER CATTLE SETTLEMENT PRICE 4/11/88- $81 69 DOWN 6

ACRES NEXT DAY OUTLOOK cash -steady to weak futures-steady to mixed

ACRES HOG UPDATE:

Live hog futures continued to fall today with losses posted from 65 points on the April option to 128 on the June. Long liquidation triggered by the price deterioration through key support levels drove prices lower midday as June and August touched limit down before weak short covering began to support Prices opened lower on follow through selling from yesterday and weaker cash openings.

ACRES NEXT DAY OUTLOOK cash - steady to lower futures - steady to mixed.

National Egg Market

Wed., April 13, 1988

Prices were unchanged The market tone continued about steady. Cartoned egg movement was mostly moderate in a range of slow to fairly good. Widespread features geared-up in Southern California and Arizona while other regions had limited specials. Supplies were generally adequate to fully adequate and available when needed except extra large and jumbo in the Northeast were sometimes barely adequate Breakers attempted to purchase shell eggs at lower prices than offered. Fowl plants worked irregular schedules depending on finished product demand which was generally light.

New York Egg Market

Prices were unchanged to occasionally lower and the undertone was barely steady on most all items. Floor stocks of finished product were fully adequate for light to fair demand. Raw materials were ample for an unaggressive buying interest.

Cutlets were generally firm at 1.90 with some sales developing at 1 95; supplies were adequate to barely adequate for a fair demand. Breasts were in tight supply, particularly line runs and sellers had little difficulty booking at current price levels. Legs were fully adequate while leg quarters were fully adequate to ample; demand was spotty at best. Wings continued to clear well and buyers found little if any extra product in the marketplace.

National Grain Market

St. Joseph, Mo.

HIGHLIGHTS: WHEAT HIGHER, CORN LOWER AND SOYBEANS MOSTLY LOWER.

WHEAT PRICES CONTINUE TO WORK HIGHER UNDER THE INFLUENCE OF GOOD DOMESTIC AND EXPORT DEMAND. WEATHER CONDITIONS FAVORABLE FOR NEW CROP WHEAT IN MOST AREAS BUT STORAGE DOWN NEARLY 15% BELOW A YEAR AGO. CORN PRICES LOWER DUE TO LACK OF ANY GOOD NEWS. COUNTRY MOVEMENT SLOW. GRAIN SORGHUM PRICES SHARPLY HIGHER DUE TO TIGHT SUPPLIES AND SHARP REDUCTION IN PLANTING INTENTIONS. SOYBEAN PRICES MOSTLY LOWER, THIS A REACTION TO RECENT PRICE UP TURNS.

EXPORT NEWS: CHINA BOUGHT 280,000 TONNES U.S. SOFT RED WINTER WHEAT, UNDER EBP, FOR JULY/ AUG SHIPMENT AND 70,000 TONNES U S HARD RED WINTER WHEAT FOR JULY. Ask the Old Farmer: I have a copper watering can that is badly tarnished Can you help me? L R Rego Park, N Y

Try making a thick paste of salt and flour and vinegar Scrub this into the copper with a sponge, then rinse thoroughly You can scour the copper with catsup and then rub with Worcestershire sauce to get it to shine

Home Hints: Plant petunias around the base of an apple tree to repel many of the fruit tree attracted insects

OPINION

The Dairy Princess Program

Back when George Leader was governor of Pennsylvania, the 79th Guernsey National Convention met in Philadelphia, and the Honeymooners kept TV audiences laughing-- the first milk maid was crowned in Pennsylvania. We now call them dairy princesses but ever since that first attempt to use individuals from dairy farms as spokespersons for the dairy industry a significant contribution has been made by the dairy princess program.

Dairy princesses at the county and state level go into the marketplace and meet consumers of milk in grocery stores. And they go into the media to proclaim the dairy story. In addition, they represent the one program that all the dairy promotion groups can support. This is of special significance since a lot of discussion goes into which promotional group has the best logo, slogan or advertising campaign. But each promotional group lays down its differences to support the princess program. That's good.

However, this broad farm organization of support does create one problem for the princesses. When you look over the schedule of a dairy princess, you see that a good number of appearances are made at farmer meetings. This is done in appreciation for their support, of course. But what would happen if each farm organization who usually invites the dairy princess to sit at the head table would extend the option for her to attend an extra consumer event instead. Certainly we would miss a lot of charisma at our farm banquets. But we might give our well-worked dairy princesses more opportunity to tell our dairy story to the people who buy our milk and products. It's just a thought.

To Understand Persistant Weed Problems

Just how persistant do we have to be in order to control weed problems? Well, the answer to this question comes from weed scientists who ran germination tests on weed seeds.

They report that 29% of Johsongrass seed germinated after being buried for 3 years; morning glory 74% after 5 years; pigweed 66% after 40 years and dock 52% after 50 years. They further reported that 51 of 107 species tested still had live seeds after 20 years.

The reason these seeds remain in the soil for such a long period without sprouting is apparently related to environmental conditions. According to weed experts, some seeds need just the right combination of moisture, temperature, and nutrients before they will germinate. This explains why we may suddenly be faced with a weed problem we thought was cured several years ago.

To Manage Poultry House Equipment

General management of poultry house equipment is important in maintaining a comfortable environment for chickens and turkeys. Defective equipment should be repaired or replaced promptly, especially if it is involved with the delivery of feed or water to the birds.

Rusty or bent cages will allow some birds to escape and may trap or injure other birds. It can also cause an increase in cracked egg shells. All sharp edges on the poultry equipment must be removed to avoid injuries. Rusty and deteriorating feed bins are another problem; they allow moisture to seep into the feed, resulting in mold and sick birds.

To Practice Strict Sanitation

Livestock and poultry producers must take a special effort to prevent contagious diseases. Many of these infections are brought home by the owner, or with the purchase of a new arrival. There are a number of infections that can be spread very easily from farm to farm.

In this part of the country, where the density of poultry and livestock is so great, producers should be alert to the possibility of spreading diseases. When returning from another farm, or public place, different clothes and footwear should be used. Stray dogs, cats and wild birds should be controlled as much as possible. New purchases should be segregated and tested before mixing with the home herd or flock. In many cases vaccination should go along with very strict sanitation practices. Every producere should give attention to the prevention of disease through good management and the use of good sanitation practices.

To Clean Pastures Before Turning Animals On Them

A careful check of pastures before turning cows into them can be time well spent. Trash, broken glass, and wire may produce bad udder and foot injuries. So remove or bury the debris.

Nails sticking through boards may produce serious puncture wounds in feet. Old farm implements should be hauled away; cows seem unable to resist stepping through old discs or harrows, often with bad results.

Fertilizer and fertilizere bags are deadly; especially those containing nitrates. Cows will eagerly kill themselves eating it.

In spite of laws, we still have a few people who will pitch a bag of junk out of their cars while they drive along our highways. A walk through your pasture fields before turning your cows out, is time very well spent.

FARM FORUM OUR READERS WRITE

Editor,

As in Lancaster east area, the farming region so it follows in Morgantown - Churchtown and the area east of the Goat Path; the New Holland, East Earl area, and farm region will be taxed by divine methods to exploit the Lancaster - Chester - Berks county area or tourist trap attractions.

The limits of utilities (public service) and land use based strictly on $ values disregarding the farms, may well be an adopted concern of the farm media.

The traffic suggested, from about 3,100 vehicles per day to nearly 80,000 when the project (New Morgan) is finished, is erroneous in itself; much less the erosion, surface water run off - destroyed bridges, etc., now in evidence even before New Morgan.

To open up this Eastern Lancaster County area will surely enhance the goat path and other now put on hold throughways

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

NOT WITH ANGELS!

April 17, 1988

Background Scripture: Hebrews 1 through 2.

Devotional Reading: Colossians 1: 15-20.

During the year of 1987 I taught in our church some courses on the religions — namely Islam and Buddhism. In preparing to teach these courses, I became once again admiring to some of the teachings and practices of these two religions. This opportunity helped me to recall again an early persuasion that all of the major religions of the world provide some revelation of the One God. I do not think it simplistic to say "We all believe in one God."

THE STAMP OF GOD

At the same time, I hasten to add that, while I believe there is truth in all or most religions, my study of other faiths helps to reinforce my conviction that the best and truest picture of God we can ever have is the one we get through Jesus Christ our Lord. Although in another faith I can catch a glimpse of God, in the person of Jesus Christ I can see as much of God as a human being can possibly see.

That's why the Letter to the Hebrews is so profound to me: "In many and various ways God spoke of old to our fathers by the prophets; but in these last days he has spoken to us by a Son..." (1:1,2). And this Son "reflects the glory of God and bears the very stamp of his nature..." (1:3). The writer of Hebrews recognizes that there are many roads to God, but there is one road above all other roads: through Jesus Christ. The most that can be said about God is what we experience in Him.

LOWER THAN THE ANGELS

Not only does Jesus bring God closer to us, he also brings us closer to God. The writer of Hebrews says, "But we see Jesus, who for a little while was made lower than the angels..." (2:9) And again: "...he had to be made like his brethren in every respect, so that he might become a merciful and faithful high priest in the service of God..." (2:17). So, because he became like us, "he is able to help those who are tempted" (2:18). There is nothing esoteric or occult about the gospel of Jesus Christ. Instead of theories about the heavesn, its focus is on this world where one is confronted by human-size concerns.

This, then, is a message from God to the masses, not the elite. "For it was not to angles that God subjected the world to come, of which we are speaking" (2:5). And again: "For surely it is not with angels that he is concerned..." (2:16). There's nothing wrong with angels, but you and I live in the here-and-now of life on this planet earth and that is where the gospel must be lived out every day of our lives.

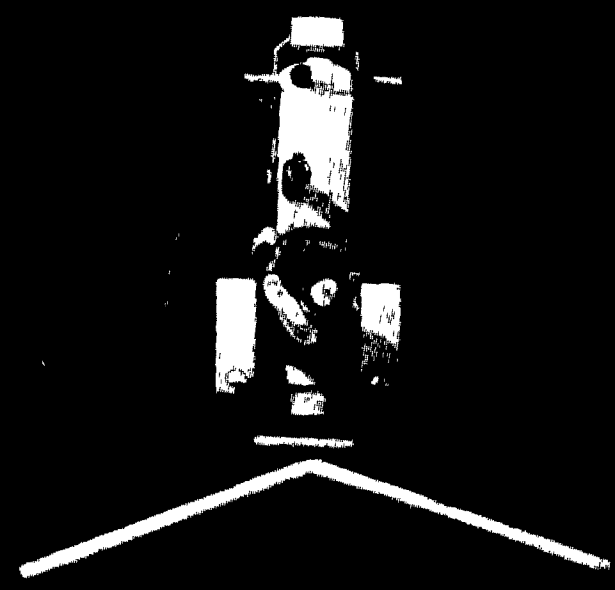
Farm Credit Is Plowing New Ground.



There's something satisfying about that morning when the winter wait's over and you start breaking ground for a new growing season.

At Farm Credit, we know the feeling. Because we're owned and controlled by farmers. And because we've just finished the groundwork to make our services faster. More economical. And more responsive to you than ever before.

We're adding the business technology to cut paperwork. And we're expanding our services, so you can come to us for all your farm loans. Loans to buy acreage or build on it. Production loans for seed and fertilizer. Equipment loans for new machinery. And our people will be there for you season after season, plowdown to harvest. People who understand farming from the ground up.

Our changes aren't earth-shaking. They're simply ways to set up the best possible conditions for growth.

And whether it's done with a plan or a plow, that's what breaking new ground is all about.

Agway introduces

NEW Gro:Pak™ With Bovatec®

Improve the rate of weight gain by 10-13% in your replacement heifers with Agway Gro Pak™ with Bovatec® No body weight restriction means you can feed calves almost from birth and help them conceive and calve at younger ages by consistently improving growth rate And getting heifers into the production cycle sooner means more dollars to your bottom line!

Agway Gro Pak™ with Bovatec® is a pelleted premix safe for cattle of all weights It can be top dressed on silage or grain, blended in a total mixed ration (TMR), or blended with grains Good palatability means calves or heifers won't back-off feed And Bovatec is approved for control of coccidiosis in cattle up to 800 lbs. of body weight That means less death loss and growth setback in your heifers

Spray weevils early with Furadan® 4F insecticide and save.

When you spray your alfalfa for weevil prior to first cutting you'll save yields and free up your time later, when you're really busy.

Alfalfa weevils begin feeding prior to first cutting. This can hurt tonnage, quality and stands. Spraying early not only prevents all this, but it means that you won't have to worry about it after first cutting—when you may not have time to spray at all.

Furadan® 4F insecticide from FMC.

The best choice for early alfalfa weevil control Because you have more to do than worry about weevil.

Hay Pro II™

THE NEXT GENERATION IN HAY PRESERVATION

A High Moisture (20 - 35%) Hay Preservative That WON'T RUST equipment or remove paint.

WON'T BURN skin or produce fumes that cause a burning sensation.

WON'T SMELL so bad that no one wants to work on the wagon or in the barn.

We've taken the headaches out of Hay Preservation!

We have reformulated our 80:20 blend of propionic: acetic acid to be people friendly. HayProII™ provides the same preservative value pound for pound as the old 80:20 blend that you may have purchased under one of the following commercial names: Field Fresh™, HayPro™, Protex™, ChemStor™, etc.

With HayProII™, you get the same fantastic results with none of the old problems. This new product is available only under the trade name HayProII™ and only from American Farm Products or its authorized dealers.

The Difference Is

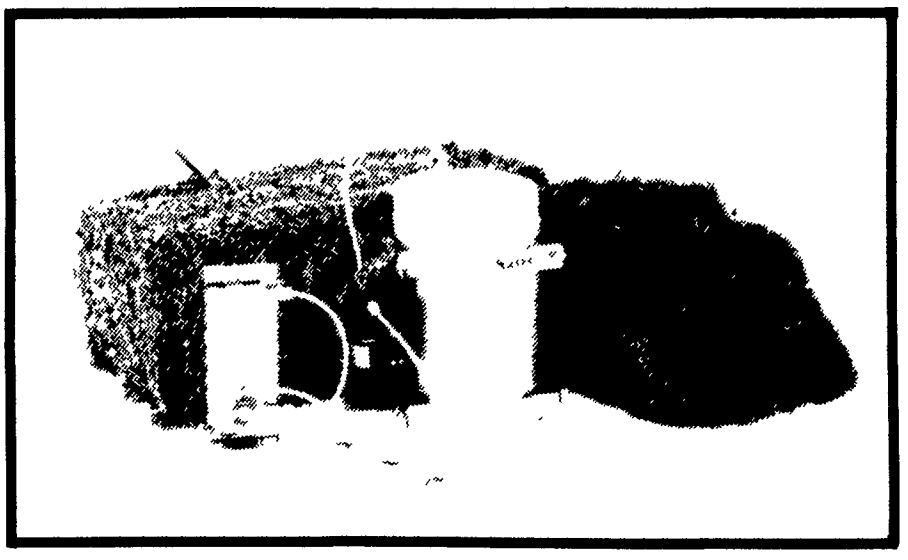
hay stabilizer



Higher quality, softer, leafier, greener hay — that's the CROP-FRESH difference. Apply CROP-FRESH hay stabilizer when you bale and nearly double your normal baling moisture, up to 25%! This saves the leaves and saves the nutrients — Mother Nature provides the plant.

CROP-FRESH gets you into the field faster — up to one-third quicker than if you wait for the hay to completely dry down. And CROP-FRESH hay stabilizer is non-corrosive so there's no harm to you or your equipment.

More hay, better hay — faster. CROP-FRESH makes the difference.

death although it continues to feed. There is no cure for Johnes.

What makes this disease so frightening is that it is incurable, hard to detect and spreads years before the clinical symptons surface. Young stock are most susceptible to this incidious disease. Generally calves are exposed to and become infected in the first few weeks of life, but may not develop clinical signs of weight loss or diarrhea for two to eight years. Animals remain susceptible to the disease until they reach 1-year-old.

The Johnes organism is spread primarily through the ingestion of fecal matter. Separating adult animals from calves is critical to halting the spread of Johnes. Also, calves must be taken from mothers are birth to prevent the possibility of fecal intake.

The infected animals may carry the disease for several years and shed the organisms which spread the disease through the herd. But not until the stress of a second or third freshening brings out the visible symptons will the Johnes diseases be suspected. Any animal with diarrhea should be immediately isolated from the entire herd.

"The buyer doesn't have a good way of protecting himself. But I strongly suggest the dairy farmer isolates all new purchases and have each one tested for Johnes," said Hutchinson. It takes 3-4 months to get the results and it may be extra work, but compared to the potential loss from Johnes it is well worth it. Johnes is the most economically important disease for southeastern farmers."

The economic losses mount up:
•decreased milk production
•increased susceptibility to other diseases
•loss of genetic potential
•loss of export market
•increased medical costs
•weight loss at slaughter
•loss at auction sales if animals have a statement that says exposed to Johnes disease (Johne's is a reportable disease to the Bureau of Animal Industry). Also, the average difference in body weight between a Johnes positve animal and a Johnes free animal is approximately 110 pounds.

Infected animals shed the organisms in fecal matter. The organisms may survive for many months and in some cases for years in the environment. The major source of infection to cattle is through direct fecal contamination of feedstuffs. It is important to take these necessary precautions:

•separate calves from dams at birth
•house all young stock separately from older cows
•prevent fecal contamination from feeds
•keep new animals separate from herd until they have been tested and certified free of Johnes (this becomes easier with the new test soon to be available)
•discourage visitors from entering feed rooms and feed alleys unless boots are washed and disinfected •protect the herd from rodents, birds and pets which travel from neighboring farms
»o not mix replacement animals with the adult herd until they are atleast two-years-old.
•keep feeding bunks well-above ground to minimize fecal contamination
•do not spread manure on permanent pasture used for grazing cattle
•protect young cattle from all waste water and drainage that may come from areas occupied by adult animals
•fence off or fill in any stagnant water source and allow cattle to drink from only tanks or free flowing stream

What does this mean for area dairy farmers.

"If I were buying any dairy animals or stock, I would not buy from a non-certified herd," said Dr. Brian K. Reed, D.V.M., of Hutchison & Trayer Veterinary Associates in Denver. "Those farmers who have their herd certified negative for Johnes will be the leaders in the industry.".

At present certification is a slow-process. There is a waiting line to get on the state program and the test results are slow in coming. However, it is a place to begin. Starting now will give that farmer an edge not only when the test results do come in and they are negative, but it is of greater importance if the tests show even one animal positive. For the purebreed breeder the losses can be devastating.

""The Pennsylvania indemnity program will pay the farmer only if his herd is on the state testing program, if a technician appraises the worth of the animal, and the animals which test positive are sent to the slaughter house within 30 days from tests results," said Hutchinson. "Last year the state paid out $125,000 in indemnity money."

The indemnity payment falls far short of the worth of a registered, high-indexed, good pedigreed animal. Working on preventing the spread are breed associations, Pennsylvania Farmers Association, Pennsylvania Grange and other farmers groups across the state are working with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and the Bureau of Animal Industry on a testing plan.

Under this plan, specific and strict requirements must be met for a dairymen to earn a Johnes free certificate. This plan could be in effect by the end of 1988. It would be voluntary.

Formulating and putting into operation an accrediting plan for Johnes is and will be a slow process. Until the time when breeders can display their Johnes free certificate and potential buyers can be reasonably assured they are bringing Johnes free cows onto their farm, precautions should be taken to prevent the spread of this destructive disease. A dairymen's milking herd is too much to lose.

Fruit Growers Concerned About Killing Frosts

BY LISA RISSER

LITITZ — When cold winds blow during spring, they're unwelcome to most of us who yearn for warmer breezes. To fruit growers, cold weather after their trees bloom often means a damaged crop.

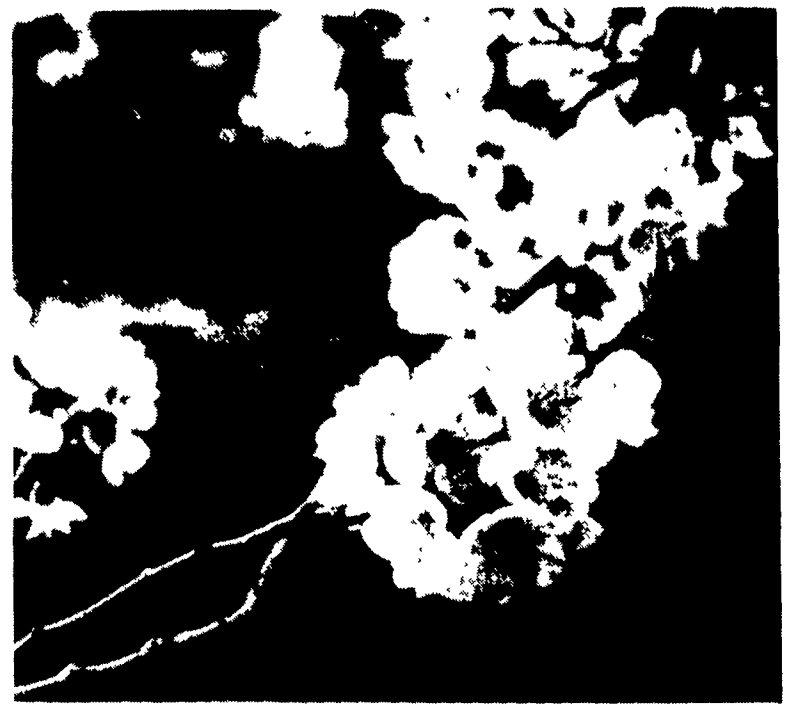
"We're concerned about cold weather and frost between now and May 22," said Dick Haas, owner of Cherry Hill Orchard in New Danville. Of particular concern will be the full moon that comes in early May, bringing cold weather with it.

The extent of the damage caused by the weather depends on the severity of the cold spell. "On a clear night the trees are more vulnerable," explained Haas. "This is because warm air rises from the ground and the cold air filters in behind and sits in the low spots, damaging them.

"If a high-pressure system comes out of Canada bringing wind with it, the trees will be killed on the top, in high spots."

Orchards in southeastern Pennsylvania that vary in topography are best protected, according to Haas.

The apricot and plum trees in Cherry Hill blossomed in March, which was early. The recent cool spell has slowed growth and the trees are now back on a normal schedule. Haas' nectarine and peach trees are blooming and cherry trees will soon be flowering. About a week ago, Haas released 600 bee colonies from Florida, which will stay in the orchard until the apple trees are pollinated, about a month.



Fruit growers are concerned about frost and cold weather occurring from now until late May. Cold weather can damage blossoms such as these found on apricot trees.

Chester Bicentennial Farms

BY MARJORIE KEEN
Chester Co. Correspondent

GUTHRIESVILLE — Owners of two Chester County Bicentennial Farms, who were unable to attend the Pennsylvania State Farm Show in Harrisburg in January, were recognized at Crops Day here. Four other county farms that have been owned by the same families for 200 years were cited at the Farm Show.

District Conservationist Elbert Wells of the U.S. Soil Conservation Service office in West Chester presented certificates and books to T. Edwin and Elizabeth Martin and Col. Charles McFarlan.

"Misty Pines" in West Marlborough Township has been in the Martin family since 1727. Edwin Martin has worked the farm for 71 of his 79 years and still milks nine head, he said.

McFarlan, whose farm just north of Downingtown has been in his family since 1747, told the Crops Day audience that he was surprised to see so many farmers in attendance. Considering the pressure he is receiving from developers, McFarlan said he didn't think there would be that many farms left in Chester County.

Will It Die Or Survive

1,200-pound steer.

"Charging the same for a calf as a mature steer isn't fair," Beshore asserted. "I'd like to see veal calves be checked off at a percentage, like the pigs are, rather than flat rate."

John Cope, Cumberland County dairyman and a member of the National Beef Promotion & Research Board, agrees that the perception has been that a dollar check-off for veal wasn't fair. "But farmers are finding that all their check-off dollars are put back into the veal industry," he noted. "And we're having the best veal market ever. Farmers are getting more than twice what they were getting a year ago."

Some industry members also question whether promotional efforts have helped substantially to increase prices or whether higher prices are a reflection of tighter supplies.

National and state beef promotion officials as well as dairy organizations are aware of the problems within the program as it stands. According to Coleman, the Pennsylvania Cattleman Association has agreed to sit down with dairy associations to discuss inequities and resolve them through new legislation.

"It is not the desire of any farm group to open up the Farm Bill at this point because then the Bill will be in a state of flux," Cope added. Once opened the Bill would be targeted for revision on all levels, not just the beef check-off program.

Dairymen are of two minds regarding passage of the program as it stands. "I don't know anyone who's approved of anything before the problems are solved," declared Beshore. "I think that's taking the cart before the horse."

On the other hand, another York County dairy farmer, Joyce Bupp, commented, "If you have land with weeds in it, you don't sell it; if you have a cow with a few flakes in a quarter, you don't sell it—you address it. I think that just because a program has some problems in it you don't scrap it. You address those problems." Bupp, a member of the Pennsylvania Beef Checkoff Campaign Committee, believes that the program does have some problems and that there will be fine-tuning done after the program's future is certain.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has set the voting date as May 10 except for West Virginia, which has its primary on that date. West Virginia producers will vote on May 9. When asked why the vote will be held during a work day in planting season, Cope replied, "It was an impossiblitiy to find a time that everyone would be happy with."

The voting will be conducted in the county extension offices during normal business days. Producers and importers unable to vote in person can request an absentee ballot by writing John Comerford, Beef Referendum State Extension Coordinator at 313 W.L. Henning Bldg., University Park, PA 16802. Absentee ballots will be available until April 29 and must be received at the county extension office by close of business May 3.

Many farmers around the country are concerned about the one-day voting period as well as the need for more county extension offices. Particularly concerned about distance are those in the West where many miles separate farmer from office. In southeastern Pennsylvania, people are concerned about the ability of Amish and Mennonite farmers who don't drive to get to their county extension office.

Because the vote will take place on one day, beef promotion officials are worried that some farmers won't come out to vote, assuming that the referendum will pass without their vote. And that has been the problem in the past, according to Chet Hughes, Lancaster County livestock agent. "Farmers should get out to vote to express their opinion on how they feel about their program," he urged. "If they vote, they can better live with the decision that is made."

The people eligible to vote are those owning at least one head between October 1, 1986 and May 10, 1988. Registration takes place at the same time that the ballots are cast. Voters will be required to sign an affadavit swearing to cattle ownership during the 19-month period. The ASCS offices will post a list of voters for two days following the vote. Votes can be challenged. Partnerships, corporations, and family ownerships are entitled to one vote as are youth who own an FFA or 4-H bovine.

Should the referendum pass, Coleman reports that much of the money would go toward research. "The emphasis has been on promotion to show producers how it works. Once we're certain the program will be approved the long-range thing will be research," he said.

Research will be in areas such as genetics, feeding, veal, and meat preparation. "A lot of the research will be sponsored by the National Meat Board because we like to include four to five universities in the country to get a cross section of the answers we're looking for," related Coleman.

FYI—Beef Check-Off Facts

✔The Pennsylvania Beef Council spends about 15% of its working budget on veal promotion.

✔Refunds have been requested by 4.5% of producers, 85% of whom are veal producers. Beef promotion officials had anticipated 15% of producers to request a refund.

✔Some 1.5 million producers will be eligible to vote on the referendum.

✔20% of all beef marketed is from cull dairy cows.

✔10 to 15% of a dairyman's income comes from selling cull cows and veal calves.

✔Since the check-off began cull prices have risen 25%.

✔Veal calf prices have risen 40% in the past few months.

✔The 1980 referendum was defeated by a 2-to-1 vote.

✔During the first year and a half of the referendum, producers funded 45 national research projects. Last year $2.7 million was spent on research, while $4.4 million is budgeted for this year.

✔No more than 5% of check-off dollars can be used for administrative costs.

Lancaster County Gains A Horticulturist

BY LISA RISSER

LANCASTER — Spring has arrived and brought with it the customary display of beautiful flowers, bright green foliage and grass, and chirping birds. This year it also brought Bruce Hellerick, the man who aims to help Lancaster County residents keep their trees, flowers, vegetables, and grass healthy and productive.

The newest agent to join the county's extension service, Hellerick, 26, will assist commercial growers and homeowners in eradicating pests and diseases and increasing production. He also hopes to help commercial growers develop marketing options.

In particular, Hellerick would like to create educational opportunities for growers. "I would like to begin a program where local growers can get together to learn things such as improving growing procedures and how to become better marketers," he said. "Lancaster County has a great potential for fruit and vegetable production."

Hellerick reported that there has been a 25 percent increase in acreage devoted to produce production in the past few years. Much of the boom is taking place in the Eastern part of the county where many Amish and Mennonite farmers are moving away from tobacco, the prices for which have plummeted, and are getting into vine crops and peppers. The favorite vine crop appears to be cantaloupe.

Development of a marketing strategy for the county is another goal Hellerick has. "I hope to get together with several large growers and other organizations such as cooperatives and auction houses and identify what we need to do to move more produce," he stated. "We need to identify the markets and get a better price for growers."

Hellerick cited the eastern seaboard as a source of possible markets, explaining that much of what needs to be accomplished is finding transportation and buyers and keeping the quality good.

A native of Lebanon, Hellerick got involved in his county's 4-H horticultural program, and bitten by the bug, went on to get a degree in horticulture from Delaware Valley College in 1984. While at college, Hellerick met a fellow horticulturist, Sally, whom he later married. The two live in Manor Township with their 3-month-old daughter, Victoria. Sally manages Manor Hills Orchard.

Prior to coming to Lancaster extension office, Hellerick was the turf and supply manager at Stauffer's of Kissel Hill in Rohrstown.

Hellerick's position was created after Arnold Lueck, long-time county agent, retired in 1986. A recently ended hiring freeze on extension personnel kept officials from filling the position.

Bruce Hellerick has just joined the Lancaster County extension office as a horticulturist. Formerly turf and supply manager for Stauffer's of Kissel Hill in Rohrerstown, Hellerick will be working with homeowners as well as commercial fruit and vegetable growers and nurseries.

ADADC, McDonald's Join To Make "Happy Meals"

WILLIAMSPORT — McDonald's restaurants throughout Pennsylvania will soon promote milk as part of their children's "Happy Meals" menu item, according to an arrangement between American Dairy Association and Dairy Council (ADADC) and McDonald's Corporation, the nation's largest fast-food restaurant chain.

The "Milk Available" promotion was developed to generate consumer awareness that milk, as well as soft drinks, is available in "Happy Meals." It marks McDonald's first chainwide promotion of milk as part of its menu.

Point-of-sale material has been developed which will feature a cartoon-style cow peeking around the side of a "Happy Meals" carton with the words "Milk Available" and the "REAL" Seal. The material will appear throughout 1988 in each of McDonald's more than 7,000 company-owned and franchise units nationwide, which utilize all real dairy products.

"This promotion is an excellent opportunity to see how effectively we can promote milk in the fast-food markets," said Randy Brown, Dairy Marketing Specialist. Historically, consumers have not viewed milk as a service menu item, which contains a hamburger, French fries and choice of beverage. The ADADC is a milk promotion association funded by 20,000 dairy farmers from Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey.

Wheeler had the opportunity to view the county from the air on Thursday, and compare its beauty and its grandeur to a quilt.

"But this quilt with its history, its farmland, its human settlements is tattered and frayed in some places and in other places are holes and stains," said Wheeler.

Wheeler was invited to the county to discuss the topic "Will We Live in Accidental Cities or Successful Communities?." Wheeler has made several visits to the county and sees the rapid development and growth of this area mirrored throughout the country. A boom in citizens' concern accompanies that growth and with good reason.

"First you must realize the importance of Lancaster County's assets. There have been many changes in the past three or four years. Along with the county's beauty, productivity, growth and economic development you must also recognize it's vulnerability," said Wheeler.

"More and more people will want to share the good life that you have found. That is inevitable. The way you handle that growth is the most critical issue in order to protect your cultural and natural assets which are at risk of being lost," warned Wheeler.

Wheeler pointed out that the vitality of the county and those characteristics which make this area distinctive can be lost if there is unplanned growth He defined successful communities as those which have livability. That livability is dependent upon the definition of special places which are those places which bring meaning to our lives.

"Special places are not grand parks like Yellowstone or Grand Canyon. Special places are those areas which are distinctive to your community alone. They are those places which bring meaning to our lives. How can we save our special places? You must recognize these as assets and make plans to protect them to secure their future so they do not become part of the homogenized countryside."

Wheeler recognized the difficulty of pooling the desires of more than 60 independent jurisdictions within the county to formulate a comprehensive plan for healthy growth. He warned that frustration can lead to simplistic solutions. In Orange County, California, according to Wheeler, the citizens are preparing to vote on ordinances which will stop all development unless the developer can prove it will result in no furher deterioration of their community.

"My prediction is that development will come to a halt, but it is their only viable solution at this point. I believe there is a better solution here," said Wheeler.

Agriculture, tourism and industry are the components of the county's economy. However, without the quality of life as most know of it today, Wheeler warned, that tourism and industry would not be here.

"I don't hae to tell you that the tourists will not come if Lancaster County is paved over. And industry will not come if the quality of life is not here. Siting specialists look first for a site which will satisfy the employees' desire for quality of life," said Wheeler.

What makes a successful community and how can concerned citizens work towards that goal?

First, observations must be made to note the assets which make that community distinctive. Second, envision that community or what would be left of it without those assets. What will increased population impose on the life of that community? Once that negative vision is formed the work begins to prevent that from happpening.

A successful community can only be accomplished through the work of local hometown heroes, leaders who will spearhead projects and unwaveringly see it through. But individuals cannot do it alone. The community needs what Wheeler calls quality-of life lobbyists who are willing to act on their concerns.

"We can't afford not to do something! We cannot give into the alledged inevitable sprawl. I emphasize the need for hometown heroes to draw on the resource of concerned citizens here the county," stated Wheeler.

Wheeler encouraged groups to communicate and for everyone to think in broader terms or development and planning, not only as it pertains to a single township. He urged citizens to start at the local government level, to attend township meetings and to make government officials responsive to the desires of its constituency.

Wheeler's visit to the county was sponsored in part by the county Agricutural Preserve Board, the Friends of Agricutural Land Preservation and the Lancaster Alliance for New Directions.

Whose Milk Is It Anyway?

If you're not in RCMA you're not in control.

You're up early, and you work long hours That's part of dairying We all know that For too long another part of dairying has been that farmers have not had any say in pricing their milk That may have been okay a few years ago when the government-supported price was enough to make a living on, but now prices have dropped through the floor And they're expected to keep falling

Have a say in what your blood and sweat is worth.

Right now, dairy farmers have an opportunity to gain a say in establishing a fair price for milk Some milk dealers want you to leave pricing strictly to them They want you to believe they have your best interests in mind Think about it Their businesses come first, and they'll pay only as much as they really have to for your milk RCMA premiums will be here tomorrow, month in, month out Not just for as long as some milk dealer thinks they should be Want to gain control of your milk?

Republican Ag Committee Hears Testimony, Gives Report

HARRISBURG — On Monday evening, April 4th, the Public Affairs Subcommittee of the Republican Policy Committee took testimony from representatives of the agriculture community regarding the level of funding of agricultural items in the Administration's 1988-89 Fiscal Year Budget.

This action was taken after Representative Merle Phillips (R-Northumberland), a member of the House Appropriations Committee, determined that the agriculture community had little input into the budget-building process. Site of the hearing was the Holiday Inn, Shamokin Dam. Ten members of the Policy and Agriculture Committees attended the hearing and had comments to offer on testimony.

The Committee received local citizen input representing the following groups or organizations: the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, the State Grange, Dean Lam Hood of Penn State's College of Agriculture, Dean Edwin Andrews of Penn's School of Veterinary Medicine, the Vo-Ag Teachers' Association, the "Ag in the Classroom" proponents, the Cooperative Extension Service, the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation District Directors, the Milk Dealers' Association, Kreamer Feed Store, the Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives, and the Hardwood Lumber Manufacturers' Association.

Recommendations extended beyond the Department of Agriculture appropriations. Agriculture line items may be found in numerous state departments or agencies, primarily the Education Department (Penn State, University of Pennsylvania, vocational students organizations), the Milk Marketing Board, and the Department of Environmental Resources (conservation districts, Chesapeake Bay Program, Lake Erie Phosphorus Reduction Program).

On Wednesday the committee held a press conference in the state capitol to review the findings. Representative Donald Snyder (R-Lehigh) said that often listening to the testimony the committee believes more needs to be done for agriculture.

"The Governor's budget cuts funds for in-progress construction at Penn's New Bolton Animal Health and Productivity Center," Snyder said It also lacks administrative funding for ag-land preservation and provides what the agriculture community and the Republican Policy Committee consider inadequate support in various other areas of the 1988-89 spending plan.

"When analyzing the 1988-89 spending program for the Department of Agriculture, for instance, you will find that the total number of dollars for agricultural programs and department administration have actually decreased from the prior year's funding level. Included in the budget for the Department of Agriculture is a $1.5 million appropriation to fix the roof of the Farm Show Building. Although the roof may need repairs, it needs to be pointed out that farmers are not the only group to utilize the building Snyder said. Therefore, they should not have to shoulder this financial responsibility for the purposes of one show per year. There is also in the budget an increase of $1 million for the surplus food distribution program.

Kenneth E. Brandt, chairs the committee.

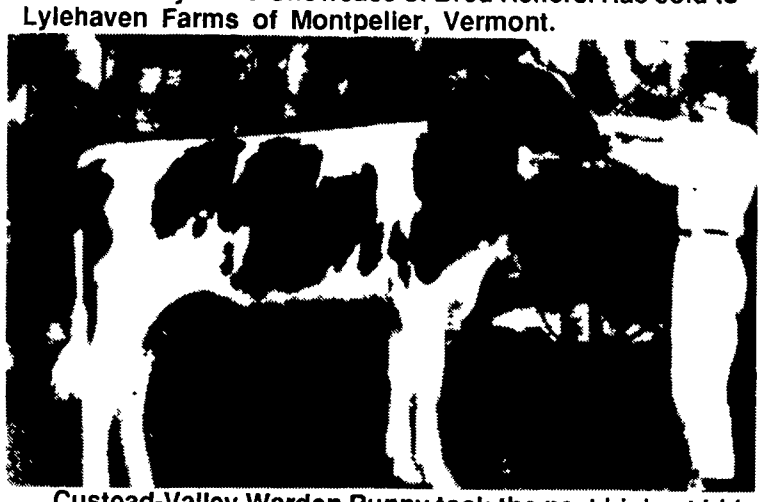
Angel Takes Top Bid In PA Holstein Sale

Jadene Very Rae took the second highest bid of $11,500 at the Pennsylvania Showcase of Bred Heifers. Rae sold to Lylehaven Farms of Montpelier, Vermont.



Custead-Valley Warden Bunny took the next highest bid at $5,500. Bunny was purchased by Fred A. Strouse of Centre Hall.

STATE COLLEGE — Changing the location of the annual Pennsylvania Holstein Bred Heifer and Calf sales benefitted both buyers and sellers, according to Ken Raney, Director of Membership for the PA Holstein Association.

"This is the first time we've held the sales in State College instead of Harrisburg and I think we drew more buyers because of it. Most people don't want to have to truck cattle all the way to western Pennsylvania from Harrisburg. Having it in State College was more centralized," said Raney.

However, Raney said the change in location had little affect on the attendance of out-of-state buyers.

The Progressive Holstein Partnership of Sturgis, Michigan bid last on the drawing card of the Pennsylvania Showcase of Bred Heifers. Yarsons Apollo Chairman Angel, consigned by Angel Syndicate of New Wilmington, sold for $44,000. This 4-year-old is classified as Very Good-89 with an Excellent Mammary System and sold with one pregnancy with recipient and two frozen embryos by Bridon Astro Jet-ET.

In the Supreme Creations PA State Calf Sale, DT-Queens-Manor Balboa sold for the highest bid of the sale at $12,000 to Chris Doebereiner of Jamestown and William Yarosh of Ohio.

The second highest bid of the $11,500 purchased Jadene Very Rae, the first place 3-year-old and Best Udder at the Pennsylvania Holstein State Spring Show of 1988. Rae was also named the All-PA 2-year-old in 1987. As a 2-year-old she produced 24,672M, with a 4.4% butterfat test, 1,074F. Her protein was 3.3% test at 823P.

Rae sold to Lylehaven Farms of Montpelier, Vermont. She was bred to Fisher-Place Mandingo-Twin and is due July 12. Rae was sired by Kingway Elevation Very.

Bred heifer sale average on 91 head was $2,597.

In the Supreme Creations Pennsylvania State Calf Sale DT-Queens-Manor Balboa sold for $12,000 to Chris Doebereiner of Jamestown and William Yarosh of Wellington, Ohio. Balboa, born September 3, 1987 was sired by S-W-D Valiant, Excellent-95 and her full-sister is Cherrybrook LTD Balboa an Ex-92 with Excellent-Mammary System.

Balboa's consignors were of Queens-Manor, D. Dowler and D.Thomas of Jamestown.

The second high bid of the calf sale went to Custead-Valley Warden Bunny, consigned by Julie Custead of Meadville. Bunny, born December 1, 1986, was named All-American Intermediate Calf in 1987. She was sired by Hilltopper Elevation Warden and her dam, Custead-Valley Reliance Jackie is VG-86.

The calf sale average on 136 head was $1,883.

Sixth CRP Signup Brings Additional 4.5 Million Acres

LEESPORT — The US Department of agriculture has received bids submitted on 4,507,170 acres during the sixth signup of the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP), announced Milton Hertz, Administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. An additional 18,464 acres were submitted by 461 farmers in Pennsylvania.

Hertz also announced that the seventh CRP signup will be held July 18th through August 5th.

According to Hertz, USDA plans to announce on or about May 20th the acreage accepted during the sixth signup. He said the information will not be available before then because of program changes called for by Congress in the FY 1988 appropriations.

These changes required ASCS Committees to review individual bids to determine whether the annual rental rate reflected or exceeded the local prevailing rental rate for comparable land.

"The program will significantly reduce cropland erosion as well as improve water quality, enhance wildlife habitat, and increase tree production," Hertz said. "Cropland areas 66-99 feet wide, next to streams, lakes and other permanent water bodies were eligible as filter strips in the sixth signup. The filter strip area did not have to meet normal CRP criteria."

Interest in tree planting occurred in some states, although interest remained low in Pennsylvania with only 266 acres submitted for tree planting.

On land placed in CRP, a vegetative cover, including trees, must be established on the land for a minimum of ten years. In addition to annual rental payments, CRP participant may receive up to 50 percent of the cost of establishing cover.

ADC stands for Atlantic Dairy Cooperative

Atlantic Dairy Cooperative is the largest, full-service cooperative in the Northeast. It is owned and operated by dairy farmers, like you, who know that dairying is a tough business. These farmers believe the best return on their investment is possible only in a strong organization with stable marketing programs.

ADC stands for its members

For more than 70 years, Atlantic has dedicated itself to the personal growth of its members. The tradition of service lives on. Atlantic offers:

- Long-term guaranteed markets for all member milk.
- Extra dollars in dairy farmers' pockets with MACMMA and RCMA over-order premiums.
- Maximum dividends for members.
- Comprehensive benefits program at lower cost.

RCMA Names King Manager Of Development

BATAVIA, N.Y. — The Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency Inc. has named Edgar A. King as manager of cooperative development and public relations. In the new position, King will be responsible for maintaining communications with 150 milk dealers located in the 11 Northeastern states covered by RCMA and for member relations.

King joins RCMA after 12 years in New York State government positions relating to agriculture, particularly dairy farming. Most recently King served as program coordinator for the Legislative Committee on Dairy Industry Development and its vice-chairman, Assemblyman Michael J. Bragman (D-Cicero). Prior to that time, he was deputy commissioner of the state Department of Agriculture and Markets.

"We're extremely pleased to be adding Ed King to our staff," said RCMA Executive Director Edward Anna. "We've found someone who has a great deal of experience in the dairy industry. We appreciate the fact that Assemblyman Bragman paved the way to make Ed available to us on rather short notice. He'll be a real asset to RCMA."

In addition to his governmental experience, King lives on his family's dairy farm near Schuylerville, N.Y. King's son, David, operates the 150-cow farm.

Did You Really Want To Bale Straw?

NEWARK, De. — Straw. That's what many of you got last year after it rained for the first cutting, and the alfalfa got into full bloom. And they you had to rake more than once, and too many leaves shattered and fell back onto the field.

Maybe you really wanted straw, because your feeding program for your high-producing cows was short on fiber — specifically, hay fiber. And making late-cut hay was your way of curing twisted cow stomachs, improving low milk-fat tests and avoiding the purchase of bicarbonate of soda for your feed ration.

Feeding straw makes biological and veterinary sense, but did it make economic sense to use your alfalfa this way? When you deliberately cut alfalfa and other forages late, thus harvesting only stems and straw, you forgo a valuable source of cheap protein and energy.

By now most dairy farmers must have heard umpteen times that forages are most valuable in the vegetative stage and that their nutritive qualities get worse with every day toward and beyond bloom. This is so predictable that I can use the cutting date instead of a laboratory analysis to tell me the value of a particular forage as hay, greenchop, silage or haylage.

We've done much research on this here at the Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station. Haylage is the ideal alternative to spoiled hay-straw when you want to assure the feeding value of a forage crop by cutting early, despite the threat of rain. And if you don't have vertical, oxygen-tight steel or stave silos, the horizontal silage bag is an ideal option, especially since it's 27 percent cheaper than any upright silo — a fact we've documented here with our University of Delaware dairy herd operation.

Even before alfalfa harvest, you'll need to decide when to cut rye, wheat, barley and other winter forages. These crops become straw even faster than alfalfa, if you're slow on the trigger.

Here's what can happen to feed values if your forage crop is cut at three different maturity stages:

	Boot or bud stage	Early bloom or milk stage	Mature stage
Wheat, energy %	68	59	48
protein %	13	8	5
fiber %	20	32	45
Alfalfa, energy %	71	60	46
protein %	24	16	10
fiber %	21	31	39
Sorghum, energy %	65	57	5:
protein %	9	7	5
fiber %	25	26	30
Bermudagrass, energy %	60	52	48
protein %	14	11	7
fiber %	29	31	43

Summer forages such as sorghum and Bermudagrass are similar to alfalfa and winter forages in terms of their nutrient composition at different stages of maturity. If you harvest these crops when they're late and strawy, although you get more tons per acre, your cows will milk less per day and you'll have to buy more equipment to keep the milk tank full.

In research at the University of Georgia, when rye-wheat silage from three successive stages of maturity - early, middle and late — was fed, milk per cow per day declined from 37 pounds to 20 pounds until supplements made up the difference.

When alfalfa hay was fed at four successive stages of maturity from bud to mature, corresponding milk per cow per day went down from 68 to 38 pounds. So remember, waiting too long to cut forage crops this spring for hay, silage, green chop or haylage can rob you of much needed farm profits.

Bridgeville Soybean Farmer Honored As Young Leader

BRIDGEVILLE, De. —Douglas Corey, a farmer from Bridgeville, Del., has been named by the Mid-Atlantic Soybean Association and American Soybean Association as the winner of the DuPont Young Leader award.

The DuPont Young Leader program, now in its fifth year, honors soybean farmers in 26 states that are leaders on the farm and in the community. To be considered for the award, a farmer must apply his leadership skills to lend direction to the U.S. soybean industry.

The Mid-Atlantic Soybean Association participates in the leadership program to encourage young farmers to be actively involved in the association's activities.

Runners-up in the program were John A. Johnson, New Monmouth, N.J., and George Otis Morris, Jr., of Centreville, Md.

State winners receive an expense-paid trip for two to the 1988 Soybean EXPO in Denver this summer, courtesy of DuPont, makers of Lexone and other soybean herbicides. Winners also receive an expense-paid trip to DuPont's headquarters in Delaware for a leadership training seminar in December. Runners-up will receive 50 acres of prescription weed control from DuPont.

Corey raises 743 acres of soybeans and has farmed for 11 years.

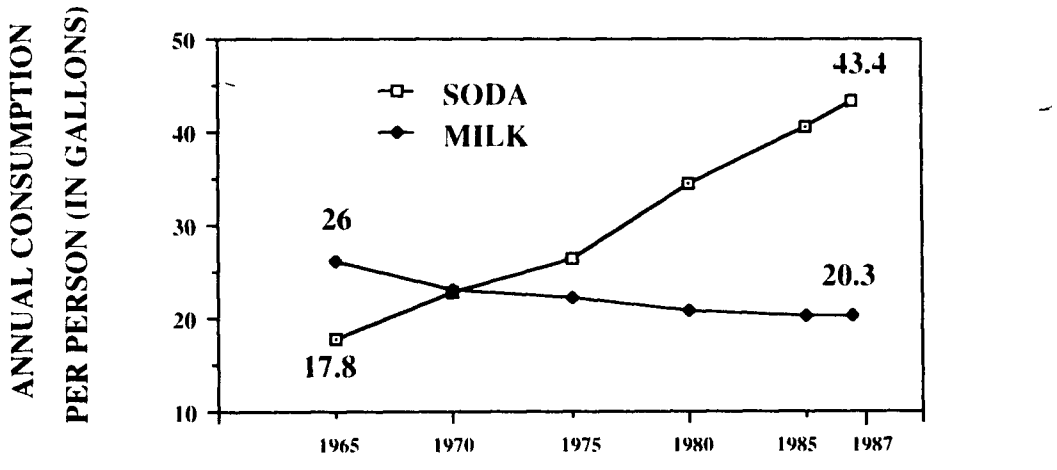
FARMLAND DAIRIES UPDATE

Soda Has Replaced Milk As Our National Beverage



Processor Promotion Fund Proposed

An aggressive promotional campaign to boost milk consumption, financed entirely by processors, has been proposed by Farmland Dairies. The proposal was made in a formal petition submitted to the United States Department of Agriculture. Farmland's initiative comes at a time when the dairy industry in the northeast is experiencing new pressures from declining price supports, rising land values and increased competition from other beverages. "Soda has overtaken milk as America's favorite beverage. It is time that we reclaim milk's leadership position," Marc Goldman, president of Farmland Dairies stated.

Farmland urged that processors, not producers, pay for fluid milk promotion. In addition, Farmland recommends that $.12 of the $.15/cwt currently collected from producers for promotion be returned to farmers. The remaining $.03 would be used to fund research and new product development. "The new products will benefit the entire industry, while the $.12/cwt will provide added income for farmers now and in the future," Marc Goldman said.

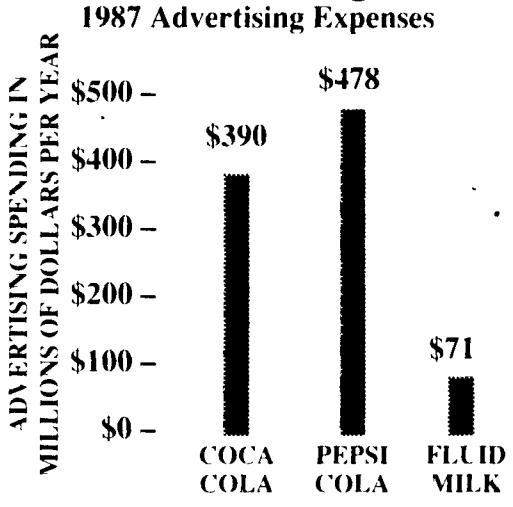
Sell More Class 1 Milk to Increase Revenues

In place of producer-funded promotions, Farmland suggested a mandatory $.35 /cwt assessment on all processors to be used exclusively for fluid milk production. "Every processor should pay this assessment, "Marc Goldman stated, "but the money raised should be spent solely for advertising Class 1 products."

"A greatly expanded promotion campaign is the best way to boost milk consumption," according to Farmland's president. "The dairy industry needs to sell its way out of its dilemma, not try to institute new supply side subsidies." In Goldman's words, this means persuading "more consumers to drink more milk, more often." He went on to argue that "this is the surest way to maintain a viable dairy industry in the northeast."

More Milk Advertising Needed!

1987 Advertising Expenses



Milk Not Sugared Water

In support of its USDA petition, Farmland noted that soft drink consumption almost tripled in the last twenty years, from 17 gallons per person to over 43, while milk declined by 20% to 20 gallons per person during the same period. "The dairy industry cannot continue to focus on supply, while competing against beverages whose marketing strategy is based on increasing demand." Goldman explained that soft drink companies cater to consumers and promote their products, while the dairy industry worries about internal issues and largely ignores consumers, "Is it any wonder that soft drink consumption is rising, while milk is declining," Goldman asked?

Additional Revenue to Farmers

In addition to returning $.12/cwt to producers by transferring the cost of advertising to processors, Farmland proposes reclassifying UHT milk, cream, ice cream mix and milk shake mix as Class 1 products. The reclassification is in line with Farmland's belief that boosting Class 1 sales and thus farmer income is essential for northeastern producers. The reclassification could add several cents to the blend price.

Market Order Merger Proposed

Farmland also called for the merger of Orders 1, 2 and 4 into a single, more efficient and less costly administrative unit. "The present division of the northeast into three orders makes no sense," Mr. Goldman claimed. "The present division creates artificial trade barriers, encourages inter-regional disputes and increases costs with no offsetting benefits." According to Farmland, a single order would serve the interests of both producers and processors and facilitate the creation of a northeast, processor-funded promotion fund.

Wenger Farmland Bill Approved By State Senate

HARRISBURG — Lancaster County farmers would benefit from nearly $3 million in farmland preservation money in the first round of funding as provided under legislation sponsored by Sen. Noah W. Wenger. By a unanimous 49-0 vote, the Senate approved Wenger's Senate Bill 1251 which establishes the procedure for distributing the $100 million in bond funds approved by the voters last November for farmland preservation.

Under the bill, the money will be distributed in three phases of $25 million, $35 million and $40 million. Half of the funds from each phase will be distributed as grants according to land transfer activity within the county. The second half will be distributed on a matching basis depending on the county's agricultural production.

In the first phase, which involves $25 million in bond issuances, Lancaster County would receive a $589,355 grant and $2,277,040 in matching funds. The county would be required to put up $284,630 in matching funds for the program.

According to Wenger, the money will be used to buy agricultural easements from farmers who volunteer for the program. The "easements" are similar to development rights in that they represent the right to prevent the development or improvement of the land for purposes other than agriculture.

Farmers who participate in the program would be offered the monetary difference between the value of their land for agriculture and the value of the land if developed in exchange for the development rights. Wenger stressed that the farmer does not lose his legal ownership nor is he restricted as to what type of agricultural activity may be conducted on the land once the development rights are transferred to the county. He also pointed out that no farmer will be forced or required to participate in the program.

Wenger explained that farmers may participate in the program only if their land is part of a designated agricultural area. The areas are established by the townships and must include 350 acres or more of land. To be included, land must meet certain criteria and must be in active farm use. The bill was amended on the Senate floor Monday to reduce the number of acres necessary to establish an agricultural security area from 500 to 350 acres.

In addition, Wenger's bill would establish a special board within the Department of Agriculture to certify county programs and distribute state funds. On the local level, county boards will be created to oversee the county programs.

"Farmers face many challenges because of the nature of working with the land," said Wenger. "They must deal with bad weather, disease and other set backs which may affect their future as farmers. But one challenge that drastically affects not only their own future but that of an entire industry is making the decision whether to continue famring or sell their land. Passage of this legislation will provide an additional option to a farm family that is trying to continue the farming tradition started by their ancestors.

"Agriculture is Pennsylvania's leading industry," Wenger said, "We have a responsibility to protect threatened farmland to ensure the future of farming and its related industries in the Commonwealth. If we don't, we may not only lose fertile soil, but a way of life in a state which thrives on the beauty and richness of the land."

Senate Bill 1251 now goes before the House.

through the farming heartlands your media covers.

"Through yesterday's Eyes" perhaps, but with a sincere concern with reference to the legacy we, today, leave our heirs and especially the farmers; perhaps in your letters (to the Editor) to the farm area you cover, you may see fit in helping destroy the apathy, what will be, will be; turning the other cheek and can't fight Wall Street, etc., etc. and on and on; by encouraging the tranquil farm folk to light their candles — to stand up and be heard! So the referees (politicians, etc) will be less likely to ignore the intrinsic agribusiness in or as regards the "Evolution of Excellence" through today's eyes.

We should, at the very least, seek full development and provisions of support incorporated by developers so as to provide justifiable results to our farm neighbors in any development, and not to add municipal-public service costs (police, water, sewage, storm water control, highway, schools, etc.) to those exploited as a subterfuge to the added tax base!

The salami slicing to appropriate public funding for such, as above, is already laborious.

Thanks for helping convey the message, "Let the farmers alone!"

Agribusiness and farming is as important to farm country, more so than tourist business!

Editor:

Dairy farmers and concerned citizens from throughout New York and the neighboring states will be converging on the State Capitol in Albany for the "Northeast Dairy Rally" on Monday, April 25.

It will be an opportunity to show support for the establishment of a Northeast Pact which would seek legislation to set a fair price for milk. We will also show support for the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency (RCMA), which negotiates premiums for farmers above the minimum price set by the federal government. Finally, we want to educate consumers that the economy of the Northeast is closely linked to the dairy farmers' survival.

These are critical times for Northeast dairy farmers. With our continued efforts, we hope to raise the farmers' income to a survivable level. Today, we are receiving almost three dollars less per hundred pounds of milk than in 1985. Government statistics say that the average dairy farmer is making $17,500 per year. That's less than we made in the early 1980s - and hardly enough to keep a family farm in business.

Furthermore, the declining number of dairy farms in the Northeast is alarming. In 1987 we lost an average of 50 farms per week - and the economic impact will be felt for a long time to come.

The situation doesn't look like it will improve unless we, farmers, take the initiative and work for solutions all citizens can live with.

I ask all dairy farmers and concerned citizens to join us at noon on April 25 in the park in front of the State Capitol. We need to show that farmers are serious about finding positive solutions to our problems.

Finally, if farmers would like to have a bus for their area, they may call me at (518-483-3658) or Dave and Cindy Rotman at (518-483-5266).

Editor:

January has passed, all of us dairy farmers again have to determine how to survive with another $.50 per hundred pounds of milk cut in our price. The reality of the milk surplus situation in the United States shows the cut wasn't necessary. Under the 1985 farm bill, when government purchases exceed 5 billion lbs., milk equivalent $.50 per hundred will be cut from our price we receive for milk. The 1987 milk surplus production was approximately 6.3 billion lbs., where approximately 6 billion pounds was utilized by permanent government programs, such as military, school lunch, elderly, W.I.C. etc. That leaves an estimated surplus of .3 billion lbs. in 1987. Dairy farmers should not be taking price cuts for production which the government calls surplus, but which actually is utilized by Legislative programs.

The government estimate for program utilization in 1988 is over 8 billion lbs. So, if nothing is done, next January we will see another .50 cut, due to the governments need for our milk to supply these programs. As of April 1, 1988, the surplus of dairy products is virtually gone, the reality is Uncle Sam does not have enough dairy products for the Legislative programs to help the elderly and needy.

I believe in Jesse Jackson's save the family farm ideology. He is a working mans brother, he is not buying our votes, he speaks the issues confronting all of us. His rivals say we will spend 3 million in this state or 5 million in the next state. Jesse Jackson won't say that, because he does not have it to spend.

He is concerned about the working population of our country. The basic question all common people have to ask themselves, are we going to let the wealthy bureaucrats run our lives forever?

John R. Soshinsky

"Ed King knows dairying on a number of different levels. He's been active in farm organizations and knows the players involved in the industry," Anna said.

RCMA has 22,000 members. The organization is designed to give farmers a say in establishing fair prices for their milk. In the face of massive cuts in Federal minimum prices, thousands of dairy farms have gone out of business in the Northeast in recent years. By charging over-order premiums — prices above the Federal order prices — RCMA provides additional needed income for dairy farmers. In just five months, RCMA has paid $10 million in premiums to its members.

"I'm looking forward to working with RCMA to secure the future of dairy farming in the region.

Offical Says Rural N.Y. Tied To Urban Residents

AUBURN, NY — The message must get out, that rural New York is bonded — economically, socially and in other ways as well — to the state's millions of urban residents, Joseph Gerace, Director of the Office of Rural Affairs, told a Cayuga County group last week.

Gerace was the guest speaker at the Cayuga County Farm Bureau's annual Rural-Urban Dinner in Auburn. Each year, local units of the statewide farming organization invite urban friends and associates to acquaint them with rural life and to underscore the need for mutual cooperation.

"We are taking much the same approach," Gerace said. "The Office of Rural Affairs is sponsoring a Rural New York Showcase at the Empire State Plaza in Albany the week of May 23. The main idea is to focus more attention on the important contributions of our three million rural New Yorkers who make up the third largest rural population in the United States.

"We will be holding a reception for the State Legislators and Agency Heads on May 24, during which they will have the chance to tour the displays which are coming from throughout the 49,000-square miles of rural New York. We want our 15,000,000 urban residents to know that they depend, more than many of them realize, on the people and products of the state's 44 rural counties."

"For too many years, rural New York has been overshadowed by the big-city skyscrapers," the ORA Director said. "Take Cayuga County, for example. Its farm output is the fifth highest in the state and its logging industry, in connection with neighboring Seneca County, recently had an annual output of a half-billion board-feet of lumber. That's enough to put a foot-wide board more than three times around the world!"

In addition to the Rural Showcase, ORA is in the process of creating "RAIN," a database to provide rural areas with information on financial and technical assistance available from state agencies for a variety of projects.

There also will be a series of regional meetings to discuss the needs of the rural areas, by region, with the participants invited to suggest some solutions to those concerns. The first such meeting will be in the Mohawk Valley in June, with the date and location to be announced.

In July, Cerace told the group, the Office of Rural Affairs will sponsor a pair of day-long conferences, one on rural health issues and the other on solid waste. Each meeting will give rural New Yorkers the opportunity to discuss the problems unique to their communities in the areas of health and solid waste. Hundreds of participants are expected from throughout the state to Albany to discuss their concerns with the commissioners of the departments involved. The Rural Health Conference, co-sponsored by the Department of Health, is planned for July 7, and the Rural Solid Waste Conference, co-sponsored by the Environmental Conservation Department, will be held July 21.

The Office of Rural Affairs was created in 1987 as the nation's first cabinet-level state agency dealing specifically with rural issues.

ing to Myers.

The contents of the 1990 farm bill will depend on what is accomplished in the present trade negotiations.

"If Japan and Europe don't cooperate, we will have the same type of program for most commodities with the exception of dairy, of course, and sugar and tobacco," Myers said.

The farm economy is expected to improve if Japan and Europe agree to reduce or eliminate tariffs and subsidies on agricultural products exported to their countries.

Myers affirmed his belief in the power of individuals and organizations to influence the direction of our government's agricultural policy. "If a farmer contributes money and works for a candidate, regardless of which party, and a farm-related issue comes up, he will be heard," Myers said.

FARMERS is an affiliate of the Pennsylvania Farmers Association.

USDA Deputy Secretary Peter C. Myers, right, chatted with Dr. Edwin J. Andrews, dean of the School of Veterinary Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, while at the FARMERS fundraiser Thursday night.

Draft Horse Clinic Slated For Early May

UNIVERSITY PARK — A draft horse clinic is scheduled to be held on Saturday, May 7, from 9:00 a.m. - 3:00 p.m. at The Penn State University Ag Arena.

The clinic will feature: care of mares, feeding, stallion management and artificial insemination, basic foot care and an introduction to Scotch Bottom Shoeing, horse first aid, colic, worming, harnessing and cart driving, hitching the team, and showmanship at halter.

The clinic registration fee is $12.00 per person. Reservations must be made by April 23rd.

The "Draft Horse Clinic" is being sponsored by The Pennsylvania Draft Horse and Mule Association and the Penn State College of Agriculture Extension Service.

For additional information about this clinic please contact the Wayne County Extension Office at 717-253-5970 ext. 114 or stop in. We are located in the Courthouse basement in Honesdale.

Introducing the new
MAGNUM 7110

And the first all-new tractors from Case IH

Case IH put more into the new MAGNUM Tractor line than any farm tractors developed in over twenty years. Here's why you'll get more out of it:

MAGNUM means more. Outstanding field performance from a new 505-cubic-inch turbocharged engine with reserve power. MAGNUM power.

The MAGNUM Tractor's powershift puts 18 speeds of shift-on-the-go workpower at your fingertips — standard. And only MAGNUM Tractors offer full powershift creeper transmission with six additional speeds from .5 to 2.1 mph for more control and performance. MAGNUM performance.

The MAGNUM Tractor's new larger cab has 48 square feet of window area — virtually unobstructed visibility — and more seating comfort. MAGNUM comfort.

It all adds up: The Case IH MAGNUM 7110 Tractor sets new standards for the 130 hp (97 kW) class — and for you. See us for details.

MAGNUM means more.

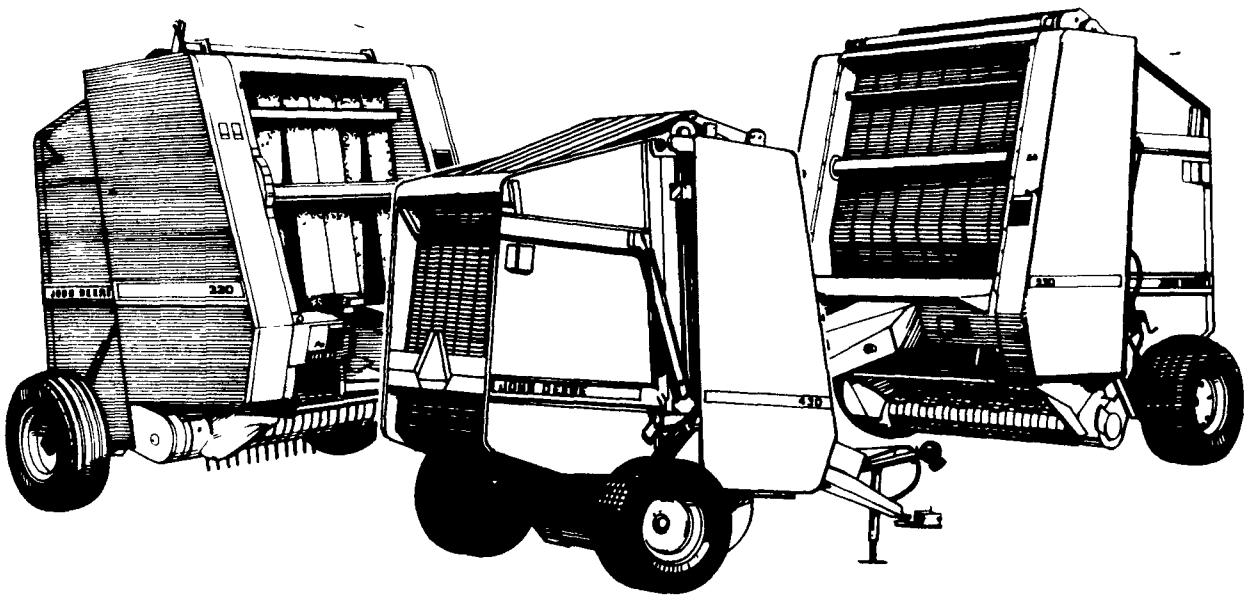
PERFECT ROUND BALES. NO TRICK TO IT



- It used to be pretty tricky to make good round bales. Now with John Deere round balers, even inexperienced operators can make perfect, firm, round bales. Just about anyone who can drive can do it — especially with the help of Bale-Trak® monitoring.
- Bale-Trak monitoring tells you where to steer, when the gate is closed, and what the bale size is. Twine wrapping is automatic. Bale-Trak monitoring is unique — and standard on our 1400- and 1850-pound bale models.
- If you want a smaller bale or an economy round baler, you get both in our 650-pound baler unit. It shares many big baler features, in trimmer form.
- Ask us to set up a demonstration. There's no trick to that.

JOHN DEERE

LEADERSHIP YOU CAN COUNT ON

Our riders won't leave you lurching in the clutch

Forget about rolling downhill while clutching to shift gears In fact, you can pretty well forget about clutching at all, except when you want to go into reverse. The John Deere RX and SX riding mowers feature true shift on-the-go transmissions. You can shift through any of seven forward speeds without using the clutch

Often you don't even have to downshift Just depressing a pedal will slow you down

Other new features: a tilting seat that also adjusts to your leg length Controls that are within comfortable reach Sector-and-pinion steering that takes just one spin lock to lock. One of the tightest (17-inch) turning radiuses in the business. Powerful high-torque engines, 6, 9 and 12½ hp.

Choose from six models, 26-, 30- or 38- inch cut, recoil or electric start. Stop in and see about John Deere RX and SX Riding Mowers

A Behind The Scenes Look At An Old-Fashioned Dutch Country Auction

BY LOU ANN GOOD

MANHEIM — Old-fashioned country sales with auctioneers hawking their wares punctuate the season's air. The aroma of barbeque chicken and freshly-made french fries tempt eager bidders to nearby food stands layered with scrumptious goodies such as fresh strawberry pies topped with whipped cream.

Schools, churches, charities and other organizations have come to realize there's money to made in these sales. And for many of them, sales have become an annual event.

One of these—Manheim Christian Day School Dutch Country Auction—debuts the last Saturday of every April. Each of its twelve years gathers more momentum and more profit. This year promises to be no exception. Their goal is $100,000. No easy feat for the school's patrons, but then they admit they couldn't do it alone, not if the community and other interested persons didn't pitch in with their donations and talents.

It's not surprising that many of those dedicated, behind-the-scenes volunteers happen to be farm wives. Their attitutes are typical of Marlene Martin's who says, "Somebody got to do it or it wouldn't get done."

Marlene, her husband Earl and their children, Jody, 11; Eric, 9; Brian, 5; and Audrey, 3; live on 104-acre Manheim farm. This year, Marlene is secretary for the sale. That means she needs to keep extensive records on the 270 businesses that donate things such as gift certificates, pottery, Manheim glass, wooden handicrafts, Winross trucks, hot air balloon rides and more.

Marlene said she volunteered for the position because she loves to type.

For those who do not enjoy typing, plenty remains to be done. For some volunteers like Shirley Sauder, who with her husband Glenn and sons Duane, 13 and Jason, 9, lives on a 90-acre farm with a farrow to finish hog operation, the sale requires year-round work. Shirley helps head the quilt committee which contacts some well-known and not so well-known but capable seamtresses to piece quilts for the sale which has earned repute for their unique top-quality quilts. Annually the sale draws people from many states, even from as far away as California.

Those who help make it a success include friends and relatives of school patrons. One is 99-year-old, Lizzie Longenecker who pieced a quilt for the auction because her grandchildren attend the school.

Shirley isn't overwhelmed by the many hours that she spends trying to make each year more successful. She said, "I like the idea of creating something and working out of my home." She finds it exciting to choose new quilt patterns and colors and see what the finished quilt looks like She stresses that color can make or break the success of a quilt's sale. "There must be enough of contrast to have a pattern stand out. If colors are too much the same shade, it isn't nearly as striking."

Shirley with other committee members piece and mark the quilting designs on several of the quilts which they give to church sewing circles and interested individuals to quilt.

Although Shirley's tiny quilting stitches match the best of the best, she remarked that the average person looks more at the colors than the workmanship of the quilts.

The sale will feature 40 full-sized quilts, no two alike, but the one Shirley expects to bring top dollar was donated by an anoyomous Amish lady. Shirley explained, "It's elegantly embroidered with 115 roses, all in antique white with more than 900 yards of quilting thread."

Other quilts to be auctioned include a Rose of Sharon, Country Bride, Sampler, Pineapple and Lovebirds, Sunshine Diamond, Boston Commons, Philadelphia Pavement and Wheel of Fortune.

Like other sales, the items are not limited to quilts, pillows, and other needlecrafts. There's lawn and garden equipment, housewares, furniture, carpet and an Old John Deere pedal tractor that has been restored. A 3-D handcrafted painting by Abner Zook features a 30x48-inch colonial mill scene with a stone arch bridge. Of special interest to Manheim residents, is a painting by well-known artist Linn Longenecker who spent over 200 hours sketching and painting the Manheim Square. Artist Ned Foltz has donated several specially crafted pottery pieces for the auction.

Like last year, the world's largest sausage pattie will be served. Interested bidders can top it off by eating a piece of a 100-pound intricately decorated cake by Willow Valley Bakery.

The auction actually begins on Friday evening with a sale preview, a chicken barbecue and an old-fashioned hymn sing by six local quartets. On April 30, a country breakfast of sausage, egg omelet and pancakes will be served from 6:30 to 9. The auction begins at 8 a.m. and the quilts will be sold at 1 p.m.

Mel Burkholder, chairman of the sale, stresses, "To make the

The 3-D handcrafted painting by Abner Zook features a 30x48-inch colonial mill scene with a stone arch bridge.

Manheim residents will take special interest in this picture of the Manheim square sketched by well-known artist Linn Longenecker.

A giant Dahlia wallhanging will complement one of the quilts to be sold at the auction. Shirley likes to have items like these to work on during evening hours.

Three-year-old Audrey Martin thinks of all the fun she could have with this wooden wagon that will be auctioned on April 30.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Our mailbox is about one-third a mile from our house. This proves to be quite inconvenient at times--if we forget to mail a letter or arrive at our box before the mail is delivered. The delivery time varies by as much as an hour or more.

Anyway, one day this spring when I opened the mailbox and found no mail, I decided to take a walk in the woods. When I was a young girl, my sisters and I always spent a Sunday afternoon looking at and picking wildflowers. There were hepaticas with their delicate blue flowers and bloodroot whose stems oozed an orange juice. The Dutchmen's-breeches were an oddity with their cream-white double-spurred flowers. Some of them had a pinkish tint.

On this particular day I also picked a lot of dogtoothed violets with their mottled leaves. Then I came upon a hillside facing the river where someone had planted daffodils around the jutting rocks. It was a beautiful sight.

One sight that was not so beautiful was a discarded refrigerator that had been tossed into the wooded area. At least, the door was removed but it lay nearby with some rusted bed springs.

It seems to be a great temptation for passerbys to throw unwanted articles on a farmer's field. Recently, I picked up 18 beer bottles from an alfalfa field near the road. Car tires, metal cabinets, and even stoves are a familiar sight in wooded areas.

We do appreciate it when the neighbors ask where they may dump their grass clippings and dead leaves. But, too many simply put them at the nearest spot on our property.

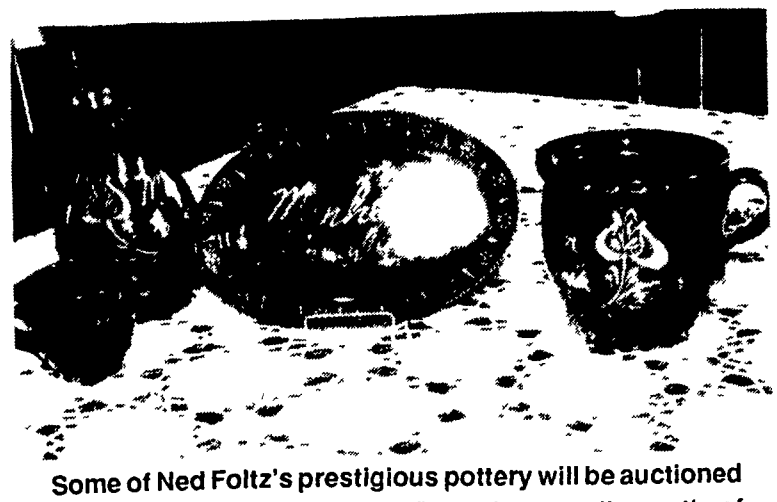
sale a success is not the result of a few persons' efforts but a lot of work from a many people."

It takes many volunteers dedicated to overseeing, making projects and food and donating housewares, machinery, lawn and farm equipment. Creating a successful sale is not a haphazard event.

For those who spend many hours striving for the best sale ever, Shirley says, "Satisfaction comes when the handicrafts bring prices worthy of their workmanship."



Some of Ned Foltz's prestigious pottery will be auctioned at the Manheim Christian Day School, one mile north of Manheim.

Getting Organized

Ice cream and cake, pen and paper, needle and thread, spring and housecleaning. Now, you pick out the one that doesn't go together. Personally, the thought of joining such a pleasant season as spring with the reality of housecleaning is non-harmonious in my mind. However, it does seem that somewhere in our "roots" those two items have been paired together for as long as we have said cookies and milk!

Even I must admit that the thought of new life in spring does coordinate with freshness in the home. So, I too, will probably continue this gallant effort of trying once again to get things in order. However, there is one idea that we could be trying that would make spring cleaning this year have long term affects.

The first item is not cleaning, but rather clutter control! I believe this is the key! I don't mind the cleaning, it is the constant "pick-up" of disorganized clutter that takes the most time, especially when it is repeated over and over again.

The initial phase is to have the right frame of mind. Put on some fast-paced music, open the windows, and set aside a block of time. Next, get several empty bags or boxes. Label the boxes in the following way: move to another room, garage sale or give away, put in another room, and a big box for throw away.

Then choose a room to begin and place your four boxes inside the room. To be able to see your progress, begin in one corner of the room and work clockwise.

Don't take on more than you can handle. Set an amount of time that you will work. Then methodically handle each item you come to, categorizing the item in the appropriate box. This way you will be able to see the most progress and this encouragement will help you to get the job done.

The most difficult part is deciding what to throw away. Some key questions to ask yourself are: When did I last use this item? Is it worth its' cost in maintaining it, storing, insuring or moving it? With clothing, a general rule of thumb is that if you have not worn it in the past season, you probably will not wear it next year. These "skeletons" are only making clutter in your closet. There are other persons who would really appreciate these items. Inquire with the local clothing banks or second hand shops as to their needs or requirements.

In my early years of housecleaning, I started by making memory boxes. These boxes held special high school and college momentos, prom flowers, and other "valuable" stuff. Now, I have shelves full of memory boxes and that's before my daughter has started creating art work. A possible solution is to sort through the memory boxes. This is a great job to do on a sunny day when you would rather be outside. Take the memory box out to the patio, porch or picnic table and go through it. Keep one of a set, or one flower out of a bouquet. Another option is to take a picture of items that have great sentimental value but are really not worth the room they take up. A photo takes much less room.

Probably the best reason to do spring cleaning is that it rejuvinates each of us when it is completed. So enough talk, let's get out there and get organized. And a quote from Ralph Waldo Emerson applies here, "Don't waste life in doubts and fears; spend yourself on the work before you, well assured that the right performance of this hour's duties will be the best preparation for the hours or ages which follow it!

New Ways With Yogurt

Whether spooned from the carton, savored frozen on a stick, or used as an ingredient, yogurt's great taste and good nutrition fit the way we cook and eat today. And few foods are as versatile, going from breakfast to dinner without missing a beat. Discover just how versatile yogurt can be by trying these quick and easy serving suggestions.

Rise and shine...

•Serve fresh fruit with a vanilla yogurt "dip." Add a bran muffin or toasted bagel for a complete breakfast.

•Spoon vanilla yogurt over ready-to-eat or hot cooked cereal and top with raisins and cinnamon.

•Make a yogurt breakfast parfait by layering plain or fruit-flavored yogurt with ready-to-eat cereal and dried or fresh fruit.

•Top frozen toaster waffles or pancakes with yogurt and fruit.

•Blend plain yogurt with maple syrup and spoon on french toast.

•Make a breakfast shake by combining fruit-flavored yogurt, milk and a banana in blender or food processor. Serve over ice.

Brown-bag it...

•Substitute plain yogurt for mayonnaise in chicken or tuna salad and stuff into a tomato.

•Season plain yogurt with herbs and serve as a dip with assorted raw veggies and whole grain crackers.

•Combine plain yogurt and tomato juice; season to taste with dill and fresh pepper and chill. Transport in a thermos and serve topped with croutons.

•For dessert, tuck in a carton of frozen fruit-flavored yogurt. By lunchtime it will be thawed and ready to stir and eat.

After five...

•Top baked potatoes or broiled tomatoes with plain yogurt and snipped chives.

•Garnish burgers with tomato slice and plain yogurt.

•Spoon plain yogurt (at room temperature) seasoned with dill and a squirt of lemon juice over baked fish fillets. Return to oven for 2 to 3 minutes, until topping is hot.

•Combine plain yogurt with your favorite salad dressing mix. Spoon over assorted salad greens.

•Toss cooked pasta or brown rice with lightly steamed vegetables, cubes of cooked chicken and plain yogurt seasoned with soy suace and a few drops of sesame oil. Serve at room temperature or chilled.

Sweet temptations...

•Spoon lightly sweetened fruit over split baking powder biscuits; top with vanilla yogurt and more fruit.

•Layer pound cake cubes, peach slices and raspberry yogurt in dessert dishes; garnish with toasted almonds.

•Sweeten plain yogurt to taste with brown sugar and spoon over berries, peaches or seedless grapes.

•Fill dessert crepes with coffee yogurt; drizzle with chocolate sauce.

•Alternate layers of flavored or fruit-added yogurt in parfait glasses with crushed cookies and chopped nuts or flaked coconut. Add your favorite extract to yogurt before layering.

Snacktime or anytime...

•Spear bananas with wooden ice cream sticks and freeze. Roll in vanilla or fruit-flavored yogurt, then coconut or chopped nuts to coat completely; freeze until firm.

•Stir sundae-style yogurt just until marbleized. Spoon into small paper cups and partially freeze. Insert wooden ice cream stick or plastic spoon in center of each and freeze firm.

BLUEBERRY MUFFINS

1 cup non-fat blueberry yogurt
3 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons light brown sugar
1 egg
2 tablespoons low-fat or skim milk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1½ cups flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup fresh, frozen or canned (drained) blueberries

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Cream together the butter and brown sugar. Beat in the egg. Stir in the milk, yogurt and vanilla until smooth. Sift together the flour, baking soda, baking powder and salt.

Stir dry ingredients into wet ingredients just to combine (no more than 20 seconds). Stir in blueberries. Spray muffin tin or use paper liners. Spoon the mixture into 12 regular or 6 large muffin cups. Bake 25 to 30 minutes or until muffins are lightly browned. About 125 calories per regular size muffin.

YOGURT-TOPPED BAKED APPLES

6 baking apples
¼ cup chopped nuts
3 tablespoons firmly packed brown sugar
2 tablespoons seedless raisins
½ cup apple juice
YOGURT SAUCE:
1 carton (8-ounces) plain yogurt
2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
2 teaspoons lemon peel
¼ teaspoon vanilla extract

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Wash and core apples; place in baking dish. Combine nuts, brown sugar and raisins; fill centers of apples. Pour juice into bottom of dish. Bake 45 to 50 minutes, or until apples are tender. Meanwhile combine yogurt, sugar, lemon peel and vanilla. Chill sauce, covered, 1 hour to allow flavors to blend. Serve apples warm topped with sauce. Serves 6.

FROZEN RASPBERRY YOGURT

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
4 containers (8-ounces) raspberry yogurt
1 package (10-ounces) frozen raspberries in juice, thawed

Sprinkle gelatin over water in small saucepan to soften. Stir over low heat until dissolved. Blend yogurt and raspberries in work bowl of food processor or blender until smooth. Stir about 1 cup of yogurt mixture into dissolved gelatin; return to work bowl of food processor. Blend until well combined. Pour into freezer can of ice cream freezer. Churn—freeze according to manufacturer's directions. Ripen in freezer 30 to 60 minutes.

For soft-frozen yogurt, remove dasher. Cover can with aluminum foil. ripen 30 minutes; pack with ice and salt according to manufacturer's directions. For hard-frozen yogurt, transfer yogurt to freezer container; ripen in freezer at least 3 hours before serving.

Featured Recipe

No dairy food is gaining in popularity like yogurt. New Ways with Yogurt, a new booklet from the American Dairy Association, offers you a wealth of information on ready-to-eat yogurts and yogurt products, handling tips, nutritional information and appealing recipes for today's lifestyles.

The recipes are divided into appetizers, beverages, salads and side dishes, entrees, desserts and quick serving suggestions. The collection reflects updated all-American favorites like Hunter-Style Pot Roast, Extra Creamy Potato Salad and Double Chocolate Muffins as well as internationally-influenced fare, including Chicken Satay, Oriental Noodle Salad, Rotini in Spicy Raita and Chicken Tandoor-Style. Full-color photos of some of the recipes add sparkle, and microwave tips and practical information for the growing number of cooks who prefer to use this quick and versatile appliance. The booklet can be obtained by mailing a self-addressed envelope to: Yogurt Booklet, 216 Carroll Building, 8600 LaSalle Road, Towson, MD 21204.

While waiting for the booklet, try the following recipe released by the American Dairy Association.

Yogurt Pasta Toss
4 servings

1½ cups plain lowfat yogurt
½ teaspoon EACH: thyme, rosemary
¼ teaspoon EACH: salt, pepper
1 pound Italian sausage, casing removed
1 small leak, cut into julienne strips
8 ounces uncooked linguine
1 cup cooked peas
10 cherry tomatoes, quartered

Combine yogurt and seasonings. Refrigerate, covered, 1 to 2 hours to allow flavors to blend. Meanwhile, cook sausage and leek over medium heat until sausage is brown and crumbly. Drain off excess fat. Cook linguine according to package directions; drain. Combine sausage-leak mixture, peas, tomatoes and pasta. Toss with yogurt mixture. Serve immediately.

QUESTION - Cheryl Miller, Hellam, requests a recipe for cooked lemonade.

QUESTION - Arlene Deibert, Lingerstown, requests a recipe for Apple Butter Custard Pie.

QUESTION - Rebecca Bechdel, Mill Hall, is looking for a recipe for Dutch Cake. She recalls that her grandmother used to bake it in round cake pans, cut it like pie and then dip it in coffee or tea.

QUESTION - Leah Ann Babcock, Oxford, requests a recipe for Peanut Soup.

QUESTION - A reader from Narvon requests recipes for pot pourri that can be simmered on the stove for aroma.

ANSWER - V. Martin requested an Animal Cracker recipe. Thanks S. Fisher of York for sharing yours.

Animal Crackers

Cream:
1 cup white sugar
1 cup brown sugar (cream)
⅔ cup butter or lard
Add:
1 egg
Beat smooth. Sift the following ingredients and add alternately with milk.
1 cup sour milk
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon nutmeg or mace
5 cups flour

Roll, cut, and bake at 400 degrees for 10-12 minutes. They taste like the commercial Animal Crackers, especially if you soften them slightly by putting a bread crust in the cookie jar.

ANSWER - A. Arnold, Middlesex, N.Y., requested a recipe for making tiny coconut nests for Easter. Sorry, its too late for this year, but a reader wrote to say the recipe appears on the wrapper for the Holiday Pastel Candies by Hershey.

ANSWER - Grace Weaver, Annville, requested a recipe for peach marmalade that has crushed pineapple in it. Thanks to 15 readers who mailed in the following recipe.

Peach Marmalade

5 cups blended peaches
7 cups sugar
1 can crushed pineapple
1 (6-ounce) box flavored gelatin (raspberry, orange, peach or apricot)

Boil fruit, sugar and pineapple for 15 minutes Stir in gelatin and boil until dissolved. Pour into jelly containers. Cool. Freeze or seal

ANSWER - Marcia Brady requested recipes for dressings and sauces to top fruit salad Although we printed some in last week's paper we received many more

Refresher Salad

12 envelopes unflavored gelatin
No. 2½ can crushed pineapple
Juice of 1 lemon
2 oranges
2 bananas
1 can mandarin oranges
Few Marschino cherries

2¼ cups unsifted flour
2 cups sugar
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 cup butter
1 8-ounce cup of pineapple yogurt
3 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel

Measure flour, sugar, salt and soda into large bowl Stir thoroughly. Add butter, yogurt, eggs, and vanilla to dry ingredients. Beat at slow speed until all ingredients are moistened. Beat at medium speed for 4 minutes, scraping sides of bowl frequently. Remove beaters and stir in lemon peel. Turn into well-greased 12 cup bundt pan. Bake at 300 degrees for 60-65 minutes.

Questions Consumers Ask About Yogurt

How is yogurt made?

If Yogurt is made by a fermentation process Desirable bacteria added to milk, skim milk and/or cream convert lactose (milk sugar) to lactic acid. The acid thickens the milk and creates the tangy flavor characteristic of yogurt.

How long can I keep unopened yogurt in the refrigerator?

Unopened yogurt stored at 40°F. or lower normally will remain fresh for at least 10 days past the code date stamped on the carton. Yogurt which has been "heat-treated" during processing will keep longer The words heat-treated after culturing on the carton tell you that the yogurt was so processed The temperature of the refrigerator plays a critical role in the freshness of dairy products. The closer to 35f. your refrigerator is, the longer your dairy products will last.

Does all yogurt contain active cultures?

No. Heat-treated yogurt does not contain active culture and therefore is not as beneficial to the body as yogurt that contains active cultures

Is all yogurt lowfat?

No. There are three types of yogurt with varying amounts of milkfat. Yogurt, sometimes called whole milk yogurt, must contain at least 3.25 percent milkfat. Lowfat yogurts contain between 0.5 and 2 percent milkfat. Nonfat yogurt must contain less than 0.5 percent milkfat. All three types are available both plain and flavored.

Is yogurt as nutritious as milk?

Yes. Yogurt and milk are both excellent sources of calcium, riboflavin (vitamin B_2) and protein.

Why is gelatin added to some brands of yogurt?

Gelatin is a stabilizer. It often is added to swiss-style and pudding-type yogurts for a firmer texture. Because swiss-style and pudding-type yogurt are fermented in vats rather than in the carton, they must be thinned before they can be pumped into the retail-size containers. A stabilizer such as gelatin causes the yogurt to re-gel.

Why do I sometimes find a layer of liquid on the surface of the yogurt when I open the carton?

The liquid is milk whey, and separation may occur even in the freshest yogurts Just stir the liquid back into the yogurt.

I suffer from lactose sensitivity and have problems drinking milk. Can I eat yogurt?

Quite possibly. Studies have shown that active cultures in yogurt make it more easily digested than milk by adults who suffer from lactose sensitivity.

I love the fruit-flavored yogurts but not the calories. Any suggestions?

Add fresh fruit or no-sugar-added fruit preserves to plain lowfat yogurt.

Can yogurt be frozen?

Swiss-style and pudding-type yogurts can be successfully frozen for smooth snacks or desserts. Frozen plain or flavored yogurts tend to have large, coarse ice crystals.

When using yogurt as a garnish, how can I keep it from thinning out?

Don't stir it. Stirring thins yogurt. Spoon it gently from the carton when using it as a garnish.

Make Way For Henry And Henrietta

BY LOU ANN GOOD

MANHEIM — Ten-year-old Corby Burkholder cares for many pets on his Manheim farm These days, his pets keep multiplying. First, Katy, a poodle, had four puppies But the most unusal pets are Henry and Henrietta. They are not the typical pets because Henry and Henrietta are long-necked white swans.

Corby's parents, Mel and Gloria Burkholder, and his brothers Matt, 14, and Lane, 12, enjoy watching the swans swim on their large pond. Like other male swans, Henry is very domineering and completely rules the pond by refusing others to swim in it. When the geese try to sneak a swim on the pond, Henry chases them off.

Although Henry is mean to other birds, he is gentle and loving with his mate Henrietta

Several years ago, the Burkholders bought the pair of swans, that keep the same partners for life, and then clipped their wings so they couldn't migrate like others of their species do

To tame the swans, the Burkholders tossed bread cubes to Henry and Henrietta Each time they threw the bread a little closer to shore until at last they had them eating from their hands. Generally the swans are fed chicken feed, but when Henry and Henrietta are hungry for bread, they waddle up the steps and stand along the walkway hoping someone will throw them some bread.

The domesticated swans have a suprise planned. Mother swan is now warming five eggs which will hatch in a few weeks. The Burkholders have tried to make her nesting ground inside the barn a safe place to hatch eggs.

Since mother swan is busy hatching her eggs, daddy Henry has become wary of eating bread from Corby's hand. No doubt, he'll be a lot happier when Henrietta rejoins him on the pond.

The Burkholders penned up their geese because last year the geese laid eggs in the same nest as the swans. Mother swan did not appreciate their addition so she refused to hatch them.

While mother swan faithfully stays on her nest, father swan guards her from a distance. He is easily upset by strangers and not nearly as friendly as he had been. He swims angrily around the pond, ruffles his fine feathers and honks noisily. No doubt, he is worried that someone might destroy the eggs.

Even after the eggs hatch, the baby swans will need to be watched closely so that racoons, skunks and other animals do not kill them.

When the eggs hatch, the swans will go back to their old habit of sleeping on the pond during the night so they are protected from animals. During the day, they take little naps on the grassy shore between their water playtimes.

So, if you visit the Burkholder farm, make way for Henry and Henrietta and their little ones. There's certain to be plenty of splashing and ducking in the pond, but they won't allow you to join in their fun

The mother swan, Henrietta, makes herself comfortable by resting her neck on her downy feathers. It will take 28 days before her five eggs will hatch.

Katy, the poodle, had four pups one week ago. Corby said, "When they get to be eight weeks old, we will sell them.

Morris the cat grows fat and lazy in the Burkholder home.

Corby has an outside and an inside dog with which to play.

Have You Heard?

By Doris Thomas
Lancaster Extension Home Economist

Where Do You Fit In?

A survey by Parade Magazine, as reported by the University of Pennsylvania, turned up some interesting facts about what we Americans eat:

Last year, Americans ate 923 million gallons of ice cream; that is more than 15 quarts per person.

Fish and seafood consumption has grown to 30 percent; seafood entrees outshell beef at restaurants.

Bottled water is a million-dollar-a-year industry; with sales increasing by more than 300 percent since 1975.

More than 95 percent of all American households eat pizza. Pizza Hut, the world's largest chain, is experimenting with a pizza oven-delivery truck that bakes the pizza in route to your home.

About 38 percent of all men surveyed skip breakfast; also a common practice among college students.

For the third year in a row, gardening is the favorite outdoor activity, with tomatoes being the favorite crop; new vegetables arriving on the scene are white eggplant and purple potatoes.

Not too surprising (to women, that is); 92 percent do the food shopping; 94 percent do the cooking despite nearly 60 percent of the labor force being women.

A 1986 survey shows that 60 percent of the American women are size 12 or larger; 31 percent, size 16 or larger. Statistics show the average adult weighs six pounds more than in the 1960's Old habits die hard! Experts say it can take up three months to replace them with new habits. So be patient.

Decorate Your Home With Satin

"Luxury" is a buzz word in home decorating circles. So satin's popularity is no surprise. This rich simmering fabric adds a touch to any decor It is most often found in elaborate window treatments and bedroom furnishings.

Satin, originally from China, was made of silk when introduced in Europe during the Middle Ages. Today most satin is made of man-made fibers. That is a definite advantage to any home because of the easy care of these fibers.

Different man-made fibers create different characteristics although each produces a lustrous and smooth fabric. Nylon, used mostly in knitted satins, is found in apparel and lingerie rather than in home furnishings. Acetate, knitted or woven, and sometimes blended with nylon, has a high luster. Polyester has become the more important fiber for satin furnishings in recent years.

In the past, one of the drawbacks to satin bedding was the poor performance of satin when washed. This was particularly true of acetate or acetate blends with the tendency of sheeting to wrinkle or shrink after washing and drying. Today, washability is no longer a problem, particularly with the polyester fabrics. Most are machine washable and dryable.

Satin bedding has been improved and whether knitted or woven, of acetate or polyester construction, it is easier to care for and more durable.

Finishes have also contributed to improved fabrics. They have been applied to give a softer hand, provide soil-release properties, increase absorbency and prevent snagging during use.

While the traditional styles and solid colors are the most popular in bedding, manufacturers are quilting, embroidering, ruffling and adding lace. Some softer and newer pastels like champagne, peach, rose and light blue have been added to the old stand-by colors of red, black, burgundy and royal blue.

The range of satin furnishings is expanding. In additions to sheets and comforters, accessories include pillows, neck rolls, shams, dust ruffles and window treatments as coordinates. Satin can also be seen in shower curtains.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

How many times has it happened to you?

You're out in the garden trying to beat a storm, or way at the far end of the barn delivering a calf from your best cow, or the jelly has just gone into the rolling boil stage.

At the most crucial point of the job at hand, what do you hear?

Why, the insistent ringing of the telephone, of course.

If you don't sprint to answer it, you'll discover later that it was your spouse in need of a ride because of an equipment breakdown. Or a youngster sick at school needing a way home. Or a good neighbor keeping a wary eye on the pack of heifers munching their way through his most lush alfalfa stand.

And, if you do make the mad dash to answer the jangling instrument, it'll no doubt be a computer-sales pitch offering something you wouldn't buy on a bet, even if you could afford it. Or a wrong number whose instigator hangs up without so much as an apologetic "I'm sorry."

Having lived through Telephone Tyranny for many years, too busy often to answer but too aware of emergencies not to, there seemed only two solutions.

Yanking out the phone was not a suitable one. It's far too much an absolutely necessity of our business, as irreplaceable as artificial insemination for cows or a farm pickup.

An answering machine seemed the only way to go.

No, I never particularly cared for talking to them either. And, neither did the farmer. But for the last couple of years, since microchip technology made the units compact and affordable, an answering machine climbed high on the list of things I was going to add to the household.

When a local store ran a phone sale on a day when farm errands needed tended in the same vicinity, we finally acquired what I hoped would be at least a partial solution to Telephone Tyranny.

Promptly setup by the youngest, who finds such technical-gadgetry irresistible, the machine and its recorder immediately became to issue of a raging debate! What message would encourage wary callers to use the thing?

The standard generic request to leave name, number and brief message seemed the logical direction.

"Too boring!" declared the youngest, promptly inspired to create something more unique. Though impressed with his poetry, we greatly disappointed him with our stubborn refusal to install a "rap" message on the machine. (For those of you without teenagers in the house, "rap" is a popular rythmic, spoken verse which rhymes, delivered against a background of rock music.)

Now, rap may be hip, and it may be cool, but we vetoed it as definitely un-businesslike and likely to dumbfound our callers. Just for the record, here's what callers WON'T hear on our answering machine:

"Here's a little story I got to tell, (grammar isn't important in rap)

About the Bupp family you know so well,

They can't talk now as you can see

Leroy, Joyce, Patty or Rich - that's me.

So if you'd be so kind, at the sound of the bell,

Leave your name and what you'd like to tell.

Just as certainly as the cows go "Moo".

When we get home, we'll get back to you."

In spite of the Farmer's aversion to talking to machines, he's become a believer after several messages of considerable and timely importance have turned up on the micro-cassette. Messages which might have never gotten to us otherwise in a timely fashion

And, we more appreciate machines of others, where we can leave a message, instead of dialing, dialing and redialing many times when there's no answer.

So, please leave your name, your number and a brief message.

And you might leave your number a second time, because sometimes I forget to grab a pen and paper when I hit the message button.

And we'll get back to you just as soon as possible.

Honest, we will.

Indiana County Contestants Needed

MARION — The Indiana County Dairy Princess Promotions Committee have begun their search for a new Dairy Princess.

Interested girls are asked to contact Cindy Deabenderfer at 412-463-0321.

A get-acquainted tea is planned for May 10, 1988 at the Trinity United Methodist Church, Social Room at 7:30 p.m. The annual pageant is scheduled for late June, with a parade of future Dairy Princesses, ranging from ages 8 to 12-years-old.

The winner of the county Dairy Princess Pageant, will attend a summer training-session, and also represent Indiana County in the State Dairy Princess Pageant this September.

Farm Women Societies

Lancaster Society 25

Lancaster County Society of Farm Women 25 entertained Society 24 and officers at the Farm and Home Center, April 9. Twenty-nine women attended.

Three members of the Wingert group entertained with songs accompanied by a harp and electric piano.

On April 23, Society 25 will hold a food sale at John Herr's, Millersville.

Society 26 will entertain them at the Neffsville Mennonite Church on April 28.

The next meeting will be May 14 at the home of Anna Boose, Conestoga. Mr. Taylor from U.G.I. will speak.

Lancaster Society 20

Lancaster Farm Women Society 20 held their April meeting at the Memorial United Methodist Church, Quarryville on April 7. They entertained Societies #15, #19 and Chester County #3.

In keeping with the Japan theme, the tables were decorated with tiny brightly colored parasols in a small favor cup with jelly eggs. Table favors of small Japanese fans and potted plants were given to lucky persons.

Devotions were conducted by Barbara Stone. Members donated twenty saddle bags to the Masonic Home, Elizabethtown, and 300 bed pads to Luther Acres. The Ways and Means Committee reported the food stand at the Horse Races at Andrews Bridge was a success with more than $1,000 profit.

Nancy Lefever spoke on the exchange program. Currently they have had seven young people living with them. They visited their Japanese friends and Nancy displayed handiwork and china from Japan.

The May meeting will be a tour of the Capitol building.

Lancaster Society 24

Lancaster Farm Women Society 24 met at the home of Mrs. Joseph Greiner, Leola, on Tuesday, March 29 at 7:30 p.m. Susann Strayer, Lititz, spoke on "Stress Management." She said, "Learning to manage stress is like filling a tool box. Each additional tool adds more expertise to making life work."

The Ways and Means Committee annouced a rummage sale to be held on Tuesday, April 12, at the Conestoga Church of the Brethren Pavilion from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Lancaster Society 34

Lancaster Farm Women Society 34 met on March 21 at the home of Ruth Rankin. Carol Groff and Sue Rutt were co-hostesses.

The sub sale will be April 7. Society 34 will entertain Society 33 on May 23. Society 35 will entertain Society 34 on April 5 at Shady Maple. The Spring Rally will be May 19.

Ruth Rankin and her daughter Pam from Maple Croft presented a home decorating program.

The chance off was won by Debbie Zug. The next meeting will be at Darlene Kreider's on April 18. The program will be on radon gas.

4-H HAPPENINGS

Lebanon County Tractor

The Lebanon County 4-H Tractor Club honored member and leader achievements at the recent awards night. The evening program featured a video presentation on John Deere Days.

Awards were presented to members by 4-H club leaders Fran and Dale Bushong, Ivan Hanson, and John Balmer. The 1988 Outstanding Club Members were Terry Nagle, Jason Krall, Daryl Wampler, and Scott Grubb. Members receiving recognition for their educational demonstrations included Tom Hostetter, Jason Krall, Michelle Bushong, and Stephanie Nagle.

Members with the highest scores on the farm safety test were Terry Nagle, Steve Bollinger, Wayne Heagy, Daryl Wampler, and Dan Shirk. Winners of the club tractor-driving contest were Kevin SEllers, Wayne Heagy, Daryl Wampler, and Scott Grubb.

Cumberland County Dairy

Adams County Beef

1987 4-H Beef Club member Stan Reever of East Berlin was presented a trophy and a plaque for being the outstanding first-year member. Presenting the award was leader Charles Sherman.

Lebanon County Livestock

The reorganizational meeting of the Lebanon 4-H Livestock Club took place recently at the Municipal Building. Ken Winebark, county agent, brought the meeting to order. Eight new members were present.

Barb Grumbine discussed donating baked goods and labor at the Heifer Sale. All proceeds will go to the construction of a show and sale barn at the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds.

The new officers are Daryl Grumbine, president; Kelly Bachman, vice president; Leigh Hitz, secretary; John Risser, news reporter. An officers training session will be held on April 21.

Bucks County Youth

On April 27 and 28, 300 elementary school students from Bensalem, Bristol Township, and Neshaminy School Districts will take an educational field trip to Snipe's Farm and Nursery in Morrisville. The tour is coordinated by the Bucks County 4-H Youth program, and all the students have participated in the 4-H horticulture project, "Meet the Plants."

The third-to-sixth-grade students will get a first-hand view of a greenhouse, perennial area, landscape design areas, and the orchard at Snipe's.

Lebanon County Sheep

The Lebanon County 4-H Sheep Club recently met at the home of Krista Hetrick. The meeting was called to order at 7:30 p.m. by president Krista Hedrick. The special guests for the meeting were Dr. Sue Harper and members of the Goat Club. Dr Harper discussed the life cycle of parasites and how they affects sheep. She then invited members to view parasites through her microscope.

Other business included filling out project cards for the upcoming year. The next meeting is April 19. It will include a discussion on grading wool by Ben Bow of Annville.

Microwave Cooking Workshop

WEST CHESTER — Basic Microwave Cooking classes will be taught by the Chester County Cooperative Extension of The Pennsylvania State University. The course will include basic cooking principles, actual meal preparation, and converting favorite family recipes for use in the microwave oven. Microwave oven features and cookware will be discussed.

The evening session will be held Mondays, April 25, May 2, 16 and 23 from 7 to 9 p.m. The morning session will be held Wednesday, April 27, May 4, 18 & 25 from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Both sessions will be held at the Extension office, 235 W. Market Street, West Chester. The instructor will be Fran Alloway, Freelance Home Economist.

There is a $25.00 fee for the course and preregistration is required by April 21, 1988. For more information, call the Extension office at 696-3500.

How To Create A Rock Garden

BY LOU ANN GOOD

MANHEIM — While spring breezes blow through your hair and the sun warms the earth, do you think of the rock garden you always intended to plant, but never got started? Maybe you never planted it because you weren't exactly sure how.

Rock gardens

Rock gardens differ from flower beds in that rock gardens are generally planted on a slope and they look like they could grow in the wild. Flower beds, on the hand, have combinations of flowers that do not grow in the wild.

Shelly said, "Often people make the mistake of using too many rocks and not enough plants." At first, rock gardens may look sparse, but fill in with annuals and perennials, which can be moved as permanent plants become more mature.

Keep to scale

Gardeners should always know how fast a plant grows as well as how large it will become since all plants should be kept to scale. Since Shelly's Nursery specializes in flowering and unusual plants, he prefers to use a combination of dwarf evergreens, flowering shrubs and perennials with ground cover. Shelly explained, "True dwarf plants do not necessarily stay small but they grow slow."

Plan for seasonal blooms

When planting a rock garden, it is necessary to consider how the garden will look in early spring, mid spring, late spring, and so forth. This way, one can envision what will be blooming and in what location it should be placed. For instance, daffodils and hyacinths bloom in early spring while tulips and bluebells come later.

Shelly suggests planting dwarf bulbs and perennials that come up each year. Most plants grow to a predetermined size that can be maintained for several years, but he cautions that people must realize there is no such thing as a no-care rock garden. "All plants need maintenance. Some need more." If you don't like to spend a lot of time in the flower bed, find low maintenance plants like day lilies, moonbeam coreopsis, black eyed Susans, seedums, Siberium iris and hosta.

Plants like creeping yarrows, artenesia and delphinians require high maintenance.

Color

Sun and shade dictates what will grow well in their respective areas. Don't forget that some colors also are more noticible in shady spots. Shelly said, "Too often people chose dark red or purple flowers for the shade but they don't show up as well; instead they should choose pale pink and white flowers to brighten up the dark spots."

Mulch

Bark mulches save the gardener hours of weeding and they conserve moisture in the soil. Hardwood bark mulches do best for most purposes. The mulch should be aged which means composting has heated it enough to kill insects. Some people like to use ground up leaves and pine needles. Wood chips can be used for pathways. If pebbles are used they should be dark in color. Shelly warns that mushroom mulches should not be used since their soil is harmful to many flowering shrubs and rooted plants.

Check growing sources

When buying plants, Shelly said, the buyer should make sure the plant material was grown by the nursery or by a northern source since southern-grown plants are usually not as hardy.

Unless one has lots of time to nurture plants, it is best to buy stocky plants in 2 gallon or larger-sized containers. The smaller plants have fewer roots and tend to dry up. Shelly said, "Flowers grown from seed often don't precisely represent the parent plant." For this reason, he suggests finding a nursery that grows their plants from cuttings rather than seeds.

Oriental grasses are gaining in popularity. Many varieties enable the gardener to purchase plants that grow in 4-inch to 10 feet. They are great to work in with flowers or scatter among shrubs.

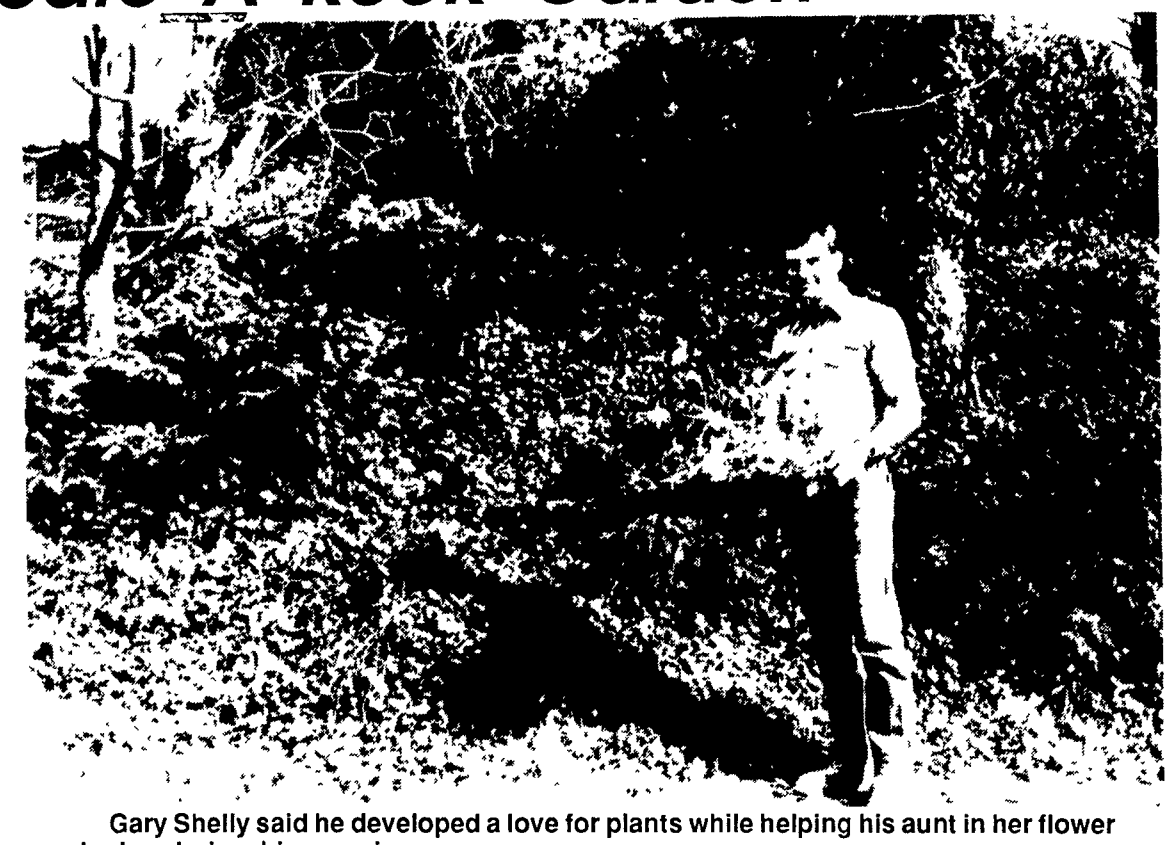
Keep updated on varieties

Almost every flowering shrub planted by our grandmothers now are available in strains that are hardier and often easier to grow. Many now are ideal for smaller landscaped areas. Shelly encourages gardeners to check out bushes like the new lilacs that do not grow into tree size and are more insect and weather resistant but still maintain their aroma and color.

If you're lucky enough to have a pond or creek on your property, consider planting a water garden. Often nurseries will design and plant these gardens if desired.

"There are so many ways to go with a rock garden, simple and complex, that Shelly encourages people to check with their local nursery for ideas. "It's hard to be general, and most nurseries are happy to help people with their trouble spots."

He added, "The more you read and the more rock gardens you visit—the more ideas you'll get."

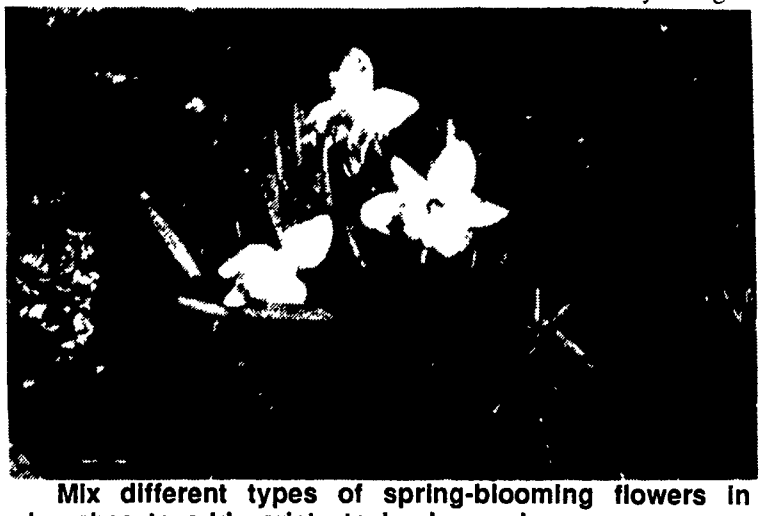


Gary Shelly said he developed a love for plants while helping his aunt in her flower beds during his growing up years.

When planning for a rock garden, one should know how plants grow in scale with each other.

Bleeding hearts can add a splash of pink or white color to shady spots. They do best in half-day sunlight and are good for woodlands and fairly deep shade.

Lovely daffodils provide a colorful foil to wooded areas. Left to grow, they'll divide and multiply every season.



Mix different types of spring-blooming flowers in bunches to add variety to landscaped areas.

Workshops For Berks and Montgomery Counties

FLEETWOOD — All single young women who are between the ages of 16 and 24 and are from a dairy farm background are eligible to compete for the title of the 1988 Berks County Dairy Princess. The contest is open to all of Berks County.

The Berks County Dairy Princess Pageant will be held on Saturday, May 14, 1988 at the Berks County Agricultural Center at 7:00 PM. The winner will be eligible to vie in the state contest for the title of Pennsylvania Dairy Princess. Clarinda Leatherman, Berks County's 1987 Dairy Princess, served as the First Alternate Pa. State Dairy Princess this past year.

Thirty-one state princesses and hundreds of county princesses have served as spokespersons for the dairy industry in Pennsylvania over the last thirty-one years. They appear in shopping malls, fairs, supermarkets, and on radio and television to educate consumers about the dairy farmers products.

Any single woman who has completed her junior year in high school; is not over 24 years of age; never married, never had children, and will not marry during her reign; is a daughter of a dairy farmer, a dairy farm manager or herdsman within the last 3 years, or herself is a fulltime employee on an operating dairy farm, or the owner of at least two dairy animals in a bona fide 4-H or FFA project prior to May 1, 1988; and have her parents' or guardians' consent may compete for the title.

The winner of the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Pageant receives a $500 cash award. The first and second runner-up will receive a $300 and $200 cash award respectively. The state title is honorary and there would be no interruption of school or regular employment plans. The State Pageant is coordinated through the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess & Promotion Services Inc.

The Berks County Committee is also looking for little girls, ages 4-6 years old, whose parents are involved in dairy farming in Berks County to vie for the title of Li'l Miss Berks County Dairy Princess. A winner will be chosen during the Berks County Dairy Princess Pageant on May 14th. The little girl will also be asked to make several promotional appearances with the County Dairy Princess during the coming year.

Young women and little girls who are interested in entering the contests should contact Phoebe R. Bitler at R.D. #4, Box 4176, Fleetwood, PA. 19522. Telephone: 215-944-0541. Application deadline is April 12, 1988.

Royal Jelly

It's America's favorite!

What Is Royal Jelly?

Royal jelly is a substance made by worker bees for the queen bee It has scientists baffled, for royal jelly, through a special metamorphosis, can transform an ordinary female bee into a queen bee and will increase her normal lifespan of 3 months to over 5 years The queen will become incredibly fertile on this diet and will lay up to 2½ times her own body weight in eggs in a single day

What Does It Contain?

It's a storehouse of B vitamins and contains one of the world's richest natural sources of pantothenic acid, known as the stress vitamin It contains all the eight essential amino acids, including high concentrations of lysine and tryptophan It also contains numerous minerals including calcium, iron, potassium, silicon, and sulfur

What Are Some Of Its Benefits?

"It is in a catagory all it's own,' reports Joe Parkill author of eight books on bee products and one of the world's foremost authorities on royal jelly "Royal jelly may indeed possess extraordinary properties It is one of the world's richest sources of pantothenic acid, which is thought to stimulate the adrenal glands and increase the production of cortisone and other adrenal hormones important for healthy skin and nerves"

Parkhill, who bases his statements on personal testimonials gathered from around the world, believes "the beautifying effects on the skin, hair, and nails, are only some of the youth restoring properties of royal jelly" Parkhill feels that after several week's use it induces a mild state of euphoria and feels it provides vital nutrition believed necessary for

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

Strata — a baked dish of eggs, milk, cheese and bread — is a conventional favorite for make-ahead brunch or breakfast. Now it can be microwaved in about half the time and be just as delicious.

I've never been too happy with the microwave stratas that I've tried. Most ended up soft and soggy on top. The edges were done, but when I cut near the center, egg-milk mixture oozed out. If the center did get done, the edges were hard, dry and impossible to eat. To remedy this I did a lot of testing and tasting and I've come up with a version that I like. I think you'll like it, too. It has excellent flavor and texture. And, it even looks good.

Many microwave stratas are cooked in a 9x13- or 8x12-inch oblong baking dish — that means they will serve more people, but also that it will be almost impossible to get the center done. I've found that using an 8x8-inch square dish is best for even cooking. A clear glass dish is ideal — then you can peek through the bottom to see when the egg-milk mixture is cooked.

If more servings are needed, make two recipes in two square dishes. To cook, remove both from refrigerator and let one stand while microwaving the other. When one is done, add cheese, cover tightly with foil and let it stand on the counter while microwaving the second strata. Serve the first-cooked one first while the second stands for second helpings. (Or, if more first servings are needed, I've found that you can cut corner pieces on the second strata before total standing time is up.) This two-dish method takes just about as long as conventional baking, but it keeps your kitchen cool or frees your conventional oven for another use.

Many stratas call for a plastic wrap cover — again, all wrong. The plastic wrap holds in so much moisture that the result is more like a steamed bread pudding than a baked strata. Instead, use a waxed paper cover. It holds in some heat to promote even cooking, yet allows the top to slightly dry out. However, after sprinkling the cooked strata with cheese, I've found a loose plastic wrap cover is better because it doesn't stick to the melting cheese like waxed paper does.

A lower power setting is necessary for even cooking. With a lower power setting, like Medium (50 percent power, 325-350 watts), cooking is slower, so it means longer cooking time. But it also means a better chance of getting the center done without overcooking the edges. With lower wattage microwave (400-500 watts), cook on High, but start checking for doneness after three-fourths of cooking time.

Standing time is an absolute must. Standing time lets heat move throughout the food and finishes cooking the center. Cook strata until the egg-milk mixture is almost — not completely — done in the center. (If cooked until completely done, edges will have toughened.) Cover strata and let stand on a flat surface, like a counter or wooden cutting board for about 10 minutes.

If a strata is not your favorite dish, try Layered Italian Noodle Bake (below). It cooks the same way a strata does, but doesn't need to be made ahead and refrigerated. The square dish, waxed paper cover, cooking on a low power and standing time lead to another quick and delicious main dish.

¾ cup milk
¼ teaspoon salt (optional)
⅛ teaspoon pepper
5 drops hot pepper sauce
½ cup shredded Cheddar cheese
Butter one side of each bread slice. Arrange 3 slices, buttered-side up, in microwave-safe 8x8x2-inch glass baking dish. (Cut bread to fit dish.) Sprinkle with 1½ cups Cheddar cheese and the ham. Top with remaining bread slices, buttered-side down. In large bowl, combine eggs, milk, salt, pepper and hot pepper sauce. Pour egg mixture over bread-cheese mixture. With a flat spatula, press bread down into egg mixture. Cover and refrigerate several hours or overnight.

Cover dish with waxed paper. Microwave on Medium (50 percent power, 325-350 watts) 22 to 24 minutes, rotating dish once halfway through cooking time. Test doneness by inserting a knife into egg mixture in center of dish. Knife should come out almost clean. (If using a clear dish, look through bottom. Egg mixture should be almost completely cooked.) Sprinkle with remaining Cheddar cheese; cover with plastic wrap. Let stand, covered, 10 minutes. To serve, cut into squares. Makes 5 to 6 servings.

With lower wattage microwave: Use High power and start checking for doneness after 16 minutes.

Layered Italian Noodle Bake

1 quart hot tap water
½ teaspoon salt (optional)
2 cups uncooked noodles
1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
¼ cup chopped onion
¾ teaspoon Italian herbs
Dash garlic powder
1 egg
1 cup small curd cottage cheese
1 can (15 ounces) red kidney beans, drained
1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese

Place water in microwave-safe 2-quart casserole or measure; cover with plastic wrap. Microwave (High) 6-7 minutes or until boiling. Stir in noodles. Microwave (High), uncovered, 5-6 minutes, stirring once, or until barely done. Drain and set aside.

In microwave-safe 1-quart measure, combine tomato sauce, onion, Italian herbs and garlic powder. Microwave (High), uncovered, 2-3 minutes, stirring once, or until mixture boils. In separate bowl, beat egg and stir in cottage cheese. Spoon half the noodles into a microwave-safe 8x8x2-inch glass baking dish. Add all of beans, half of cottage cheese mixture and half of tomato mixture. Repeat layers, except for beans. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave on Medium (50 percent power, 325-350 watts) 12-15 minutes, rotating dish once. When done, center should feel hot and be barely firm. Sprinkle with remaining Cheddar cheese; cover with plastic wrap. Let stand, covered, 5 minutes. To serve, cut into squares. Makes 5 to 6 servings.

With lower wattage microwave: Use High power and start checking for doneness after 9 minutes.

Each serving — 1/6 of recipe: 270 calories, 18g protein, 9g fat, 30g carbohydrate, 472mg sodium, 77mg cholesterol.

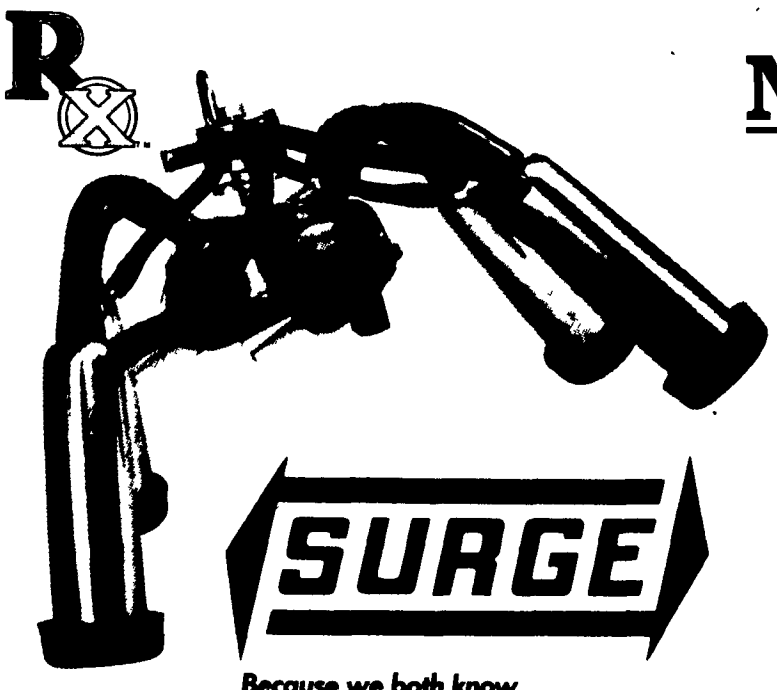
You wouldn't sacrifice good milking to end cross-contamination.



Because we both know that good enough isn't enough.

NEITHER WOULD WE!

Sure, cross-contamination is a problem. But you're not about to give up milking efficiency just to end it.

We knew that. So when we set out to design a milker that would lower cross-contamination, we refused to compromise good milking procedures.

Our stubbornness paid off. And the result is our new Surge Rx™ milker — a true four-chamber milker. With four separate chambers and four separate milk hoses that totally isolate and transport each quarter's milk.

Without sacrificing air flow, milk flow, vacuum stability, or visibility. Without sacrificing efficiency.

Talk to your independent Surge dealer about a demonstration, right on your own dairy.

In today's economy you can't afford to compromise. And now, thanks to our Rx, you don't have to.

York County Contestants Needed

YORK — Young women involved in the county's dairy farming industry are invited to compete in the annual York County Dairy Princess pageant.

This year's pageant is scheduled for Saturday, May 28, beginning at 8 p.m., at the 4-H Center near Bair.

The dairy princess represents the industry at various public and promotional events and serves as a spokesperson for the county's milk producers. In addition, she will represent the county at the state pageant in Harrisburg, held in September.

Each candidate must live in York County, have completed her junior year of high school, and not reached her 24th birthday by December 31, 1988.

She must be the daughter of a dairy farmer, a dairy farm manager or herdsman, herself be a full-time employee on an operating dairy farm, or be the owner of at least two dairy animal in a 4-H or FFA project prior to May 1, 1988.

She must be single, never married, have had no children, and must not marry during her reign. If under 21, parental or guardian consent is necessary. If crowned the winner, she must attend the state dairy princess training seminar in July. Former county winners are not eligible.

For further information or entry blanks, contact Cindy Rutter Johnson, contestant coordinator, at 2201 N. Beaver Street, York, 17404, or call at 845-3302. Entry deadline is April 27, 1988.

Contributions are being sought to help fund the dairy princess and promotion program. They may be sent to: York County Dairy Princess Fund, c/o Mrs. Diana Kann, 968 Canal Road Ext., Manchester, PA 17345.

Handbook Helps Housework Hassles

Vacuuming? No problem. Dusting? Piece of cake. Windows? A snap.

Most people perform these basic housecleaning chores with ease. But when faced with more exotic cleaning challenges, they panic. For example:

• That thick carpeting looked great when you bought the house. But now that the previous owners have moved out, you see deep depressions where heavy furniture stood.

• Your miniblinds collect dust like a magnet. And just the thought of dusting hundreds of slats individually is enough to exhaust you.

• You threw a party last night, and today there's a big white ring in the middle of the coffee table where someone parked a wet glass.

To the rescue comes "How to Beat Housework," a new book containing thousands of tips for tackling these and other housecleaning hassles.

Published by Eureka, the vacuum cleaner manufacturer, the 479-page hardcover book isn't for sale. Instead, the company is giving it away now through July 31 to anyone who buys a Eureka vacuum cleaner worth $80 or more.

Here's what "How to Beat Housework" has to say about the above cleaning problems:

• To raise depressions left in carpet by heavy furniture, try steaming. Hold a steam iron close enough for steam to reach the carpet, but don't let the iron touch the fibers (synthetic fibers can melt). Let the steam penetrate, then lift the fibers by scraping them with the edge of a coin or spoon. Finally, vacuum.

• For routine cleaning of miniblinds, you'll save lots of time by using the dusting brush attachment of your vacuum cleaner rather than dusting each slat individually. But when blinds require a thorough cleaning, use soap and water. Plastic, metal and painted wood blinds can be immersed in the bathtub; natural wood blinds should be hung on the clothesline and scrubbed. Wear cotton gloves so you can clean each slat with your fingers. Let blinds drip dry and rehang while still damp, stretching the tapes or cords to prevent shrinking.

• To remove white rings and other stains from wood furniture, rub with toothpaste on a damp cloth, or with a mild abrasive and oil. Appropriate abrasives are ashes, salt, soda or pumice; suitable oils are olive oil, petroleum jelly, cooking oil, or lemon-oil furniture polish. You can also use paste furniture polish, but only if the furniture has a polished, not oiled, finish.

"How to Beat Housework" is available wherever Eureka vacuum cleaners are sold, including department, discount, hardware, and vacuum specialty stores.

Learning About Government First Hand

BY LISA RISSER

LANCASTER — To some the political process is a confusing mass of bureaucracy better left to others. Other people, such as Amy Jo Strausbaugh, think of politics in an all together different light.

"Politics is fascinating to me," explained Amy Jo, a senior at Manheim Central High School. "I'd like to be a page and see what all goes on during a state legislative session."

Amy Jo is well on her way to understanding government, having recently completed Capitol Days, a state 4-H program designed to familiarize members with state government. Last summer she participated in the national program in Washington, D.C., Citizenship Washington Focus.

"I think Capitol Days is a good way to learn how government functions. You can learn from reading about it in a book, but this is more exciting. It's in the present," declared Amy Jo.

During the day and a half program, Amy Jo and about 200 other 4-H'ers from Pennsylvania went to a pre-chosen state agency, breakfasted with state legislators, and visited the Capitol.

While at the various agencies, the 4-H'ers were charged with discovering as much as they could about the agency. Later, in groups, they discussed what improvement they would make to the agency if they had a $100,000 grant. That evening they posed as the agency and made a formal proposal to a "commission", which was made up of 4-H leaders.

Amy Jo chose to go to Commonwealth Court. Her group intended to use the grant to hire more attorneys to speed the judicial process.

The Washington, D.C., trip was similiar to the state program except the participants also toured the historical sights.

"I'm better informed now," said Amy Jo of her experiences. "I hear adults say 'Oh, they don't know anything in Washington,' but I wonder if those people really know how government operates."

Now, if Amy Jo were to express her feelings on a piece of legislature, she knows how to go about it. She also has come to realize that in the political world, events don't

National Cooking Contest Hatches Eggsceptional Recipes

Culinary competitors across the country opened egg cartons and created "eggciting" recipes for American Egg Board's 1987 National Egg Cooking Contest!

State egg-promotion organizations held local contests to select the blue-ribbon main dish egg recipes that would represent their states in national competition.

A panel of food experts equally considered nutritional quality, easer of preparation, taste appeal, appearance and creativity when determining the winners of the $4,000 first prize, $2,000 second prize and $1,000 third prize in national contest adult and junior/senior high school divisions.

Mexitalian Egg Pizza, which combines a South-of-the-border egg filling with Italian-style toppings, won Laurie Ann Braun of Marietta, Georgia second place in the junior division. One taste and you'll agree that this cross-cultural dish is a winner!

Mexitalian Egg Pizza
6 servings

1 can (10 oz.) refrigerated pizza crust
4 eggs
1 can (4 oz.) chopped green chilies, well drained
2 teaspoons taco seasoning mix
2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
1 package (10 oz.) frozen chopped broccoli, thawed, drained and pressed ½ cup (2 oz.) sliced drained pitted ripe olives
1 medium tomato, thinly sliced and drained
1 cup (4 oz.) shredded mozzarella cheese
Oregano to taste

Pat pizza dough evenly across bottom of greased 12-inch pizza pan and form a rim. Beat together 4 eggs, chilies and seasoning. Pour into dough-lined pan, spreading evenly. Top with hard-cooked eggs, broccoli and olives.

Bake in preheated 425° F. oven until eggs are set and crust is golden brown, about 18 to 20 minutes. Evenly top with tomato slices and sprinkle with cheese. Broil about 6 inches from heat until cheese is melted, about 3 to 4 minutes. Sprinkle with oregano. Cut into wedges and serve immediately.

To receive a copy of the "1987 National Egg Cooking Contest Winning Recipes" leaflet, simply send a stamped, self-addressed business-sized envelope to: The Incredible Edible Egg #16, P.O. Box 755, Park Ridge, IL 60068-0755.

Government

take place immediately. Much time is spent for new ideas and changes to go through the political machinery.

Amy Jo has wanted to attend Capitol Days for three years now, but for some reason or another she just couldn't make it. Now that she has, she has many memories to cherish and an understanding and appreciation of government that many would envy.

Kawasaki

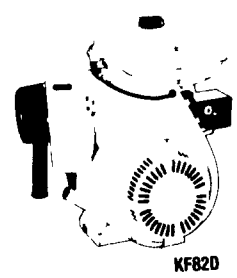
FA76D

Very popular for wash machines and other small engine & applications. New compression release makes it very easy to pull and electronic ignition insures easy starting especially under damp conditions.

Very popular engine for farm equipment, lawn tractors & commercial applications. Cast-iron removable cylinder and ball bearings make this a very durable engine. Dynamic balancer almost eliminates vibration.



KF82D

KF200D

This twin 20 hp is becoming very popular for hay balers and other applications traditionally equipped with 2 cylinder Wisc. engines and can also replace the older 4 cylinder engines on some applications.

Standard features on new style Kawasaki engines now include low-oil shutdown system, as well as electronic ignition and compression release in addition to previous heavy duty features such as ball bearings and cast iron cylinders.

Harness Honey

LEATHER CONDITIONER
"Makes leather last longer"

HARNESS HONEY was originally developed 20 years ago to treat leather shoe soles to make them last longer It can be used on all leather products, from work harness to boots to baseball gloves, with great results

HARNESS HONEY is not sticky, and is virtually odorless It is non-toxic. It penetrates deeply into the leather and lubricates the fibers, helping to both preserve and rejuvenate It promotes flexibility and makes stitching easier

HARNESS HONEY will not evaporate, once absorbed into the leather it stays there

ALUMINUM GOOSENECK TRAILERS

20' Gooseneck Trailer

A versatile, lightweight, Eby aluminum stock trailer is built to provide years of maintenance free service. An Eby trailer is custom built to fit your individual hauling needs - No mass production! We use only quality components and strong alloy aluminum to manufacture what may be the last trailer you'll ever buy.

- LIGHTWEIGHT - Eby stock trailers are 25-35% lighter than comparable steel trailers. Less weight means better fuel mileage or increased payload.
- MAINTENANCE - Eby aluminum trailers won't rust. Welding and painting can cost you dollars in down time and repairs.
- DURABILITY - Eby trailers are built tough. Quality components and 6061 alloy aluminum provide the ruggedness required in a livestock trailer.

Cost Of Growing Alfalfa On The Rise

BY MARJORIE KEEN
Chester Co. Correspondent

GUTHRIESVILLE — On the average, the cost of growing alfalfa in Pennsylvania over the past six years has been $270 to $280 an acre, according to Dr. Sid Bosworth, Penn State Extension Forage Specialist. In the southeastern part of the state, average crop yields are between six and six and one-half tons. Bosworth addressed 144 Chester County farmers on the economics of alfalfa production at Crops Day.

"Prorated establishment costs, which can't be ignored, run about $40 an acre. The cost that has steadily and consistently been climbing over the last three years is machinery ownership," he said. Bosworth included machinery for harvesting, spraying and mowing and tractor costs for both establishment and maintenance.

"I want to make the point that it's probably good to sit down and calculate what you're spending on your crops," Bosworth suggested. "I can give you average figures (from the Alfalfa Growers Program) but they may not apply at all to your program."

"The real challenge is to combine a good crop program with good dairy management," the specialist said. For high producing cows you have to have high-quality forage, according to Bosworth, who added that you can't substitute grain for poor-quality forage.

"When we look at the factor that influences cost and quality most, it's cutting management," said Bosworth. Cutting alfalfa prebloom is best, he stated. "Letting it go to flower or mid-bloom . . . we know we lose in protein concentration. Fiber goes up . . . and digestible dry matter goes down very dramatically . . . and as a result milk production can go down. When I think of forage profitability, this is probably the first key."

Although midwestern research reports successful reseeding of alfalfa by killing or merely removing the tops of the previous crop in the fall, Bosworth advises continuing to rotate for a couple of years. "One of the top plant pathologists at Penn State is convinced that even though we can overcome (autotoxicity) we're not going to overcome the problem of disease buildup."

Bosworth also outlined successful alfalfa establishment practices. Managing problem weeds and new herbicides for alfalfa and corn were topics covered by Dr. John Yocum, Penn State Senior Agronomy Research Associate. Penn State Extension Entomologist Dr. Dennis Calvin spoke on alfalfa insect control and also controlling insects in stored grain. Chester County Extension Dairy Agent David Swartz updated the farmers on chemical safety.

"Beef" Promotion In The Interest Of Dairymen

HARRISBURG — This April, the American Dairy Association (ADA) and the Beef Industry Council (BIC) have launched a national GOURMET CHEESEBURGER promotion, with print and TV ads featuring Willard Scott of the NBC "Today Show." The checkoff funded promotion covers both retail and foodservice (restaurant/institutional) areas.

More than 20% of all beef on the market today in the US comes from dairy cattle, most of which is ground beef. In PA, 43% of all beef production is from cull cows, calves and bulls.

So during the GOURMET CHEESEBURGER promotion, dairy farmers not only get increased consumer awareness for cheese, but also lean ground beef. During the past year, a major share of beef checkoff advertising concentrated on ground beef.

A balanced diet, including both beef and dairy products has been emphasized in checkoff programs aimed at physicians and dieticians. And checkoff dollars funded a sports-health videotape feature which promoted beef and dairy. The Pennsylvania Beef Council has also worked to fund numerous projects focusing on beef and dairy products jointly.

In the spring of 1987, ADA invited BIC to join in a promotional effort of unprecedented scale. An intense four-week ad campaign was developed: Build a Perfect Cheeseburger with Cheese, Glorious Cheese. Two contests were launched at supermarkets and consumer levels; a 30 second TV commercial was developed and given widespread play; Point of Purchase materials were broadly utilized. This joint promotional effort showed marked increases in both cheese and ground beef sales.

The Beef Checkoff provides funds for research and education as well as promotion and merchandising. Producer-funded research has focused not only on beef, but on dairy beef and dietary/health research.

Two 1987 research programs funded by producers included microwave packaging and tenderizing of cull cow carcasses and impact of high-energy feeding on beef quality in Holstein steers.

Dairy farmers are represented by dairy farmers on the Beef Board, the producer organization which decides how national beef checkoff funds should be invested. John Cope of Grantham, Cumberland County serves on that national Board. Cope said, "The beef industry had a lot to learn from the success of the dairy checkoff."

Dairymen know better than anyone else the value of promotion, research and consumer education. It's in dairy's interest that the entire beef industry follow suit.

Dairymen wear two hats, as both dairy producers and beef producers and have a strong self interest in the success of both dairy and beef research and promotion programs.

A significant amount of dairy income — 10-15% — is from sales of cull cows and calves for beef and veal. When beef prices rise, dairymen have more incentive to cull, a process which helps reduce milk supplies and support dairy prices. Since the program began in 1986, cull cow prices have risen 25%.

Veal is a perfect example of where the promotion has helped and benefited the dairyman with higher prices. In recent months, both calf prices have shot up by 40%.

So a successful beef promotion program means extra income in dairymen's pockets from both sides of their business. With support for dairy beef, veal and nutrition education, the Checkoff Program is beefing up prices for dairymen.

Dairy beef, cattle and veal producers will vote on the future of these programs on May 10.

33rd Adams Co. Apple Blossom Festival To Be Held

GETTYSBURG — Adams County, Pennsylvania will be the site of the 33rd Annual Apple Blossom Festival which will be held on Saturday, May 7 and Sunday, May 8.

Highlights of this year's festival include: live entertainment, barbecue chicken, free orchard tours (10 a.m.-4 p.m.), craft show and sale, petting baby barnyard, livestock and agricultural exhibits, and the crowning of the Adams County Apple Queen. Features this year include over a hundred selected homemade crafters and a wider selection of taste-tempting food treats.

The Apple Blossom Festival is held each year at the South Mountain Fairgrounds located 10 miles northwest of historic Gettysburg, Pennsylvania on Rt. 234 near Arendtsville, PA. The fairgrounds are situated in the middle of scenic Adams County's 20,000 acres of fruit orchards. The festival gates will open each day from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and admission is $1.00 for adults, children under age 12 are free and there is plenty of free parking.

Visitors from a six state area are attracted to this special annual event to enjoy the festival and to view the beautiful blossoms of the apple, peach and cherry trees which are usually in full bloom during festival week.

Adams County fruit growers, who produce over five million bushels of apples each year, would like to invite you to view, enjoy, and learn about their apple industry.

Attractions, both days, promise to delight both young and old. Other attractions include: a display of antique cars, clogging demonstrations, helicopter rides, large group of antique gasoline engines, antique corn-sheller demonstration, homemade crafts, plus much, much more.

The highlight of Sunday's activities will be the crowning of the 1988 Adams County Apple Queen, at 2:30 p.m. in the fairground's auditorium. There will also be apple pie eating and apple bobbing contests. A wide variety of food products will be available for purchase such as fresh apples, apple cider, apple butter, candied apples, apple fritters, apple strudel, apple pies, apple pancakes, barbecue chicken "in a basket" (Saturday only), chicken barbecue dinners (Sunday only), homemade scrapple and country sausage.

The Apple Blossom Festival is sponsored by the Adams County Fruit Growers Association. For further information write Adams County Fruit Growers Association, P.O. Box 515, Biglerville, PA 17307 or call 717-677-8181 extension 475.

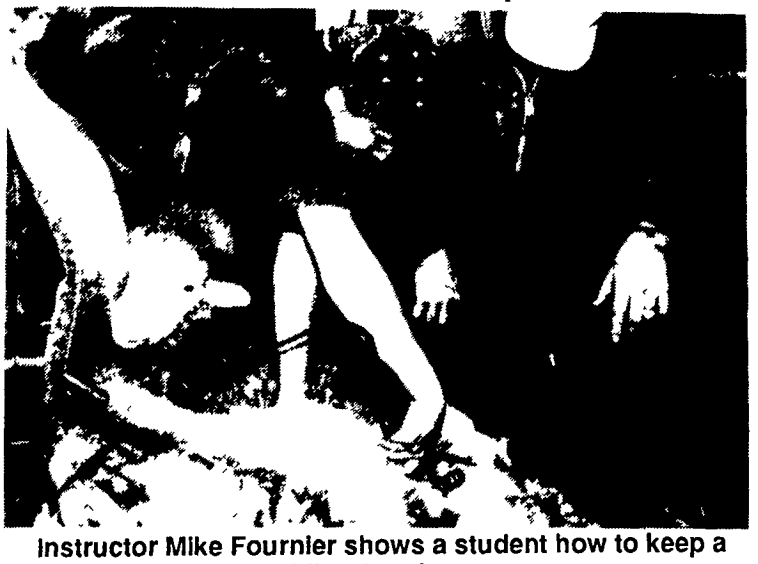
Learning To Wield Sheep Shears With Skill

BY LOU ANN GOOD

PEQUEA — Last weekend was too cold to shed winter coats, but 121 sheep had no choice at the Lancaster County Sheep Shearing School that features a hands-on workshop at Ed Harkins Farm in Pequea.

Students at the workshop enthusiastically clipped the heavy wool from sheep that for the most part remained quite docile.



Instructor Mike Fournier shows a student how to keep a fleece in one piece while shearing.

Richard Hartman, Adamstown, explained the secret of keeping a sheep immobile is to keep the front feet off the floor. "Then she can't move," he claimed.

Hartman like many of the others who attended the workshop expressed amazement at the ease of which a sheep can be sheered when a few tricks of the trade are applied. Participants learned the secret to holding sheers and sheep and although many raised sheep for years, few had known the tactics for manipulating sheep into compatible positions for easy shearing. Ed Harkins said, "They must learn to calm the sheep for sheering; otherwise, they'll be fighting sheep and can't shear them.

Carey Donches was one of the 23 registered students. The owner of many prize- ribbon sheep in local fairs, Carey had often clipped them for shows, "But they were always restrained on a block," she explained, "and it takes longer to shear them that way." Because the Donches have a flock of 25 on their Manheim property, they wanted to learn to be more efficent with their sheep sheering.

While Bob Shaubach shears his sheep, his sister Linda Funk, Conestoga, and his wife Karen offer some suggestions.

With practice, Mike Fournier, the Montgomery County Extension Agent who taught the sessions, promises they should become efficent enough to sheer a sheep in five to seven minutes.

How To Calculate Corn Water Needs

NEWARK, DE. — It takes about 3,450 gallons of water to produce one bushel of corn on Delmarva. This water can be provided by rainfall or by irrigation.

This is just one of the pieces of pertinent information on the water requirements of this crop to be found in the fact sheet "Corn Water Use," available free from Delaware county Extension offices.

The fact sheet details daily water use of the corn plant from emergence to maturity. Graphs illustrate the water needed for moderate yields of 150 to 160 bushels per acre and for yields of 200 or more bushels per acre. Long-term weather data from southern Delaware were used in constructing the graphs.

The five-page fact sheet also shows how irrigators can calculate daily water use (evapotranspiration) for their corn crop if they know the maximum and minimum daily temperatures on their farm. This information is helpful in scheduling irrigation and determining the amount of water needed.

The fact sheet was prepared by University of Delaware Extension agricultural engineer Tom Williams and agricultural engineering professor William Ritter.

To obtain a copy of the "Corn Water Use" fact sheet, stop by the county Extension office in Newark, Dover or Georgetown. Copies may also be obtained by writing: Tom Williams, Department of Agricultural Engineering, Townsend Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, DE 19717-1303.

Learning To Wield

"It doesn't take time—it takes numbers," he stressed. "You don't become competent until after you shear about 200 sheep."

Lest the novice be discouraged, Fournier reasoned that shearing only one sheep and attending the workshop is really all the training needed to learn the basic techniques. After that, it's just a matter of practice, practice and more practice.

Most of the participants anticipate practicing on their own flocks. Bob Shaubach of Lititz is one of these. He said, "The workshop was absolutely tremendous. We learned the proper holds for shearing sheep and holding the clippers." Shaubach and his wife Karen have 40 sheep. After both attended the workshop, they were confident they no longer needed to hire a sheep shearer to lighten the wool off their sheep's backs.

The sessions were held from 9 to 4 on Friday and Saturday. Harkins said it was the third year he hosted the workshop and he hopes to host it again next year if there is enough interest.

NO. 1 DAIRYING DIESEL

KHD DEUTZ

Since 1968 F2L-912 diesels have earned the reputation as the most reliable diesel. Don't settle for less.

EASIER STARTING: Heavy flywheel provides easy starting. No electric heater plugs.

QUIETER: Runs quieter than most water cooled diesels. Very quiet exhaust.

Continuous Duty Rating:
26.5 HP @ 1800 RPM

Fewer repair parts than comparable three-cylinder diesels - cheaper to overhaul.

It has direct injection, lube oil cooling, and oil cooled pistons. This engine has proven to survive the extreme heat of a heavy load in a small engine house better than any other engine.

NEW TUB GRINDERS AT OLD PRICES

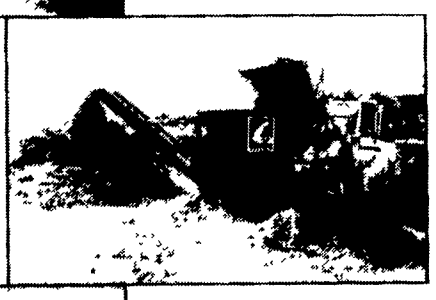
FARMHAND GRINDERS

Turn Wood Bark Into $$$ Dollars!

Here Is A Unique Opportunity To Earn Extra Profit From Sawmill Operations

Wood bark was considered waste material only a few years ago. These mountains of bark, both hardwood and pine, also created disposal problems.

Now these wood wastes are put through a Farmhand Tub Grinder which reduces the bark into a specific particle size.

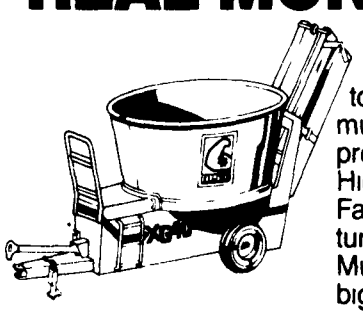


The end products are sold both in bags and in bulk by the truckload. They are in demand by lawn and garden supply outlets, golf courses, nurseries, parks and landscapers.

Turn Thousands Of Tons Of Waste Material Into Profit!!

Get Ready For The Spring Mulch Market Now

GRIND WOOD BARK INTO LANDSCAPE MULCH AND MAKE REAL MONEY.



You can grind bark into tons of natural landscape mulch and show sweet profits at low investment. High production, portable Farmhand Tub Grinders turn out the perfect product. Mulch is big business with big demand. Get the money-making facts for yourself.

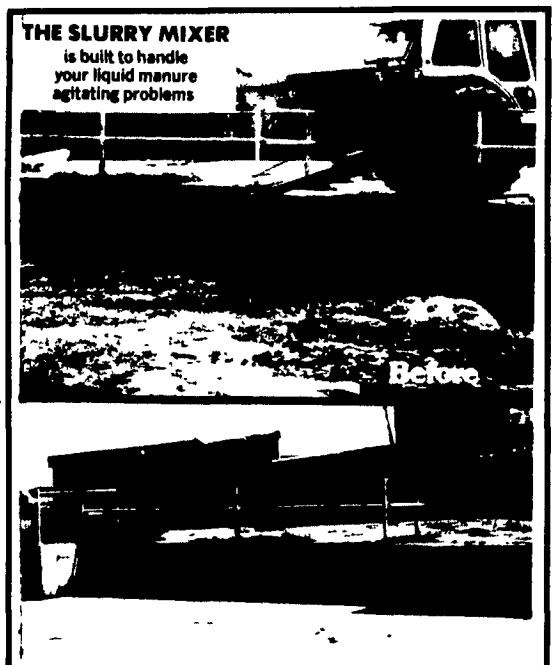
THE SLURRY MIXER
is built to handle your liquid manure agitating problems



This 3 point hitch Slurry Mixer's large 22" propellor produces a strong undercurrent that moves liquids, floating chunks of crust, weeds, bedding and dried manure into the propellor that chops, mixes and blends your manure into an even liquid Slurry

Priced at $2,285

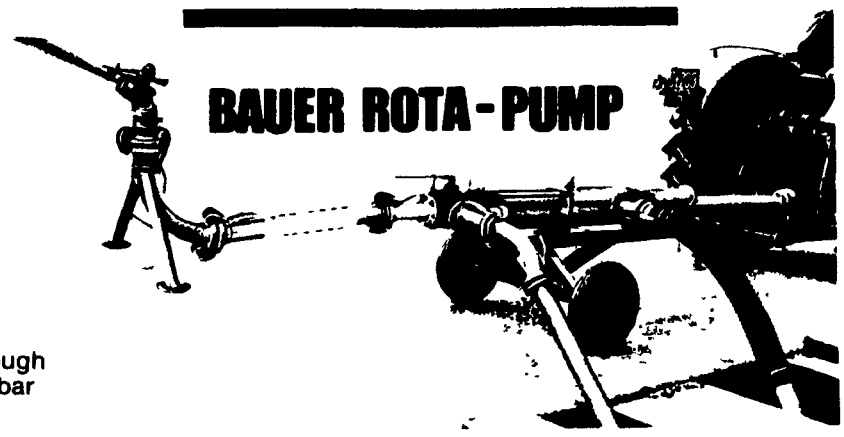
PUMP, Don't Haul, Your MANURE!

...you can pump and spread in one day what would take a week to haul, regardless of field conditions.



PUMPS any type of manure
Dairy, Chicken, Beef, Veal, Hog
High Performance Bauer helical rotor pumps are self-priming and can pump through irrigation pipe and spreader nozzles (shown), or through tractor-mounted Honeybar injectors for direct injection into soil, eliminating run-off.

TICO HONEYBAR INJECTOR
New system injects* liquid manure into soil, eliminating run-off, odor problems and loss of nitrogen value associated with other spreading methods. Honeybar attaches to tractor 3 pt. hitch—is fed directly from lagoon or storage tank through irrigation pipe and flexible hose. Designed for one-man operation. Components can also be used for hose reel irrigation system.
*(injects up to 600 gpm depending on ability to supply material to pump)

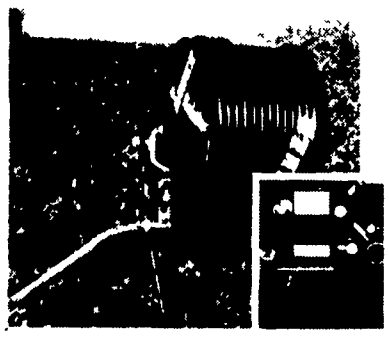
MAGNUM Self-Priming Chopper Pump
has a powerful chopping and shredding device to reduce animal and vegetable matter to a pumpable non-clogging slurry Tractor pto-driven models can pump up to 880 gal/min Other models available pump up to 1012 gpm



BAUER RAINSTAR REEL IRRIGATOR
can irrigate up to 1/3 mile long and up to 400 ft. wide, or 14 acres in one run. And, depending on model and pipe size, up to 800 gpm and up to 50 acres per day coverage. Gets the water to the crop when needed.

TICO also offers all other types of irrigation systems
- Wheel Row • Center Pivot • Giant Sprinkler • Trickle • Solid Set • Hand Move

Get a Case IH 200 Series Tractor

Case IH 200 Series Diesels — 18 to 31 engine horsepower — are a cut above other compact tractors All four models offer smooth-shifting transmissions, 540/1150 rpm rear PTO (540 rpm only on model 235) and weather-beating MFD option for all season productivity For heavy-duty mowing, 200 Series Tractors with Case IH front-, mid- and rear-mounted Mowers cut big jobs down to size Case IH Mowers are built rugged, and are available in 60- to 72-inch widths

These Case IH Tractors are also productive with loaders dozer blades and many other attachments to do more work for you See us today for a Case IH 200 Series Tractor that can work for you all year round

TORQUE AMPLIFIERS & CLUTCHES

Over the past 8 years, we have sold thousands of T.A.'s to satisfied customers across the U.S. Some of our best customers are I.H. Dealers.

We do complete job or center housing while you wait or will sell you the parts.

Our prices on T.A.'s with the Dana Sprag, is still $595.00 with a 2 year warranty.

We also have units and parts available to rebuild old style T.A.'s, including Ramp & carrier sets for $300.00

Clutches, Pressure Plates PTO Drives & Water Pumps

We have clutches available for most all IH tractors; including many heavier than original. We also have clutches for many other brands.

- Compare Our Prices -

All clutches & T.A.'s will ship U.P.S. and are sold on an exchange basis. Core charges Apply.

Four Ways Better - John Deere Forage Harvesters

- More efficient harvesting and low-cost knife replacement.
- Quick, easy knife sharpening and adjustments.
- Spout-Trak™ aiming control puts more crop in your wagons.
- Cattle and cutterhead protection from Iron-Gard™ metal detector.

No matter how you cut it, self-propelled or pull-type, you'll get the best cut with a John Deere forage harvester.

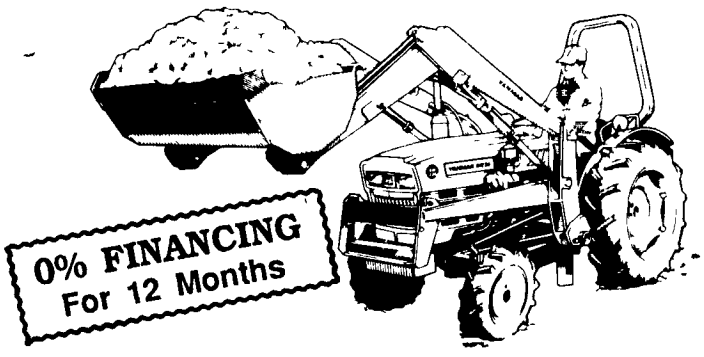
Incredible day's work.



You can work a Yanmar diesel tractor hard all day and it's ready to come back for more. That's what makes Yanmar the value choice among so many owners. And every Yanmar is field-ready to take on the many jobs you have to do. From tilling to mowing, from loading to backhoeing, there's a Yanmar diesel tractor ready to work for you.

- Choose from 12 models 14 to 33HP
- Choose 2 or 4 wheel drive
- Expenence Yanmar's exclusive finger tip "shuttle power shift" that lets you shift on the go at a touch of a lever
- Check Yanmar's long list of standard features

YANMAR®
Tractors and Implements More than You Expect

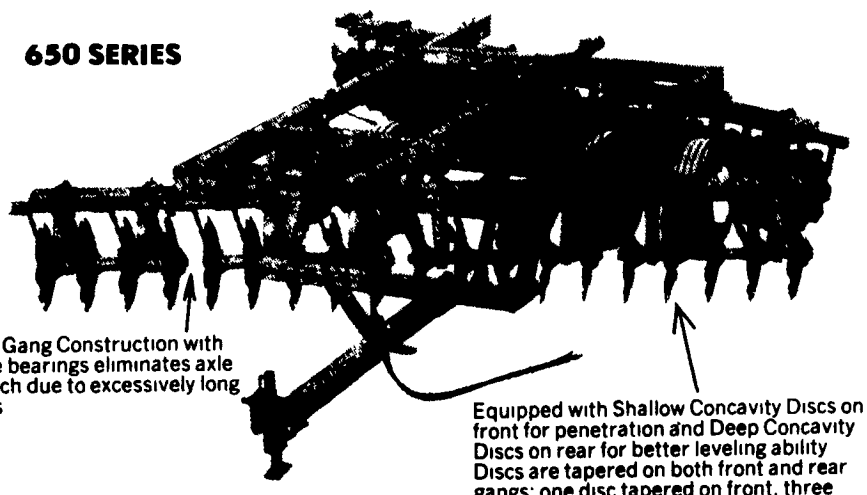
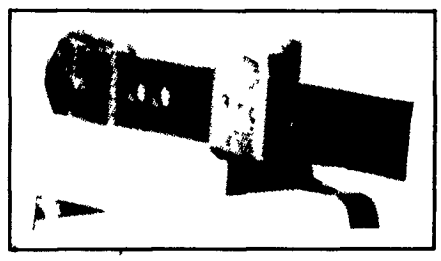
HEAVY-DUTY LEVELING OFFSET HARROWS

650 SERIES

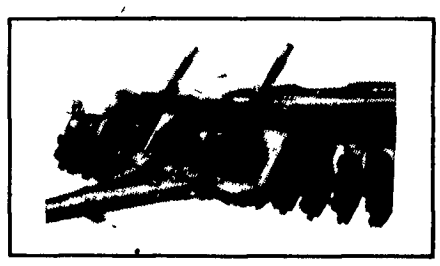


Split Gang Construction with more bearings eliminates axle stretch due to excessively long axles

Equipped with Shallow Concavity Discs on front for penetration and Deep Concavity Discs on rear for better leveling ability Discs are tapered on both front and rear gangs; one disc tapered on front, three discs tapered on rear



Adjustable depth control holds the cutting depth constant Then simply lock bar for transport to eliminate wear and tear on hydraulic transport cylinders on those rough and rocky roads



Positive adjustment leveling from front to rear is no problem Weight is shifted by these Spring Rods to produce a smooth finish.

OUR OFFSET LEVELS LIKE A TANDEM

- Wide Range of Adjustments
- Tapered Discs
- Disc Concavity
- Spring Leveling Rods

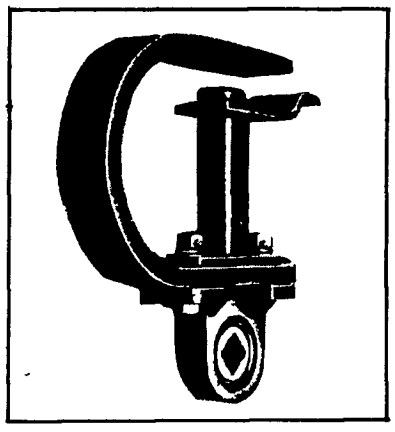
RESULT...

Furrows And Ridging In The Center Is Virtually Eliminated. A Tandem That Cuts Like An Offset Leaves A Furrow.



FLEXIBILITY

PRECISION ENGINEERED... FULLY FIELD TESTED!

FACTS ABOUT ENERGY FREE DRINKERS

- Our Company designs the "original" and has continuously manufactured drinkers that work for 25 years
- We have over 200 drinkers operating successfully on farms in the east for the 7 years we've handled them
- We have drinkers that are watering dairy cows, beef, bulls, horses, sheep, goats and hogs.
- Our drinkers are working at the University of Delaware Farm, University of Maryland Farm and the Delaware State College Farm.
- Our drinkers require no electric, no gas, no excavating and is one of the easiest installed in the industry.

NOW...Six Models
We are probably the most experienced Energy Free drinker dealers in the East with over 7 years experience. Write or call for more information.

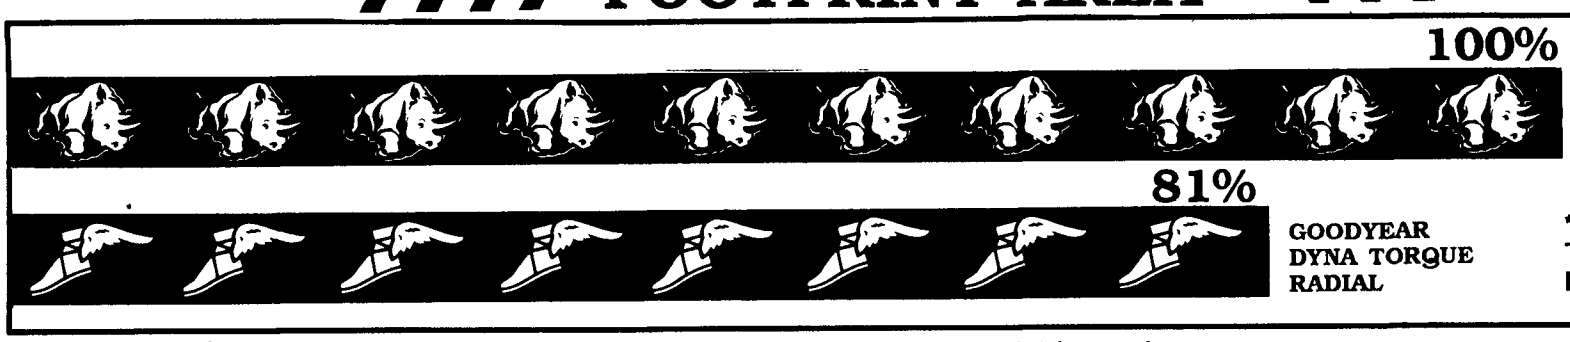
ARMSTRONG

builds them better — and backs them better

COMPARE FOOTPRINT AREA*



ARMSTRONG SUPER HI-POWER LUG RADIAL R-1

GOODYEAR DYNA TORQUE RADIAL

*Tire Size Tested: 18.4-38, 8 Ply Rating

Armstrong's Super Hi-Power Lug Radial lays down a 19% larger tire footprint than the Goodyear Dyna Torque Radial. That means you get better traction and cover more ground faster. Put Armstrong's Super Hi-Power Lug Radial to work for you. Call for prices today!

Spring dating is available if you call NOW... So call toll free 1-800-222-1729 in PA or 717-653-1260 today!

FROM ONE FARMER TO ANOTHER...

I know what it's like to have a tractor stranded in the field. You don't have time to wait for factory reps or next week's truck to get the tire service you need now — you've got to get that crop in!

Look, I've been there. That's why I offer durable tires like Armstrong, and dependable service at competitive prices. I get the best prices and pass these savings on to you. And I guarantee we'll promptly handle any tire problem, fairly and professionally, so you can get back in the field. Whether you need tires installed, repaired or replaced — you can count on us!

GET ARMSTRONG'S FIVE-YEAR FIELD-HAZARD WARRANTY!

In addition to the eight-year standard limited warranty, Armstrong protects its tires with five-year field hazard and stubble damage limited warranties! Goodyear only offers a four-year warranty, but with Armstrong you get an extra year of insurance. Call today for more information.

HI-POWER LUG R-1

- Tread is 11% wider than the Goodyear Dyna Torque II
- Lays down a footprint that's 11% longer and covers 24% more area than the Goodyear Dyna Torque II — that means increased traction, less slippage and more ground coverage

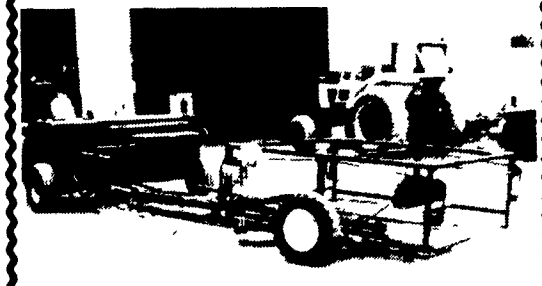
Bale Accumulator

The Steffen Systems Bale Accumulator conveniently and easily packages up to ten 2-tie bales or eight 3-tie bales into a uniform arrangement which can easily be handled by one of the Steffen Systems loaders. The fully automatic electric over hydraulic controls operate the accumulator without the need of an operator. With its quick and smooth functions, there is no need to slow down the baler to allow for proper functioning of the machine. Also available for use in 2-tie bales is an optional tie bar.



Eliminate HAND LABOR into & out of storage. Systems custom designed to your needs.

Everything You Hear About Them Is TRUE.

America's "New" Romance With Food

By James G. Beierlein

When I was growing up it seemed that if one family ritual would endure it would be the old-style sit-down family meal. It was a time when everyone would stop whatever they were doing to gather around a table to eat and discuss the day's events. Family meals were a common bond that not only kept us well fed but also kept us involved in the lives of our families. Today, however, there is increasing evidence that the sit-down, family meal may be a thing of the past.

Conversations with food industry personnel and a recent article in the Wall Street Journal titled "Are Square Meals Headed for Extinction?" (March 15, 1988) all seem to indicate the demise of family meals is near. While we may not like these changes, as agribusiness people whose future profits depend on how well we meet the needs of food consumers, we can certainly not ignore them. Because if we do, we know that right down the street is a competitor who is more than willing to accommodate these consumer needs and who will make the sale.

The Wall Street Journal article cited the results of several studies that show major changes in American eating habits. One study done by Pillsbury focused on changes in eating habits between 1971 and 1986 and separated people into five groups.

The smallest and fastest shrinking segment of the population includes those who still prepare three square meals a day. This group comprises only 15 percent of the population and has declined by 35 percent over this period. The Pillsbury study also identified two other groups that follow more traditional meal practices and found that they too had experienced significant declines.

Two groups of consumers did experience significant growth in numbers, and they may reflect the future directions of consumer food preferences.

The first group is made up of highly educated, mostly retired people. While they maintain the tradition of eating regular meals together, they are extremely health conscious about what they do consume. The number of people in this group rose 122% over this 15 year period and now comprises 20 percent of the population.

The fastest growing group is what Pillsbury called the "Chase and Grabbits". These people survive on fast foods, frozen dinners and carry-out pizzas. Most of their eating is done alone, while on the move, or while doing something else like driving a car or reading. Over the study period this category of consumers increased 136 percent and now accounts for 26 percent of the population.

Because both of these consumer groups seems likely to grow rapidly in the coming years, food firms are developing new products that will directly appeal to the desires of these people. This accounts for the increasing number of health and "lite" foods, and snack and finger foods found on supermarket shelves. As producers, we need to insure that our products are also designed to meet these growing consumer needs. Our financial survival depends on it.

While there is little we can do to meet the consumers' demands for greater convenience, it is possible to examine what we produce to see if it meets the needs of our consumers. Fresh fruits and vegetables are a good example.

A recent Penn State survey of consumer preferences showed that buyers are using both more and a wider variety of fresh produce. Since there is already intense competition in the more traditional products (e.g. corn, cantaloupes, and so on), maybe the wise move is to increase your production of unusual items such as herbs, white asparagus and so on. To gain a competitive edge these products must be clean, displayed in a convenient and attractive way, and sold by warm friendly people. If they aren't, there are nearby several competitors willing to do business.

The decline of the sit-down family meal may fill us with sadness but it also provides us with many new opportunities. To survive in today's highly competitive food industry, we must adapt to these changes in consumer preferences.

Somerset Breeders Celebrate Youth Achievements

BERLIN — The Somerset County Holstein Club held it's annual meeting at the Berlin Community Building March 18th. Jennifer Barnett, Somerset County Dairy Princess and the Pennsylvania Alternate, spoke on her highlights in promoting the dairy industry the last year.

Newly elected Holstein Club Directors for a three-year-term were: Donald Glessner, Berlin; John Will, Berlin and James Sechler of Somerset. The Somerset County Holstein Club awarded Paul Carr and Thadd Will with plaques for winning our state Distinguished Junior and Senior members contest. Paul Carr was also honored and awarded a plaque for being chosen as Outstanding Boy in the county.

Thadd Will showed slides from the state convention and the Dairy Bowl teams were recognized. The senior team and runner-up in the State competition were: Thadd Will, Captain; and Jenny Welch, Matt Welch, Heather Welch, and Mike Ream, Alternate.

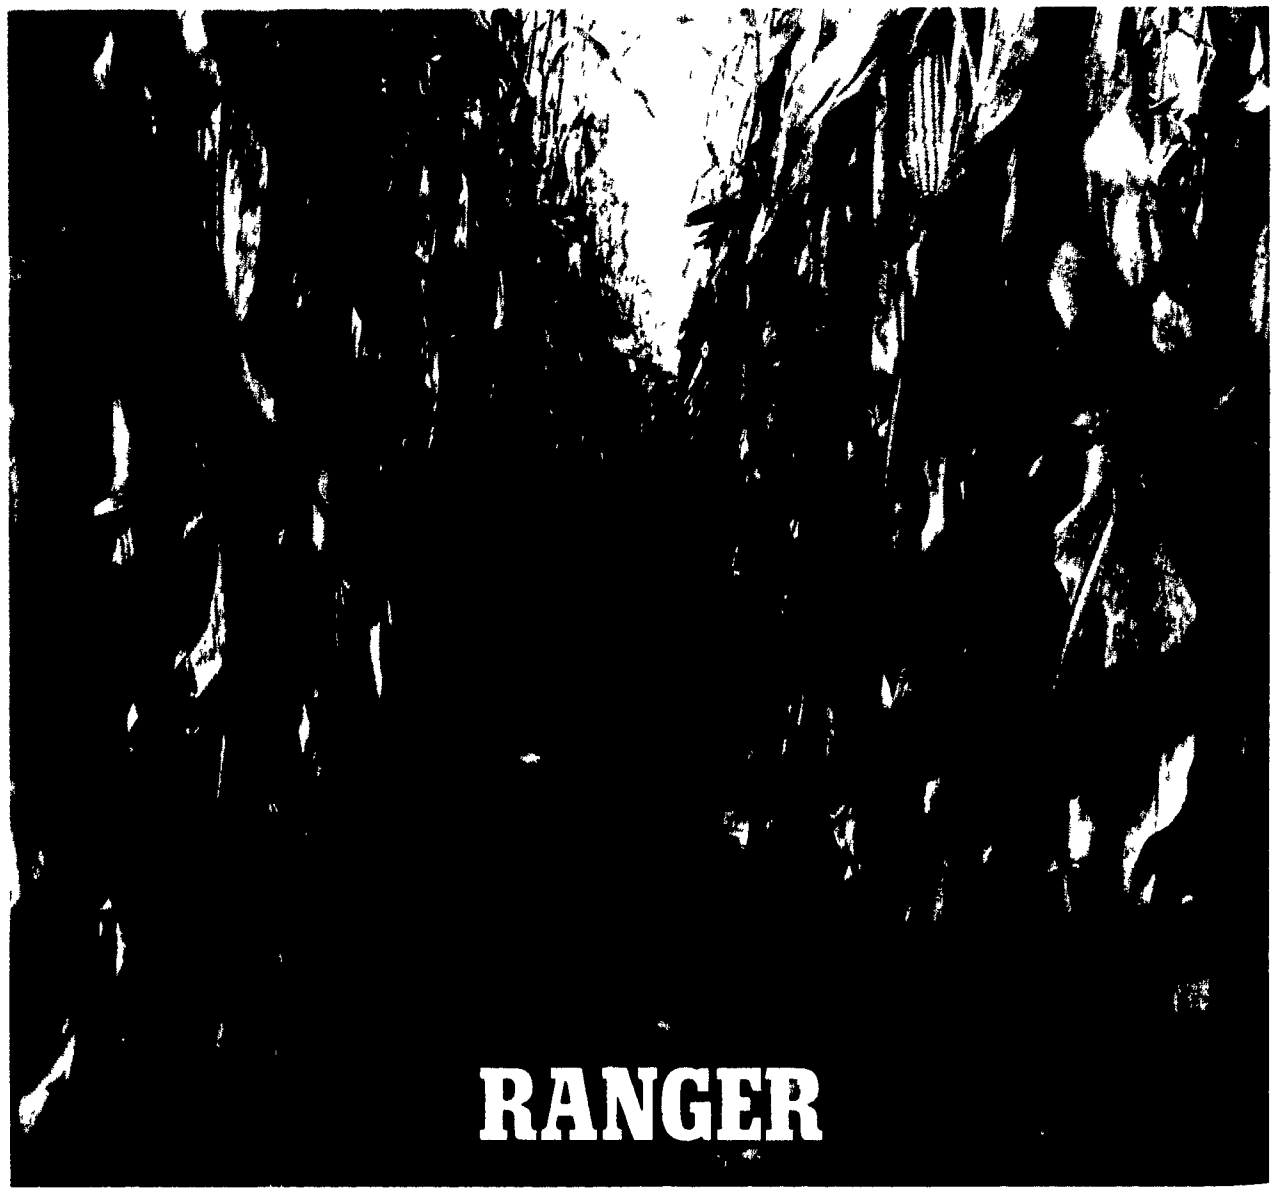
The Junior team members were: Ron Kimmel, Captain; Mark Ream, Scott Ream, Natalie Welch; Michelle Countryman, Alternate. The coaches were David Connie Welch of Berlin. The Junior Holstein Club members in the county were recognized for the production of their project animals in the local, county, and the State milk and fat contest. Plaques were awarded to Cory and Thadd Will, a team of brothers, who captured all the first place milk awards in the county this year.

Somerset County Club Directors recognized for jobs well done in 1987 were: Don Glessner, President; John Will, Vice-President; Barbara Berkley, Secretary-Treasurer; and Wayne Schrock, News Reporter; John Will, Youth Chairman; Dan Carr, Fall Classic Sale and Banquet Chairman; Mark Marteeney, Fall Classic Co-Chairman; Willard Maust, Tour Chairman, Tour Chairman; Bill Hunsberger, Black and White Show Chairman; and Dennis Reiman, Genetic Workshop and Special Meeting Chairman.

The County Sales Representative, Paul Countryman was commended for his work during the year as was Patti Carr the head of the advertising. Clair Reiman of Berlin, a retired Holstein Club member and Director was award a plaque in appreciation of all his years of service.

Ken Raney the director of membership from the state office gave a report and recognized Dennis Reiman and Kerry Knepper as winners of the county membership drive.

Look at the difference atrazine on



Tops and roots control with no carryover.

Two or more pounds of atrazine for quackgrass can cost your dairy operation two ways. First, labeled rates of atrazine can only suppress quackgrass, not really control it. As a result, quackgrass will often come back within weeks of treatment, and year after year after that.

Second, as little as two pounds of atrazine used in any one of the three "corn" years before alfalfa has an almost 70% chance of causing carryover damage – even if you cut back later. Although the damage may not be obvious to the eye, this level of atrazine residue can cause an almost one third tonnage loss and a 20% stand reduction (published university data).

Ranger gives you true control with no carryover

Ranger® herbicide is a better answer for quackgrass. Ranger works differently than atrazine Sprayed pre-plant before corn on emerged quackgrass tops, Ranger moves down through the plant to its roots and kills the entire root

Distinguished Jersey Breeder Helps Others Get A Start In Dairy

GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Adams Co. Correspondent

HARRISONVILLE — Wallace Mellott has never been president of the Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Club. He has never been a National director or even served on very many PJCC committees. What Wallace Mellott has done was to buy and completely re-juvenate a delapidated, red shale soil dairy farm on the western edge of Fulton County. He now owns a complete line of farming equipment, has remodeled his house, and added a milking parlor and upright silos to his operation. He has provided his son, Mattern, with a college education. He has sold hundreds of Registered Jerseys to established dairymen and provided sound breeding stock for young people just starting into the dairy business.

Wallace Mellott has made his dreams come true and he has helped others in the pursuit of their dreams to become successful dairymen. He has done this all with Registered Jerseys. And, in recognition for his dedication to the development and promotion of Jerseys in Pennsylvania, the Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Club bestowed upon Wallace at their Annual Meeting this year the Distinguished Service Award.

Wallace was genuinely surprised when he was informed of his selection for the revered award. He notes, "I have received more from Jersey cattle and Jersey people than I have ever given to them. The better you do for this little Jersey cow, the more you find yourself indebted to her."

Wallace's modesty on receiving this honor can only be matched by the modest beginnings of his dairy career. Wallace and his wife, Sara Mae, purchased their first Registered Jersey in 1953. Just a calf, Bryncoed Ethyl Sybil, came home with Wallace for the price of $100.00 from the Sam Williams herd in Middletown, PA.

Originally intended to be a family cow, the Mellotts could not bear to part with any of her female offspring. By 1959 they had Ethyl and her eight progeny housed at a 2 acre property. Sara Mae tended the cows with their young son Matthern's help while Wallace worked as an A.I. technician for the Southeastern PA Breeders Cooperative, a position he held for 15 years. Today the Mellotts milk over 80 cows and have a compliment of heifers all direct descendents of the "Old Ethyl" cow.

That same year Wallace and Sara Mae purchased their farm, a submarginal operation that consisted of 70 acres of cleared land that was laid out in three large fields. The red shale soil had eroded badly, leaving behind giant gullies. Wallace continued breeding cows and they could only acquire one of the poorest milk markets.

Wallace remembers, "1966 was a critical year for us. Matt was ready to go to college and that October we had no money to pay our bills. Wallace approached a PSU Extension specialist who told him how foolish he was to try to farm and that the only good thing to do with a Jersey calf was knock it in the head.

He next turned to the Farmers Home Administration for a loan. His application was refused stating, "You have a submarginal farm and you have a breed of cattle that just don't fit the industry today."

Fortunately, Wallace had a neighbor who sold him corn that fall and was wiling to wait on his money. Wallace reminisced, "That was all those twenty little Jersey cows asked for, good feed and good care. By January we had paid for all that corn. By April we were all caught up on our bills and could afford to buy a pipeline. Those 20 cows were shipping 1500 pounds of milk every other day. Having secured a good market with Sealtest was an important plus too."

Wallace and Sara Mae's herd of Jerseys went on to even better laurals. In 1970 they led the state in Jersey herd averages for milk and fat. That same year the Mellott's had 6 of the top 10 Jerseys in the state for butterfat production. Since that time, they have been the state's top herd for milk or fat or both eight times.

As for his farmland, Wallace used an old F30 tractor and sunk his subsoiler in 24-30 inches deep and rooted up all his acreage. He applied over 700 tons of lime to his ground the first seven years. His corn, alfalfa, and other grass hays have no rival in the county. In 1977 the Pennsylvania Grassland Council chose their Wally-Mae farm to receive the Pennsylvania Grassland Award.

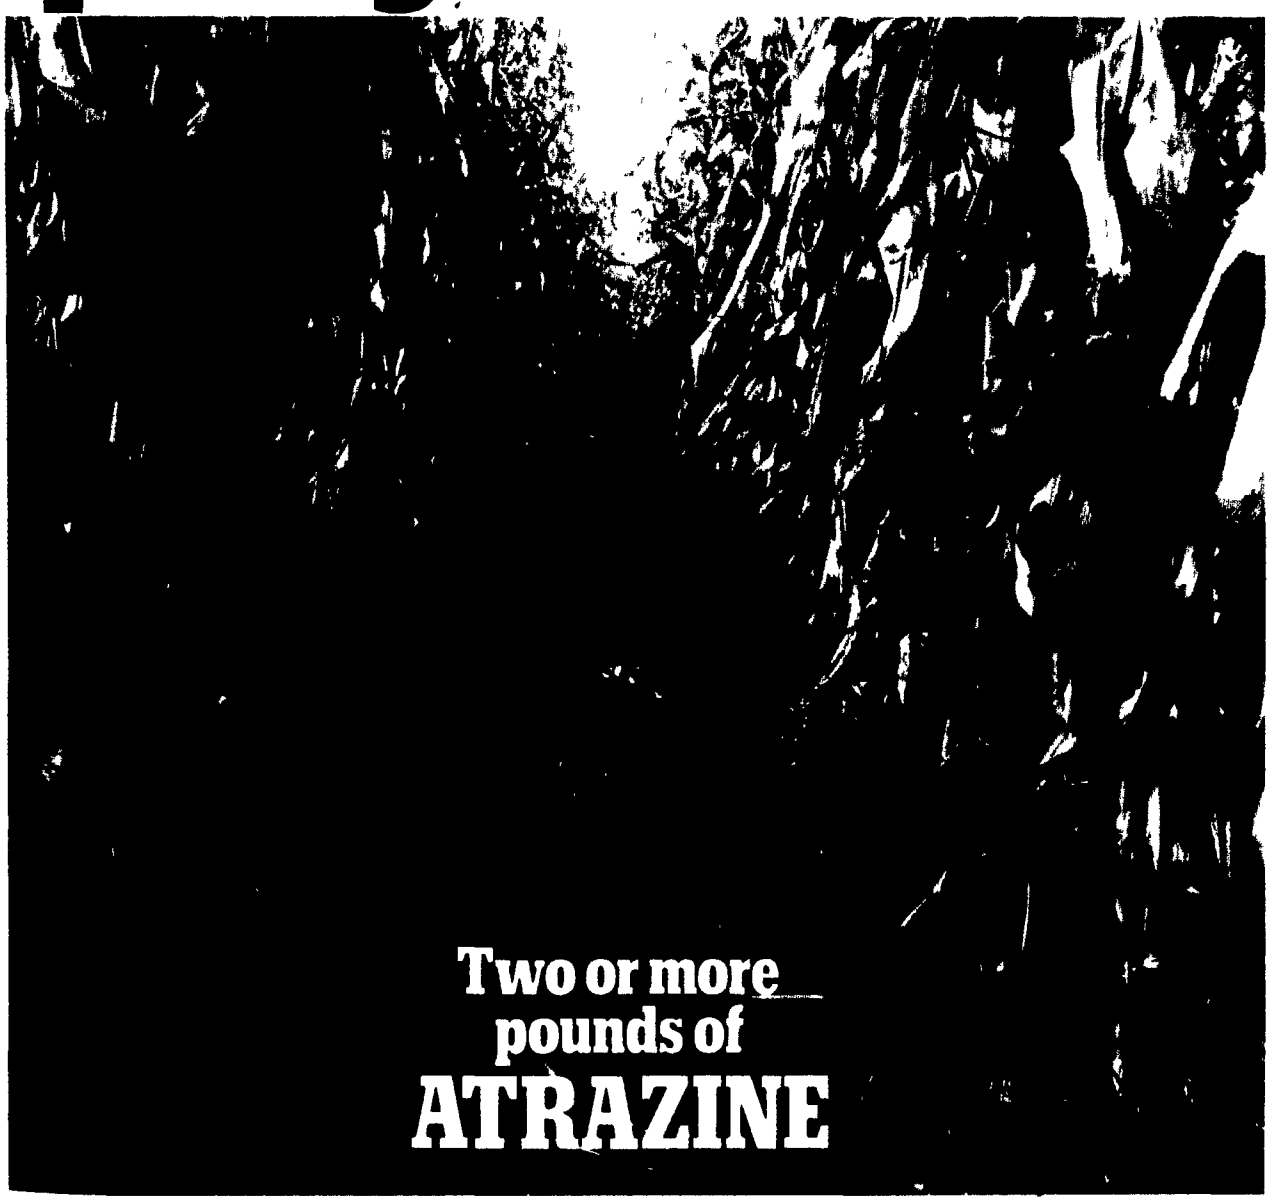
But the Mellotts have known their share of adversities with their cows too. For example, while Wallace credited the feeding of trefoil hay for their tremendous butterfat production, he now suspects it was also the culprit in a strange downer cow problem they had there.

The year following their first state high herd average, their cows started laying down, and all kinds of coaxing would not get them up. Blood samples were drawn, treatment administered, and still they lost 14 cows through this episode. In those 14 were all six of the cows that had been in the top 10 in the state for high butterfat production.

While the Mellotts have no trouble marketing their extra breeding stock, they take the most pride in the project calves they have sold to young 4-H and FFA members. Stated Wallace, "I like to sell youngsters calves but, I won't sell that calf at a reduced market price. They seem to value it more when it costs more. But, I'll refund to that youngster 10% of the purchase price if they win a fitting or showing ribbon at the county show. If they take the calf to a big show like in Harrisburg, I'll refund another 10%. If they take it to Louisville, I'll refund another 20%. I also have a number of heifers out to youngsters where I get their first heifer calf back as the purchase price. If that calf never has a heifer calf, they don't ever have to pay me."

Reflecting on their success with Jerseys, Wallace concluded, "I'll never be able to repay the good other people have done for me. In life you may never be able to repay someone, but you'll always have opportunities to give to others. Just like it says, it is better to give than to receive."

between Ranger® and quackgrass.



Top growth suppression with good chance of carryover.

system. Because quackgrass grows mainly from these roots and not its seeds, Ranger can give you long-lasting control. And because Ranger does not build up in the soil it won't cause you carryover problems later like atrazine.

Use Ranger on quackgrass, and cut back atrazine

When you get control of your quackgrass problem with Ranger you can reduce atrazine to much lower rates for use on many other weeds. Those lower rates will lessen the possibility of carryover damage. Ranger for quackgrass control. You can see the difference.

Turkeys And Rabbits Gain Popularity

By H.C. Jordan
Penn State University

If the present rate continues by 1999, there will be more rabbits than humans in America; there are already more turkeys than people in America. These two animals are being accepted by the public more each year.

Ponder some facts: turkey and rabbit meat are low in unwanted fat and lippids. Discriminating diet conscious people reach for these two meats. Success in these businesses can be described as what we reach for, what we get, and what we do with it. Consumers and farmers are reaching for rabbits and turkeys more and more. In the case of turkey the per capita meat consumption has grown from one (1) pound per capita in the early 1930s to (14) pounds per capita consumption today. This percent increase is more than any other meat that I am aware of. Why? — no one knows — we can only speculate; i.e., wild turkey hunters are among the most highly skilled hunters in the world and they are publishing articles getting Americans interested in wild turkey which our domestic turkey came from only 400 years ago.

Diet conscious Americans reach for turkey and prepare it well and eat it more frequently than ever before.

Restaurants use turkey as a frequent menu item because it is nutritious, popular, and inexpensive. In fact, turkey offers the housewife the lowest prices several months each year.

Church and fire hall kitchen directors reach for turkey to feed the working people in a banquet circuit. In America, we roast millions of turkeys each year.

Institutions cannot let turkey alone, they keep coming back for more. Turkey is used for hospitals, university students, and even the shelters for the less fortunate people.

The suburban dweller who wants a small flock of birds raises his own turkey flock. It is more common to raise your holiday feast today.

Home study correspondence course #106 from The Pennsylvania State University, Dept. of Independent Learning, PO Box 3207, 128 Mitchell Building, University Park, PA 16802, on turkeys enrolls more students nearly every year.

The turkey is "in!"; its popularity is climbing and we will have 300,000,000 turkeys in America by 1999. Export turkey helps our balance of trade.

Rabbit meat is in demand also. The price of rabbit meat has increased constantly for six years. The rabbit people say the consumer demand is up. More rabbits produced, more rabbits sold yet the price continues up — a first in history.

The enrollment in the correspondence course on the rabbit (Course #109 available from The Pennsylvania State University, Dept. of Independent Learning, PO Box 3207, 128 Mitchell Building, University Park, PA 16802) outsold all other courses in March-June 1987. People are reaching for the rabbit, first as a pet, then for a competitive show animal, and third for a lab animal to test such things are intravenous solutions before humans use them. Finally the rabbit meat business is increasing steadily, constantly, but not dramatically.

On this planet, as pollution and human conflict get worse the rabbit is stable. The rabbit is a most loveable, cuddly, and fetching animal. The rabbit is the most sensitive species alive that is used to protect humans from damage from vaccines, chemicals, drugs and food borne toxins.

The rabbit seldom makes noise or has a bad odor if kept right so they are kept in cities as well as suburbia. Some large cities allow a rabbit as an apartment pet.

The love-coeficient of the rabbit brings people (children) to it. Everyone reaches for a rabbit. Anyone can afford a rabbit. All summer they can live on clover, green grass, vegetable trimmings, salt and water if they are over 9 weeks old. In the winter, pellets, oats, and hay may be fed.

Rabbits bring parents and children together. A bunny can give a child a companion when a parent is away. Live 4-H rabbit shows bring spectators from miles around to see whose rabbit wins the champion ribbon and the cash prize. More adults get more excited about rabbit care than any other species according to feed company executives. The rabbit is popular, it is gaining popularity, and so far there is no end in sight.

Mark your calendar and come to the Penn State Rabbit Conference to be held April 22 and 23. To receive a program, write to: Rabbit Conference, Penn State University, 306 Ag. Admin. Building, University Park, PA 16802.

The satisfaction that comes from doing a good job of farming

Liming is one of the most important factors in keeping your soil in the highest productive range A good pasture with a pH of 6 5 or higher for example will make 300 to 400 lbs of beef per acre and produce up to $100 gross income per acre This means with the help of lime profits from pastures can compare favorably with feed or grain crops

Hidden View Farms - A World Of History

BY MARJORIE KEEN
Chester Co. Correspondent

COCHRANVILLE — After his bicentennial farm was featured in a Philadelphia newspaper two years ago, Bob Cochran chuckled that he'd received a proposal of marriage in the mail.

Hidden View Farms has been in Cochran's family since William Penn's sons granted 500 acres to James, Stephen and David Cochran in 1744. Cochran and his sister, Dorothy Pelehart, trace their line back six generations to David Cochran, one of the sons of a Scots-Irishman who came to America about 1715 and 10 years later gave his name to the village with Chester County's second oldest post office, Cochranville. Hidden View's 115 acres are the only part of the original farm still in the Cochran name.

Cochran grew up in the village; his father worked in a steel mill and raised chickens in the backyard carriage house. "We started farming here in 1928," Cochran explained.

Until that time, a tenant farmer managed Hidden View. "We came back and forth to farm this," Cochran said. "We put on a lot of miles."

"My wife and I were married in '44," he recalled. "We moved over here in '49, put electricity in and put a bathroom in.

"I've had hounds since 1940." said Cochran, who is master of the fox hunt. "This was a dairy farm and we farmed with horses. We got the first tractor about 1930 ro 1931, but we still kept a pair of horses. My dad wasn't satisfied that a tractor could go out and work corn just the same as horses. So we kept a pair of horses around two or three years, and they didn't do a tap of work."

Today, Hidden View Farms is home to 10 thoroughbreds. When Cochran's five children were growing up he kept a thoroughbred stallion, bred mares and raised colts. "I never had any trouble with the hounds or horses because they were always so friendly with people," he remarked. "When they get used to you they're no problem at all. When the horses were a year old the kids used to get on their backs, playing with them."

Three Cochran daughters work with horses at area race tracks, the fourth is in the insurance business during the week but hunts with hounds on Saturdays. Son Bobby works on the farm.

Cochran lifted a wreath covering his wife's grave near the red brick farmhouse. The granite stone read, "Wife and Mother, Gloria L. Cochran, 1922-1982." "I can watch from my bedroom window that she doesn't move the stone," Cochran teased.

Looking toward the house, he pointed out the 1857 date stone. "My dad never knew what date this was built because there was frame over this side of the house and over the back. Then Bobby and I tore that off. When he was tearing this off (uncovering the stone), I said, "Looky there!'"

Cochran speculated that Hidden View's first farmhouse probably built of wood or logs burned down. Among the records Pelehart carefully preserves is an 1841 survey, showing the house south rather than east of the barn.

"The reason I say we started farming here in '28," Cochran explained, "When the fellow left here who was farming on the halves, Dad went down to Conowingo Dam and bought four head of mules. Those mules had worked on building the dam."

Bob Cochran and his sister, Dorothy Pelehart, hold the deed to Hidden View Farms, which was granted to the family by the farm brothers.

"I was dairying up until '64," he continued. Then Cochran worked eight years for the state, first, as dog law investigator; later, as a meat inspector. "Then my son-in-law and I went back into farming. That's when a hailstorm came along and ruined the most beautiful field of corn you ever wanted to see. (His son-in-law) wanted to quit and go to school and he did."

Cochran rents out all but five acres that he keeps in hay for the horses. He grows about five more acres of hay back of the Cochranville Methodist Church. The soil in the area of Hidden View is the best you'll find anywhere because it holds the moisture, according to the farmer.

With the price of machinery today, Cochran declared that farmers must either "get bigger or get out. There used to be 12 to 15 dairies from Cochranville to Parkesburg," he said. "Now there are only two."

Cochran's memory stretches back to a time when Route 10 was a dirt road. "When the TB test first came around, we had about half our cows go down and about half of the neighbor's went down. Dad and (the neighbor) sent them all to the slaughter shop. They went out to Bedford County and bought a carload (of dairy cows) together, shipped them into Parkesburg, unloaded them and we drove them home on foot. There were fences at that time all along the road. I was knee high to a grasshopper."

Cochran explained how he started racing horses in the 60s. "The horse I had here, I hunted him in the winter," he said, "and this fellow took him and raced him in the summer." Cochran has raced horses in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Delaware, Maryland and Vermont. Today, only two of the thoroughbreds at Hidden View are Cochran's; the others belong to his daughters.

"I want Bobby to have the farm," said Cochran, "but I want the girls to be able to come in here and keep their horses here. I'm very interested in farmland preservation."

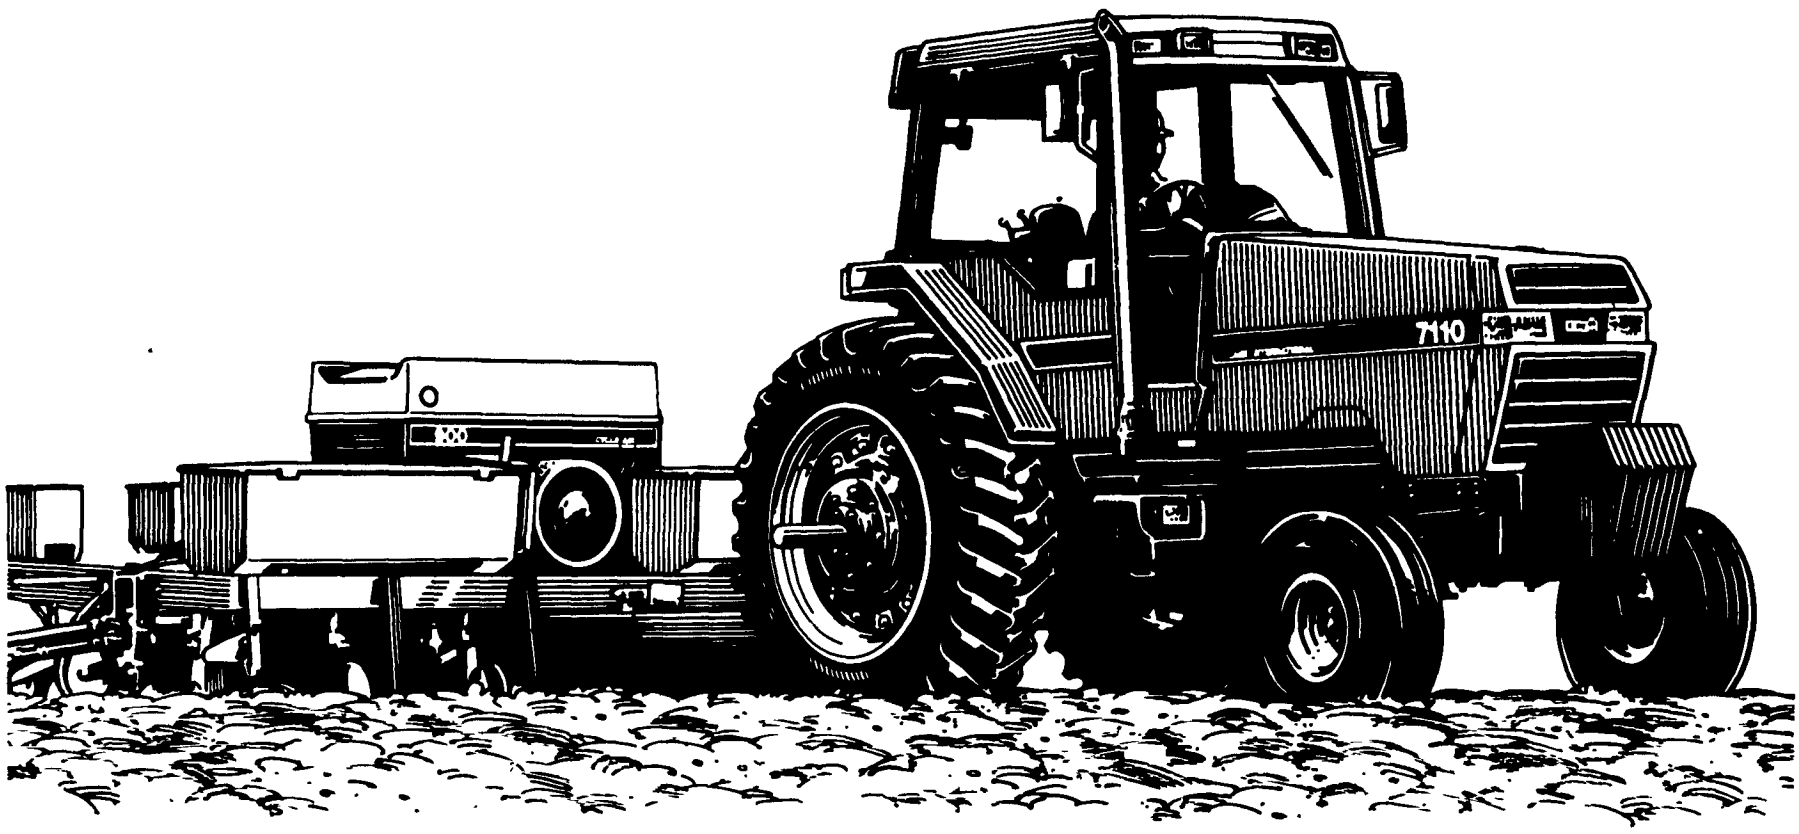
Introducing the new

MAGNUM 7110



And the first all-new tractors from Case IH

Case IH put more into the new MAGNUM Tractor line than any farm tractors developed in over twenty years. Here's why you'll get more out of it:

MAGNUM means more. Outstanding field performance from a new 505-cubic-inch turbocharged engine with reserve power. MAGNUM power.

The MAGNUM Tractor's powershift puts 18 speeds of shift-on-the-go workpower at your fingertips — standard. And only MAGNUM Tractors offer full powershift creeper transmission with six additional speeds from .5 to 2.1 mph for more control and performance. MAGNUM performance.

The MAGNUM Tractor's new larger cab has 48 square feet of window area — virtually unobstructed visibility — and more seating comfort. MAGNUM comfort.

It all adds up: The Case IH MAGNUM 7110 Tractor sets new standards for the 130 hp (97 kW) class — and for you. See us for details.

MAGNUM means more.

Lancaster Farming

VOL. 33 No. 22 | Lancaster Farming, Saturday, April 16, 1988 | 50¢ Per Copy | $10.00 Per Year

Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Rebecca Sonnen shops for dairy products.

Dairy Princess Program Promotes Industry, Develops Individuals

You may think a dairy princess only looks pretty and hands out ribbons at the local and state dairy shows, but don't be fooled. She does a lot of other things, too. A dairy princess also appears on TV shows to demonstrate how to make butter, records songs about the dairy industry that become hits Debra Miller Brubaker 1974 State Dairy Princess, and visits classrooms with employers such as a dentist as did Susan Seidel Beshore, 1974 Berks County Dairy Princess. In fact before State Alternate Dairy Princess Jennifer Barnett could make the trip from her home in western Pennyslvania to Harrisburg for the Spring Holstein Show, she needed to participate in a local event for consumers of milk.

Program History

While the qualifications to be a dairy princess have not changed over the 32-year span of the program, the name has changed. When the program started in 1956 the Pennsylvania Association of Milk Dealers initiated the Milk Maid Contest. Milk Maids were chosen according to Pennsylvania Milk Marketing areas. Each Milk Maid from each local district competed for the state title.

As with the present dairy princesses, each Milk Maid brought her own talents and personality to the program. In 1957 Beverly Robison Minor, State Miss Milk Maid from Washington County, became nationally famous overnight when she helped Pennsylvania Governor David Lawrence milk a cow at the Pennsylvania Farm Show. In the process, the Governor fell off the milk stool and Beverly tried to catch him. A UPI photographer wired a photograph of the happening across the nation. In this picture Beverly appeared to have pushed the Governor off the stool. "I even got a copy of that picture from Hong Kong," Beverly said recently. "And of course everyone razed me about kicking the Governor off the milk stool."

County System Started

In 1968 after a one-year lapse in the program, the Pennsylvania Holstein Association assumed sponsorship of the program. And the geographic representation was changed to the County Dairy Princess system we have today. With this realignment the program embraces more contestants and more opportunity to try for the state title. And more milk promotion opportunities occur too, especially at the local level.

The program continued to evolve through a number of steps. From 1956 to 1971 the state winners, who were by then called dairy princesses, competed in a national dairy princess contest sponsored by the American Dairy Association. ADA also coordinated the state program and worked with six district coordinators and the county promotional committees.

Promotion Money Used

Farmer-supported milk promotion programs in recent years have provided a broader base for participation by the dairy princess program. Now organized under the title of Dairy Princess and Promotion Services Inc., this program continues to prepare dairy farmers' daughters to serve as spokespersons for the dairy industry to the marketplace. Cindy Neely Weimer, 1980 State Dairy Princess who now coordinates communications for UDIA, credits her experiences as a dairy princess for her present involvement in dairy product promotion.

For many young ladies, to stand before an audience and make personal presentations for milk products is a frightening prospect. But Susan Seidel Beshore, 1974 Berks County Dairy Princess, says there are so many girls in the country who would do a good job as a dairy princess. "You must realize," Susan said, "your county committee only wants their princess to do what she can. They do not compare the accomplishments of one person with another. Any girl who thinks about entering, should do so," Susan said.

For Tammy Cree, 1983 Washington-Green County Dairy Princess, it was a matter of pride in her family's dairy occupation. She loved farming and took the opportunity to communicate that message to other people. Laura England, 1979 Blair County Dairy Princess, geared her reign more to the consumer. "Farmers tend to look to promotional programs. But the responsibility to put the best foot forward

Beverly Robison Minor
1959 PA Miss Milkmaid

Of course not every dairy princess will earn the honor or notoriety of kicking the governor off the milking stool as did Beverly Robison Minor, the 1959 Pennsylvania Miss Milk Maid. But not every dairy princess had her picture flashed around the world via UPI wire to newspapers and magazines.

As Pennsylvania Governor David Lawrence made his annual state farm show tour, Beverly convinced Lawrence to try his luck at milking a cow.

"Well, when he sat down on the milk stool and began milking the cow the stool slipped out from under him and I caught him," said Beverly. "Some astute photographer got that picture and it went all over the country and the world. I even got a a copy of it from Hong Kong and everyone, of course, razed me for kicking the governor off the milk stool."

"How much the girls grow depends on how much the girls are willing to put into it.

For the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Robison of Cloverhill in Washington County, it was certainly one of the most memorable experiences of her reign, but there were many.

Winning the state title was not a dream come true for Beverly and in looking back she says she cannot remember how she became involved with the program. Today, she readily admits that year became priceless to her.

"I couldn't believe I had won. I was used to showing cattle and winning, but not when I was the one being judged," said Beverly.

"It was not in anyway a beauty pageant. We were judged on the way we were. We had personal interviews and had to give an impromptu speech, but that was easy. I have always been enthused about the dairy industry, my way of life and the way I grew up and I always enjoy telling people about it."

Beverly and her husband Sam are the owners and operators of the Springhouse. Through the dairy store and which has recently become a restaurant also, Beverly has continued to devote her life to the promotion of the dairy industry and the inherent way of life.

"We are now milk juggers, not just sellers. Selling milk is the drawing card, but we also sell cheese, ice cream, smoke hams, we do baking and have recently opened the country buffet restaurant and offer homemade soups and a different lunch and supper special every night. It keeps us all very busy, including our five children."

Nearly 20 girls competed in 1959 for the title of Miss Milk Maid, but only one girl would win and only one girl would have the responsibility of the promoting the dairy industry throughout the state. Unlike today's program demands involvement from all county winners and as well as alternates at the state and local levels.

"At that time there were no organized promotional activities like there is now. And the winner was the winner. The winner was the only one who did the promotions and traveled. Now there are 44 winners because there are 44 counties.

"My daughter was the runner-up last year and she and so many of the other girls became such good friends. The girls have a lot more fun together now than we did then. They form friendships and work together all over the state. Jan Harding does a wonderful job of getting all the girls together now," said Beverly.

As the one and only winner, Beverly spent an exhausting year traveling. She had a chaperone and booking agent, Don Seimer, hired by the milk dealers. Although the program has changed and expanded in many ways, there are aspects of the program which have not changed.

Governor Lawrence sat on the stool ere any one could tell the rule–
"Tis a game of chance you play
When you sit to milk each day.
Lean forward, rest your brow on the cow
Not back! Wait a minute! Wow!"

"How much the girls grow depends on how much the girls are willing to put into it. There is so much you can do with it, but it all depends on the girls," stated Beverly. "But one thing the girls really need is the backing of her family. She really needs their support in everything that she does because she has so much to get done."

Becoming a dairy princess took some getting used to for Beverly. She was not accustomed to being in the spotlight without a Jersey by her side.

"The focus was always on me. It was very, very hard and very, very exhausting.

The Dairy Princess Needs Her Family's Support

The 1974 PA Dairy Princess Debra Miller Brubaker became well-known as the singing dairy princess.

Debra Miller Brubaker
1974 State Dairy Princess

Probably best known as the singing dairy princess, Debra Miller Brubaker, was accustomed to the spotlight long before being crowned the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess in 1974. Along with her parents Paul and Pat Miller she and her brothers were the Singing Millers of Linglestown, Dauphin County.

"We started in the 1960's singing Christmas Carols and little by little civic organizations, churches, and dairy organizations requested us. And then a company wanted us to make a record. We were a

It was a lot harder than mowing all day long or anything else I had done on the farm. Don was insistent that I always be at my best. And he was really very critical, very critical. But I learned a lot from him," Beverly remembers.

"In every town I went into Don had four or five radio interviews set up for me or interviews with newspapers. He would tell me exactly what I was to do. It was very intense. I was only home for two weeks that whole summer.

"We became very good friends, and I became very close with his family. We traveled from one town to another. He was very insistent upon visiting groups other than dairy farmers like Kiwanis Clubs and Lions clubs," explained Beverly.

The green rolling hills of western Pennsylvania were quite different from the flatter terrain in eastern portions of the state. But one thing was constant, Beverly noted and that was the people.

"Dairy people are very basic people, very sincere, and genuine people. I met people that I never knew, created friendships and those friendships have opened up doors all of my life. It enlarged the scope of what I see in the dairy industry," said Beverly.

Like all dairy princess, Beverly knew what farm work was. From raising calves, mowing and baling hay to the milking, this milk maid had done just about everything on the family's Jersey farm. Her father and brother still operate the farm with a 90-head milking herd. At nine-years-old she joined 4-H and showed only dairy cattle and excelled by taking some of Dad's advice.

"Dad always felt that you could only do one thing well," said Beverly. Her devotion to dairy animals earned her the number one spot in Pennsylvania judging dairy cattle.

"We had a retail dairy store and distributed milk. Early in the morning I would go with my Dad on the truck. When you grow up on a farm you get used to that. We also raised chickens and turkeys and I cut the heads off and cleaned them and we also sold them door-to-door on our milk route. I had a great time growing up.

"I kid my Dad that I grew up selling milk and I'm still selling milk. All three of us, brother and a sister are still in the dairy business. And that's unusual for this day and age.

Beverly and her husband Sam Minor milk mostly Holsteins on their farm in Washington, but Beverly said she had to have a few Jerseys.

"I always say that it's those five Jerseys that give the milk its good flavor," said Beverly.

"Sam and I bought our farm and built the parlor and the store. We would not have been content to just milk cows. We are both people persons and this is what we enjoy doing most."

very busy family, but we had really good hired people to help with the farm work," explained Debra.

Although Debra was accustomed to being the center of attention and performing, she admits she was a bit on the shy side and apprehensive about competing for the crown.

"As a little girl I watched the Miss America pageants and I had been to one or two of the state dairy princess contests and it inspired me," said Debra. "It was just like having the Miss America for farmers to help promote dairy products.I wanted to do this, but I was always on the shyside and it scared me a little bit. I guess I was afraid I couldn't do a good enough job and bring embarassment to everyone."

"Mom and Dad sat down with me in August of 1974 and talked to me about going for State Dairy princess. We have always been a very close christian family and we felt that if it was the Lord's will, if it was part of His plans then it will be and He will be with me. And that really helped me," explained Debra.

Debra was fortunate to have the support and encouragement from her parents and other family members. Paul Miller encouraged all his children to get involved in dairy farming and made sure his children were active in 4-H as well as doing their share of farm work. And because of this hands-on experience, Debra felt right at home talking about the dairy industry and life on the farm.

"My father encouraged all of us to get involved in showing dairy cattle and took an interest in what we did. We had all registered Holsteins. I was a small girl and when I started out I had a small calf, but my third year my calf had grown more than I had. So here was this little girl trying to hold onto this three-year-old Holstein cow and she was a lot bigger than me," said Debra.

But that little girl was at the halter of her first grand champion in that third year of 4-H competition and was more excited about that rosette than she was when she received her banner and crown in 1974. She won several grand championships throughout her 4-H career and held every office in her 4-H chapter, except for president. She was a member of the judging team for several years and on the state level her team had come in third at the same time she placed 15th out of more than 100 competitors in her final year in 4-H.

The Millers were asked by the Babson Brothers and Surge milking equipment dealers to record a milk promotion song for them. It was a 45 record, "Make Mine Milk Today" with a picture of the Singing Millers on the record jacket and it came out before Debra became dairy princess.

"For my presentation for the Dauphin County contest I sang the song at the end and handed out bumper stickers for everybody. People had caught on to the singing dairy princess. I traveled all over Pennsylvania after I won the state title and the Singing Millers were asked to come wherever I went as the entertainment. And wherever they went to entertain, I was asked to come along and speak about the dairy industry.

"So I was able to get into organizations and speak where I might not have had the opportunity," said Debra.

Debra describes Clarion-Venango counties as God's Country. She describes her year of traveling to New York, Philadelphia and doing TV shows as an eye-opening and growing-up experience. Shortly after winning the state title, Debra was in Philadelphia at the Super Sundae Milk Promotion and also appeared at the Philadelphia Zoo when the zoo had a Holstein cow there.

Along with the New Jersey State Dairy Princess, Debra appeared on the Gary Gears Talk Show on television. She was also interviewed on the Dialing For Dollars Show and taught Captian Noah how to make butter on his own show.

"We went to the Town and Country Days in Washington County and a lot of consumers came out. We handed out recipes which is a terrific way to get women involved and interested in buying and using dairy products. That year my Mom and I came up with the idea of printing a book of my favorite recipes using dairy products and they had my name on the front of it," said Debra.

"It was a great year out of my life. The timing was perfect. It requires a lot of dedication and you can't do it if you are not whole heartedly in it," Debra explained. "I matured mentally and spiritually. It gave me confidence in everything I do.

"I enjoyed all the new friends and wonderful people and the beautiful letters people wrote me. I have two daughters and even if they are slightly interested in becoming the dairy princess, I will certainly encourage them to do so."

Along with her husband Lowell, and their three children, Debra lives in Manheim.

The Singing Millers cut their first record 'Make Mine Milk Today' for Surge Equipment Company in 1973. Debra and her family travelled throughout the state singing and promoting the dairy industry together.

"Mom and Dad sat down with me in August of 1974 and talked to me about going for State Dairy Princess. We have always been a very close christian family and we felt that if it was the Lord's will, if it was part of His plans then it will be and He will be with me. And that really helped me," —— Debra Miller Brubaker.

A Princess Who Is A Farm Girl At Heart

RICHLAND — Seven months ago Rebecca Sonnen joined the long list of royalty when she was crowned the 31st Pennsylvania Dairy Princess. But her father Paul smiles and says from his perspective things haven't changed. "Becky's always been my princess—long before she got her crown."

Although Becky enjoys meeting new people and the publicity that comes with her position, some things haven't changed for her either. Her favorite spot remains her home nestled in the rolling farm land of Lebanon County. The Sonnen's 200-acres stretch across the valley, a creek winds through the fields and splashes over the rocks, cows graze in the meadows and a quaint, stone church sets in the background. It's in this idyllic setting that Becky unwinds from the demands of a dairy princess's hectic schedule.

Since her coronation, she has made 95 appearances at special events like the All-American Breed Shows, the PA Jersey Sale, the All-American Sale, and the New York Eastern Milk Producers Show to hand out ribbons, pose with winners, and promote her favorite beverage — milk.

While educating others, Becky also learned a few things such as the proper procedure for a princess to sneeze. While seated at the head table at the Pennsylvania Dairymens' banquet, she needed to sneeze. She covered her mouth politely and gave a hearty sneeze that sent her crown flying. Now, when she sneezes, she grabs both her crown and her mouth.

Publicity engagements have sliced Rebecca's daily two-hour milking stints to Sundays only. She misses the tranquility of spending time in the barn and the cows miss her. Especially Super. For it was Super, a deluxe holstein, that first pushed Becky into stardom by winning blue ribbons and grand championships at county fairs. That was seven years ago, four heifers and one bull calf earlier for Super who has now lost her award-winning figure but not her deep attachment to her mistress.

Super, a prize-winning Holstein in her earlier years, may have lost her figure but she hasn't lost her devotion to her mistress.

Over the years, Becky has accumulated many trophies and awards for her talents. Here, she stands in front of some of those displayed throughout their home.

Becky's mom insists, "When Becky enters the barn, Super's ears go back and she looks all around for Becky until she finds her."

Becky's touch has not only grown sparse with Super but the other cows are now unfamiliar with Becky. "The cows kick and jump around since they aren't use to me milking them," Becky said of their 72 holsteins.

Regardless of the cows' reception to her, Becky still considers milking one of the best ways to relax after a busy week. "When I come home from one of the dairy promotions, I'm so exhausted, I have so

An Opportunity To Promote The Dairy Industry

Tammy Cree
1983 State Dairy Princess

"My farm experience was very positive. I have always been very proud to be a dairy farmer. I have a lot of pride in our products and we need to instill that pride in consumers. I firmly believe we must all drink milk when we are out in public," said Tammy Cree and her pride in the industry prompted her to take a year's leave from work and college to devote to her reign as Pennsylvania State Dairy Princess in 1983.

"To me it was not a beauty pageant. It was an opportunity to promote the industry and the way of life that I love. I was trying to win because I loved farming. It's our life. I have a strong sense of pride about our way of life and I wanted an opportunity to communicate that message to other people," said Tammy.

However, coordinators of the dairy princess program tried to discourage Tammy from taking off a year to devote to her reign. They thought such an act might discourage others from competing who were not able to make that type of committment.

"The dairy princess coordinators do not encourage any such thing. They want girls to help promote the dairy industry and to

(Turn to Page E7)

After promoting the health benefits of dairy products to 13,000 students across the state during her reign, Tammy had few fears when it came time to make her debut in her teaching career.

Farm Girl

much homework and I must catch up on what I missed at school. Going out in the barn helps me to relax."

No matter how tired she gets, Becky never seems to stop smiling. Her mother said that Becky is as likeable in private as she is in public. "I always say Becky is the sunshine of my life. She is a neat daughter. She has a mind of her own and I like that. She sticks up for herself and what she believes."

But sticking up for herself and conversing with ease was not always a part of Becky's life. Her mother said, "FFA made her what she is."

Becky agrees, "I owe my success to FFA because it really pushed me into public speaking."

Becky recalls that as a shy ninth grader, she was afraid to even answer the phone in the school's ag department. Finally, her teacher demanded she answer the phone while he listened in on another extension and graded her telephone ability.

Becky must have passed that test for it wasn't long after that that her teacher told Mrs. Sonnen, "I'm going to make a public speaker out of Becky."

Becky admits, "I was intriqued by public speaking. I liked it a lot after that. I gained poise."

But gaining poise did not happen overnight. Becky said, "Becoming a good public speaker was a gradual process. I learned a lot of pointers that helped me relax. My ag teacher stressed that if we were unsure of the best answers, we should pretend we really know and believe in what we are saying."

That confident attitude has paid off for Becky who has accumulated an impressive amount of accomplishments. Besides being state dairy princess, she is FFA president and National Honor Society president at Conrad Weiser High School, advisor representative for her county's Jr. Miss contest, and she placed first in the state FFA public speaking competition.

With all those achievements, does she ever fail?

"Lots of times," Becky admits with candid honesty. "In ninth grade, I really wanted to win the creed contest at the state level, but I came in fifth."

But disappointments only make Becky try harder to perfect her skills.

Next year she plans to major in agricultural economics and dairy production at Penn State Capitol Campus.

"After college, I think it would be neat to be a breed representative. I'd like to travel a lot." She paused, excitement crept across her face as she explained. "I think there are so many neat jobs. I'd like to try a lot of different jobs."

Becky is optimistic about the future of dairy farmers. She said, "Dairy farms are getting better because they can produce more feed on less land. So many people want to go into agriculture related careers. There is so much science and knowledge in developing and getting better cows. Over the years, the quality in dairy cattle has changed a lot."

Becky was especially impressed at the All-American Show. "I never saw so many nice cows before that. It's incredible." Her assestment isn't flighty reasoning since Becky considers herself a fairly accurate judge of cattle. This summer, her 4-H team was first in state competition for oral reasoning in cattle judging.

Becky also believes that the public consumes more milk products that ever before. She credits dairy princesses as one of the prime motivators in making the public aware of the nutrition and good taste of dairy products.

But this princess who appears at many public functions remains a farm girl at heart. She said, "I don't like dressing up in a gown and makeup. I'd rather just dress in farm garb."

With that attitude, this farm girl serves as a convincing ambassador who uses her position to tell young and old of the merits of drinking milk. Becky said, "I love representing the dairy industry. I meet so many neat people."

An Opportunity To Promote

devote what time and effort they can to doing that. They just want girls to do the best they can," explained Tammy.

For the daughter of William and Lura Cree, being from a dairy farm in Washington County made her rather unique. This county is know more for its sheep and beef. Dairy farming was not popular there. Tammy said she felt that dairy farming carried negative connotations in her area, but she took it as a challenge and put her beliefs to work and encouraged dairy farmers to do the same.

She became state princess during the time when plans were being made to cut back on milk production. Her first speaking engagement as the state princess was at the Eastern Milk Producers annual meeting in Syracuse, New York.

"I asked them 'How can you expect the consumers to want to buy your product if you don't buy it yourself?'. I was really pushing farmers to buy milk when they are having dinner out in public and I still believe it today," stated Tammy. "I think farmers must be proud of what they are doing and get out there and promote their own products."

Tammy was adamant about the consumption of real dairy products. Her supermarket promotions were far from passive.

"I would go up to people who were buying certain products and ask them if they knew what was in it. And they would be surprised to learn that it was not really a dairy product at all," said Tammy.

"Consumers were interested in fitness as they are now. They thought that many dairy products were fattening and so I would compare products like butter and margarine from a health angle and stress skim milk and the importance of calcium in their diet. I asked them if they were not eating dairy products how could they make sure they were getting enough calcium. Some people would say they were taking calcium tablets and I would say to them 'and don't those calcium tablets taste so good'. And kids would say they don't drink milk because milk is 'yucky' and I would say, but what about ice cream, you like ice cream don't you.,"

Tammy spent time talking to women's groups about the prevention of osteoporosis and delivered her message about health and fitness to nearly 13,000 students across the state.

Tammy traveled to New City to do a food fair along the Hudson River and toured the city. At the Vet Stadium in Philadelphia, Tammy taught members of the Phillies and Pirates teams how to milk a cow as part of a milk promotion.

"I wanted to give 100 percent to it and I don't regret taking that year off. I think it has helped me in my chosen career as an elementary teacher. I spoke to 13,000 students when I was a dairy princess and I did not have the fear of children that many of my friends did when I was doing my student teaching," said Tammy.

"I didn't have an opportunity to think about what I would do when I won the state dairy princess title. It was sink or swim and I swam. I always enjoyed it. I loved the excitement and I really did not have a problem with having to think on my feet because I always had a message and a story to tell about dairy farming," explained Tammy.

Tammy continues to be a vital part of the state program by conducting the annual dairy princess workshop on social poise held in July.

"Social poise is probably the most important thing. You have no concept of what you have to expect. Everyone comes into the workshop as equals and it's great to see how they've grown when they have finished the seminar. They have very positive attitudes and I know it helps them at the state pageant," said Tammy.

Tammy Cree, 1983 PA Dairy Princess, milking cows at her parents' farm in Washington County.

"To me it was not a beauty pageant. It was an opportunity to promote the industry and the way of life that I love. I was trying to win because I loved farming. It's our life. I have a strong sense of pride about our way of life and I wanted an opportunity to communicate that message to other people,"——Tammy Cree.

Before you turn out your heifers on pasture, consider how you'll get them bred to the best bulls.

Here's why you should use AI on your heifers:

- ✔ Greater genetic improvement with each generation
- ✔ Higher value of calves for herd replacement or surplus sales
- ✔ Individual selection of service sires
- ✔ Reliable calving ease and conception information
- ✔ Eliminate danger, disease, and expense factors associated with natural service from a bull on the farm
- ✔ Avoid possible injury to heifers caused by a bull
- ✔ AI service is economical and dependable
- ✔ Programmed breeding with prostaglandin treatment

More Than A Pretty Face With A Crown

Dairy princesses are unique. How many other teens walk into schools, stores, malls and other public places with crowns on their heads? How many capitalize on the stir they create and use it to tout the goodness of dairy products?

In Pennsylvania, 42 teens do exactly that. And because they do, they have become the dairy industry's most effective advertisers.

Clarinda Leatherman, Hamburg, is one of these busy advertisers. She earned the titles of both the Berks County and the PA First Alternate Dairy Princess. With her bubbly smile and glittering crown, she has made more than 170 appearances in school classrooms, written 18 radio spots, and had more than 60 articles printed in behalf of the dairy industry. Like the other dairy princesses that represent the state, she has beguiled hundreds into tasting milk and cheese.

But Clarinda is much more than a pretty face wearing a crown. She's committed to doing her best as a spokesperson for the dairy industry because she's convinced of the goodness of milk. As the daughter of dairy farmers, Daniel and Nancy Leatherman, Hamburg, Clarinda is familiar with the long hours and toil that is required in providing citizens with wholesome milk.

Clarinda diligently fills her term as dairy princess by making many pressing public appearances. For the princess who is still a student, scheduling, catching up with class assignments, tests and making up homework can be hectic enough, but for those like Clarinda, who completed high school and are employed, appearing at these countless functions, means giving up a steady paycheck. Occasionally, these commitments only allow Clarinda to work one day a week—which drastically deflates her paycheck.

"It isn't always easy," Clarinda admits. "Especially when I get together with my old school friends and they seem to have so much money to spend on clothes and cars and everything they want."

But Clarinda isn't complaining. "I love this job," she said. Her duties have given her a different perspective on life. Before her crowning, her goal was to get married and be a housewife. Now she admits, she

Clarinda practices what she preaches: she snacks on milk and foods such as cheese cake for nutritional, good-tasting foods while her mom, Nancy, pages through Clarinda's award winning scrapbook.

Maggie the cow accompanies Clarinda in her classroom presentations. Her brothers, (left) Nate, 8; and Benji, 11; enthusiastically support farming but will be glad when their dairy princess sister can be a normal sister again.

More Than A Pretty Face

still wants to do that but she also would like a career. "I love to talk," she explained, and I love people. I think I'd love a job in public relations."

Her brothers Nate, 8; and Benji, 11; give a sly smile and insert that, "She also likes to give kisses—lots of them."

Her eight-year-old brother considers kissing others as yucky. He only likes to kiss his dog and the cows—not his sister.

Her brothers aren't impressed with all the attention their sister's title has given her. Although they complain that their sister is too busy to work at home and they need to do her work on the 147-acre farm, a glimmer of pride shines through their eyes while they glance in her direction. And they add with a playful punch, that Clarinda gets all the attention now, because, "everyone always gathers around her just as if she's really a princess."

According to Clarinda, having everyone's eyes on you can sometimes be embarrasing such as the time she attended a state banquet where her water glass slipped from her hand and rolled across the table.

Mostly, the attention is fun. The state farm show was the highlight of Clarinda's reign. She found it mind boggling to see so many people come to the farming environment. "All those freebies we hand out really pay off. It shows people just how good a glass of cold milk tastes."

Clarinda has warm memories of the state pageant where she got to know the other contestants during the two day contest. Besides gaining the first runner-up position, she placed first in the scrap book division and fourth in her skit out of the 42 entrants. Although the honors and the publicity excited Clarinda, she found the most thrilling part was seeing her dad's reaction. She declared, "My dad never gets excited, but at the pageant, he was just so excited and totally proud."

But the position isn't all excitement. There's nothing that brings Clarinda down to earth more than standing at a store promotion and offering milk to shoppers who occasionally ignore her. But Clarinda is willing to put up with the unpleasantries because she finds that her reign has made her more comfortable in public, more mature and "the experience is wonderful."

And for anyone considering entering the contest, Clarinda encourages them to go for it, because being a dairy princess is much more than wearing a crown.

One of the weaknesses of many cultivators is that the parallel linkage is light weight and bearing areas are small. All too soon the assembly starts to wear and break down. Brillion's NO WOBBLE links are made of cast iron (12 lbs. each). Each end is equipped with full 2" wide non-lube sleeve bearings.

The Brillion "S" tine cultivator (model BRS) with four-way tooth movement is designed for high speed cultivation, especially in conjunction with chemical weed control. The "S" tines also mulch the soil and level the ground for easier harvesting. Available in rigid and folding models for four to 12 rows.

There's A Place For Every Girl

Susan Seidel Beshore
1974 Berks County Dairy Princess

For many dairy princesses, the responsibilities which accompany the crown often leave little time for school, work or other activities. But Susan Seidel Beshore, 1974 Berks County Dairy Princess found an innovative way to blend her work as a dental assistant with her royal responsibilities.

Working parttime for a dentist, the two decided to join forces to more effectively get across their mesage on dental health and the value of calcium in their diets. During dental week in February of Susan's reign, the team visited classrooms throughout the area.

"In the classrooms I was the dairy princess and not the dental assistant and it worked out extremely well. We did quite a few school promotions which I otherwise would not have been able to do. At that time in the princess program there was not the organization that there is now and they were not going to the schools to educate the children about the value of dairy products," explained Susan.

The combination worked so well Susan feels it should be part of the promotional activities for dairy princesses today.

"It was a good combination and I think we should pursue it.The kids were very attentive. In the 70's we were still spending more time talking to ourselves pretty much and not to the consumers as were able to do now," said Susan.

Entering the dairy princess contest seemed to be the natural thing for Susan to do. Growing up she was committed to 4-H and her circle of friends had that same level of involvement to dairy activities.

But the dairy princess program then was not as complex as it is now. That complexity, organization and effectiveness demands committment and hard work, but Susan feels there is a place for any girl who feels she can contribute to the program and who is willing to just do the best she can do.

"There are so many girls in the county who would do a good job as a dairy princess. Girls who think about entering may think that they wouldn't do a good job, but they must realize that their county committee only wants the girls to do what they can. They do not compare her accomplishments to anyone elses accomplishments," stated Susan.

"There are girls who are real go-getters who are willing to do a lot and have the support of their parents and the county committee and the free time to devote to it, but not all girls have that limitless support. The dairy promotion program is just happy to have girls who are willing to do the best they can and that is all we ask of them."

Susan credits the dairy princess program with developing her ability to speak in front of large groups. Learning came by doing and each experience increased her self-confidence.

"I enjoy talking to large groups. I gained more self-confidence because I really needed to be able to think on my feet and to reply spontaneously," said Susan.

Susan continues her involvement in the dairy promotion program by working with the Mid-Atlantic Milk Marketing Association coordinating dairy princess programs. Along with her husband Jed, the Beshores operate their farm in York County. Susan has served as president of York County Holstein Club and she and Jed have both served as the club's treasurers.

Susan Seidel Beshore crowned the Berks County Dairy Princess in 1974 is congratulated by Marcia Gnagney, 1973 PA Dairy Princess and the 1973 Berks County Dairy Princess Phoebe Ruth.

Educating The Public And The Princess

Phoebe Ruth Bitler
1973 Berks Co. Dairy Princess

Phoebe Ruth Bitler, the 1973 Berks County Dairy Princess, had no intentions of becoming a dairy princess. Since she was 10, Phoebe was too involved with the 4-H program, but when the opportunity knocked it seemed only natural for her to open that door.

"Being a dairy princess was not something I was looking forward to. There was a lull in the program for a couple of years, but it was reactivated through the Holstein Association and through dairy producers. And when it came up I was very involved in 4-H. But I was a real cowgirl at heart and very interested in the promotion of the dairy industry. It seemed the natural thing for me to do," explained Phoebe. "It was my idea."

Phoebe's parents, Alpheus and Miriam Ruth, of Fleetwood, milked 80 registered Holsteins and farmed 264 acres. Phoebe believes in the dairy industry and continues promotional work.

"I try to keep involved and I guess I get that from my father. Dad was President of the Lehigh County Dairy Farmers for more than 20 years. He retired when Lehigh merged. I think I had an advantage in the dairy business," said Phoebe.

The dairy princess program in 1973 was not as organized as it is today, according to Phoebe. Today's program is much improved with an emphasis on educating the public.

"I believe we need to educate people. We didn't have the state organization, when I was in it. It was fun, but there was only so much we could do then. At that time nothing at all was done at the schools or grocery stores with promotions. We did a few openings of stores, but it was very superficial," said Phoebe.

The education was two-fold. The learning experience was Phoebe's as well as the public's.

"It was an experience being with people.

"We must be responsible for what we do. We all must become the spokesperson for our industry. For too long we have produced milk, sent it off and said let it go where it goes. We need to see what the consumers want and give it to them," Phoebe Ruth Bitler.

I was able to develop my ability to talk and think on my feet and that can only come with practice. I made a lot of contacts then that have helped me through the years being involved with all the other promotions I do. I know who to see," stated Phoebe.

In 1986 Phoebe reached the entire nation with her efforts by winning the title of National Young Farmers Spokesperson for Agriculture. There were three national winners. One winner was a Texas cattle farmer, the other an Indiana grain farmer and Phoebe, the only female, represented the dairy industry. The three took off on a nine-day big city media blitz. From St. Louis to Boston they conducted TV and radio interviews on the state of agriculture.

"I did a radio talk show at 5 a.m. in the morning in St. Louis. I thought no one would be up at that time. Was I wrong. There were a lot of very intelligent people getting ready to commute to work calling in. They wanted to know if farming was really distressed the way they had heard.

This Alternate Believes In Reigning With Excellence

When Jennifer Barnett decides to do something, she does it right—no half way business for her. Her goal is, "To do the best I can in everything I try to do." It's no surprise that this honor student excels in her duties as both the Somerset County and as Pennsylvania's second alternate dairy princess.

To date, Jennifer has made 111 appearances. Even with several months of her reign remaining, Jennifer has exceeded the required second level of the incentive program for dairy princesses. It requires that county princesses promote dairy products at 30 school programs, in 18 newspaper articles, 18 radio and T.V. appearances, 16 store/mall promotions, 12 non-farm presentations, 5 farm meetings, and 5 special events.

Her favorite promotional activities are visiting elementary students and telling them about "The Cow Milk Maker and how she uses her four stomachs to turn green grass into white milk." To add some more sparkle to her visit, Jennifer created a game called "Milk Mania" that allows the students to win a prize.

The students receptivity and enthusiasm have influenced Jennifer into changing her career choice from nurse to teacher. This fall she's slated to enter Penn State-Altoona campus where she will major in elementary education.

But elementary education isn't the only goal Jennifer has set her sights on. "I'm definitely coming back to the family farm and living here," Jennifer said. She is the fifth generation to live and farm their Somerset County Holstein farm where they milk 120 cows and farm 435 acres. She knows what it is like to get up at 3:30 a.m. to help with the milking and feed the calves.

Jennifer's favorite farm chore is caring for her sheep that have netted many ribbons for her at local fairs. She admits that walking sheep the required one mile daily is not as easy as one might think. Sometimes they flip over on their back and play dead. Jennifer finds that mighty embarrassing when she tries to prod them up and passerbys eye her skeptically as if suspecting her of animal cruelty.

"Sheep are stubborn but friendly," Jennifer explained. "They're special because I never had a dog, and I found they become

"I think it is hard for them to understand that sometimes financial distress is regionalized and the New England dairy farmers were in good shape. I explained farming is just like any other small business. It takes a great deal of management to be successful. Some will make it and others will not," said Phoebe.

"They wanted to know if the farmers had it the way the recent movies had portrayed it. I think the movies have overdramatized the farmers situation. Farmers don't want pity they want fair prices for their products that's all.

"I got a better hold on agriculture in trying to make others understand that farmers are business people, too. We spent a lot of time talking 1 to 1 with consumers," said Phoebe.

"We went into the grocery stores and talked to consumers and so many of them are really trying to become more educated about the food they are eating. Advertisements and packaging can be so misleading. There was not the complaining about food prices that I expected. Many of the people showed empathy with the farmer and they wanted to make sure that their food supply was going to be there."

Farmers for too long have sat in the corner waiting for someone else to do the promoting, marketing and selling of their products, according to Phoebe. It's time farmers take the responsibility for what becomes of their produce.

"We must be responsible for what we do. We all must become the spokesperson for our industry," urges Phoebe. "For too long we have produced milk, sent it off and said let it go where it goes. We need to see what the consumers want and give it to them."

Phoebe and her husband David own the Vista Grande Farm in Fleetwood, the farm on which Phoebe grew up. They milk 90 registered Holsteins with a rolling herd average of 20,350 lbs. and 710 lbs. butterfat. Since graduating from Albright College with a B.S. in home economics education, Phoebe has worked as the Home Economist and 4-H Agent in Berks County and as the Coordinator of Promotion for the Berks County Dairy Farmers Association.

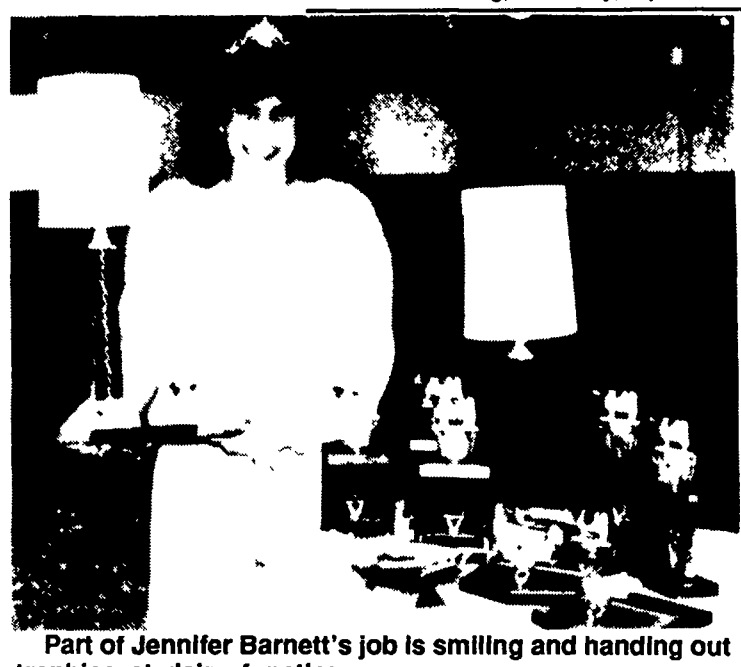
As a fulltime mother and farm wife, Susan Beshore is kept busy, but still finds time to coordinate dairy promotion activities where she and her husband, Jed and daughter Angie live in York County.



Part of Jennifer Barnett's job is smiling and handing out trophies at dairy functions.

as attached to people as dogs do." Jennifer feeds them special treats like corn on the cob, mashed potatoes and marshmallows. Unfortunately, they sometimes become overweight. To qualify for showing, Jennifer must limit the sheep's food intake and then she feels guilty because they don't understand why they can't eat.

As a senior at Somerset Area High School, Jennifer is one of the few students enrolled in an honors program where journalism is her favorite subject. She is a member of the French and English Clubs, SADD, Student Council and the Forensics team.

Although Jennifer excells in many areas, she said, "Success doesn't always come with the first try. Sometimes it takes a failure to get better." As copy editor for the school newspaper, Jennifer admits that "sometimes the advisor makes me rewrite my story four times. But that shows me how much better I can do a job." Jennifer noted that she considers perseverance as a positive, growing experience."

Jennifer believes that her writing ability also helps her with her required speeches that she must give as part of her dairy princess duties. Her speaking skills have also been polished through her 4-H speech class involvements where she won two contests. Speech was not her only 4-H project. She's an 11-year veteran of the program clubs such as Milk Drops, dairy cows, cooking, sewing, veterinary science projects and this year she will be going to the state 4-H competition.

Jennifer's busy schedule teaches her to budget her time and to be more outgoing. "It's easy for me to introduce myself to strangers," she said. But the most valuable lesson she learned is that "even when you're tired, you can't look or act grouchy."

Her endurance level was tested several weeks ago when she attended promotions for three days, was sick two, and then, while still feeling tired and drained, she spoke at a Holstein convention. She said, "Because I was sick, I couldn't hear myself talking so I couldn't tell whether I was speaking too loudly or too softly. It was most frustrating."

Since Jennifer pushes to do as much promotion as she can, it often means giving up school activities. For that reason she would like to see the age qualifications for dairy princess entrants be changed to include high school sophomores because "It's tough being a senior and missing school functions."

For the Barretts, dairy princess duties have become a family affair. Her mother sets up appointments for Jennifer's promotion duties and her dad takes her to banquets. This 18-year-old finds that her local dairy promotion committee has been a positive thrust in making public appearances because "they are as excited as I am."

When this Somerset County princess was crowned the state alternate princess, it was far from the first pageant she had attended. "My mother and grandmother have been taking me to them ever since I can remember," Jennifer said. The pageants instilled a dream within Jennifer at a young age when she vowed, "Someday I'm going to be a dairy princess."

Today Jennifer admits, "I didn't realize I'd come this far (as state alternate)." She adds, "If anyone ever has a chance to run for dairy princess, they should. It's a great opportunity."

Perseverance Brought A Dairy Princess Crown

UNION CITY — Junia Laughery set her sights on the Dairy Princess crown at an early age. She had a cousin who was a Dairy Princess and a dad who saw it as a "once in a lifetime opportunity" for his daughter.

Said Junia, "It's hard to put into words the experiences you gain from being a Dairy Princess or an Alternate. They are both equally important." Junia speaks from personal experience. She has been both.

While a senior at Union City High School, she first entered the competition in 1986 and was named Dairy Princess Alternate. In addition to dairy promotions during that year, Junia was President of SADD, assistant advertising editor of the yearbook, a member of the Prom and T-Shirt Committee and County President of FFA. As a 10 year 4-H member, she served as vice president and Captain of the Dairy Bowl Team, and as a delegate to the Washington D.C. Citizenship Focus convention. She was also selected to attend a five-day Summer Institute in St. Louis, MO sponsored by the American Institute of Cooperatives.

Daughter of Edward and Julia of R.D. 3 Union City, Junia graduated from Union City High School in 1987. She now attends Gannon University in Erie where she is preparing to be a legal assistant.

When the time for the 1987 Dairy Pageant rolled around, Junia was unsure if she should run again. Her dreams of being Dairy Princess were unfulfilled, but she wasn't sure if she could handle the responsibilities along with college classes that would start in the fall.

The courage to run again came from God, and encouragement from her family, her boyfriend Mike Isiminger and other friends. Plus, Junia didn't believe her job promoting dairy products was done. Her persistence paid off when she was crowned 1987 Dairy Princess.

Store Promotion - Crawford County Dairy Princess Junia Laughery promotes dairy products to some young consumers at Quality Market in Titusville.

Dad's Dream — Crawford County Dairy Princess with her dad, Edward Laughery. He considered being Dairy Princess a "once in a lifetime" opportunity for daughter Junia.

Junia really has the dairy industry at heart. She was raised on a 300-acre farm with an 80 head herd of Milking Shorthorns and Holsteins. With sheep raising and maple production in her background also, she promotes a spirit of support and cooperation between all of the commodity queens.

Junia admits that much of a Dairy Princess's success depends on how well the Dairy Princess Committee functions and commends the Crawford County Committee and the county dairy farmers for being very supportive of her. The committee, in turn, is amazed at the way Junia juggles the demands of her college classes with the demands of being Dairy Princess. On mid-semester break, she did 30 school promotions in three days.

Junia's goal is the double incentive program: 30 school programs, 18 news promotions, 18 radio and TV appearances, 16 store/mall promotions, 12 non-farm presentations, 5 farm meetings and 5 special events. But, although this program provides Junia with the guidelines on where to center her efforts, Junia doesn't let it define her limits.. In fact, by the end of February, she had already completed 30 school promotions, 107 newspaper articles, 27 radio spots, 8 store promotions, 5 non-farm, 16 farm meetings and 21 special events.

Junia said her room at home is totally

It Was Hard Work, But Well Worth It

Lynette Loper
1984 State Dairy Princess

As a registered nurse, Lynette Loper of Erie County, is applying what she learned as the 1984 Pennsylvania Dairy Princess.

"When I have patient problems I have to deal with all different kinds of people. I did a lot of public speaking as the dairy princess, talking to farm groups and consumers and that has helped me in talking to patients," said Lynette. "and I think it will help me to move up in administration, but that is several years off."

"I missed a lot of my senior year, but I was growing and learning all the time and would not have wanted it any other way," ——Lynette Loper.

The daughter of William and Bonita Loper, is proud to be the daughter of a dairy farmer and believes the dairy farmer deserves a lot of credit for doing hands on work to produce the amount of products they do.

The Lopers have 90 milking cows on 367 acres where they raise oats, hay, and corn and also cabbage as a cash crop. Unlike many dairy princesses, Lynette was not involved in dairy showing in 4-H, but was very active on the farm.

"When I got the state dairy princess title I was eager and ready to do anything they wanted me to do. I missed a lot of my senior year, but I was growing and learning all the time and would not have wanted it any other way," said Lynette.

"Hard work, yes. I was taking all college prep courses and advanced classes and I graduated with high honors while I made 64 appearances and went to 30 different cities. I was literally in every corner of the state."

Lynette Loper, Registered Nurse.

During her reign Lynette travelled to 30 cities for 64 appearances. Here she gets a feathered handshake from the Philly Phanatic at the MAMMA Baseball Game Promotion with the Phillies.

Her reign was spent doing a lot of traveling between Lancaster, Harrisburg and Philadelphia. High school graduation was one night and 6 a.m. the next morning Lynette was on a plane to Philadelphia for national ice cream week. Philadelphia was the site of several events for Lynette. She presented a milk pitcher to 76'ers Bobby Jones and to Phillies' Mike Schmidt before thousands of fans.

"I matured over the year. I was representing a large industry and it was a good taken over by dairy promotion materials. "It becomes a big part of your life." It has become a big part of Ed and Julia's life, too. With Junia at college, they drive to Erie to transport her to Crawford County functions and have put an extra 3,757 miles on her family car.

But Mom and Dad are pleased to do it and Junia enjoys it all. She loves meeting new people and has come to really enjoy public speaking.

An excerpt from her Mom's Thanksgiving letter sums it all up: "Your family was so proud of your accomplishment on becoming Crawford County Alternate Dairy Princess, working very hard to be the very best. Then running again in 1987 to take a risk of maybe losing to others, it sure took courage. You are Our Own Special Dairy Princess." feeling to do all these things. I went to New York City and met Vincent Price who was doing some promotional appearances for us and that was my most memorable experience," said Lynette.

"What I really enjoyed was that it wasn't just the major cities. It was the small towns, too. I went to all the breed conventions and one thing I spoke on was that all breeds must join together as an industry. There was then and is today, too much rivalry between the breeds. They must work together in order for the dairy industry to benefit. We must all band together as one."

Not all were good memories. Lynette remembers her first speech as the state dairy princess at the Eastern Milk Producers meeting, as being her worse speech, but said she never had another problem after that. She had made much progress after that first speech. Once while in the process of losing her voice, she gave one of her best speeches. She was scheduled to speak to the Pennsylvania Farm Women's Society on osteoporosis, but managed make a successful 20-minute speech on the necessity of calcium in every one's diet. Jan Harding, the state dairy princess program director, complimented Lynette for holding the undivided attention of the large group.

"I'm still enthused about the dairy industry. I learned so much that year. I did several TV and radio interviews and I was not nervous because I really believed in what I was doing," explained Lynette.

"I strongly believe that farmers should order milk in restaurants. If they're not ordering it in public why should anyone else."

A "Make Your Meals Sing" luncheon gave Lynette Loper the chance to get a hug from Vincent Price in New York City, a most memorable experience.

Laura England
1979 Blair Co. Dairy Princess

"Communication and education is the key to promoting the dairy industry. There is a real need for the truth about dairy products to be told out there. There will always be a story to tell," said Laura England, the 1979 Blair County Dairy Princess who today is the Communications Director for Atlantic Dairy Cooperative.

The daughter of William and Bertha England, of Williamsburg, Laura was a working member of the Weeping Hollow Farm which consisted of 311 acres and a 120-head of Holsteins in the milking herd. She was both a member of the 4-H dairy bowl team and did some showing for several years in the dairy ring. Laura developed a herd of her own within her father's herd and sold several bulls into stud work.

Becoming a dairy princess was not something Laura stumbled into. Wearing the crown and devoting a year of her life to educating the public about dairy products was all part of Laura's plan.

"I was very involved in the farm and did the milking before I went to school. When I came home from school I helped with the milking and did all my chores. Then if I had some time left over I could socialize. I was very involved in the dairy industry already," stated Laura. "I believed in the dairy princess program and I felt I could help."

Laura postponed her entry into the contest by one year because a good friend of hers was running. But it benefitted Laura's plans in other ways also. Laura felt she had a good chance to win and by postponing the competition she would have graduation behind her and a much needed year of

The Beginning Of A Career

Cindy Weimer
1980 State Dairy Princess

For Cindy Neely Weimer, the committment she made to the Dairy Princess program in 1980 would not end at the end of year, but would endure for many years after the crown was placed upon the head of her successor.

Today as the Communications Coordinator for Federal Order #36 in the Mid-East UDIA, Cindy continues her career in dairy promotion. She began her career in 1980 as Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and the representative of Clarion-Venango counties.

"Being a dairy princess was a turning point in my life, not only in the knowledge and the education I gained, but it helped me to decide what I wanted to get involved in. I made that committment then and I have stayed with it."

Cindy, is the second daughter of Jim and Dorothy Neely to represent Clarion-Venango counties as a dairy princess. Cindy's sister, Beth, captured the county crown, three years before her. With many years as a 4-H'er showing Holsteins, Cindy, needed only a little encouragement from her parents to vie for the crown. Although knowledgeable about dairying, Cindy learned the other side of the industry quickly.

"When I became a dairy princess I became aware of a lot of things. I was dairy princess at a time when we were just beginning to have these large surpluses and the prices were dropping. What impressed me most was the entire concept of milk marketing. The real job in marketing is getting milk products exposed. There is so much competition in the beverage industry and those other beverage companies have a lot more money than we do to advertise. People can only eat and drink so much. Milk is just another beverage to consumers," said Cindy.

"Being a dairy princess was a turning point in my life . . .It helped me decide what I wanted to get involved in."

Cindy works with the UDIA to carry out dairy promotion and advertising campaigns in Ohio, western Pennsylvania and parts of Kentucky and West Virginia. She is responsible for coordinating promotional campaigns in supermarkets which demands close contact with grocery store managers and dairy buyers. Cindy keeps food editors of various publications informed on food trends by providing them with recipes and information.

"Consumers and managers are open to the promotions, when you are giving away free food you become very popular very quick," said Cindy. "We also work with local promotion groups to help them in setting up exhibits at malls and stores or give them ideas and literature to distribute."

There have been many changes made in the dairy promotion program since the National Assessment of 15 cents per CWT, but probably none has been so beneficial, according to Cindy.

"That has given us a lot more money to

(Turn to Page E19)

The dairy promotion campaigns of yesteryear also used celebrities of the day to get their message across. No, it's not Michael Jackson, but Hoppy was just as popular in his day.

maturity. That year would allow her to give 100 percent to her duties, should she win and she did.

"I wanted to wait until after I graduated. I felt I would be more mature and better able to handle it. It was very easy for me to talk about farming, I enjoyed it and I was very knowledgeable about the dairy industry," added Laura.

Laura praised the Blair County dairy promotion committee for their work in preparing her for the position and for their strong support. Although most of the job came natural for her, the committee did supply her with all a large amount of reading material which she studied. If she had any problem, Laura said it was that she sometimes came across too strong in her own convictions.

"It is very important to always present your best self, because you are representing the industry. This goes for all farmers, too," ——Laura England.

"I remember doing a TV show in the Altoona area. It was 'Good Morning with John Riley'. I had been on his show a couple of times. I was doing a presentation on the values of calcium and I may have come across too strong on the effects of not having enough calcium in your diet," explained Laura. "The appearances were arranged by the dairy promotion committee, but I developed the program."

"What I did during my reign was more geared to the consumer. I think that's where we can have some misunderstanding about where milk really comes from and it's not from the grocer's shelf," Laura said. " I got a lot of questions from consumers who couldn't eat dairy products because they had digestive problems, so I suggested they drink acidolphilus milk. I would ask them what do they do to get calcium in their diet. And most of the time they said 'nothing'. I suggested they eat more cheese and yogurt and urged them to look at the alternatives."

At Penn State University, Laura majored in agricultural sciences and minored in agricultural journalism and thought someday she might be working at her position for Atlantic Dairy Cooperative.

"My parents are members of the coop and have been for a long time so I know a lot about it. It appealed to me because I feel in this position I can pay back the dairy industry. I like knowing that I'm doing something positive for the dairy industry," stated Laura.

There is another side of the promotional issue, which Laura points out, has a tendency to be overlooked. She said farmers tend to look to the national, state and local dairy promotional programs to put the farmer's best foot forward and may forget that the responsibility for putting the best foot forward is with each and every one of them.

"The dairy princess program was really about self promotion. It was about communicating. It was not only about public speaking, but about handling people and certain people take a lot of convincing. It was about presenting your best self properly. For us that meant putting on makeup properly and always doing your best to represent the industry.

"Presenting your best self was something I had to learn. I concentrated on academics when I was in school and in getting my work done on the farm and I wouldn't take the time to put on makeup or to learn how to to present myself. A lot of farm girls did not have time to get all our work done and worry about putting on makeup. But it is very important to always to present your best self, because you are representing the industry," explained Laura.

"But this goes for all farmers, too, when they go into town, get out involved in non-farming groups the farmer must remember that what he does represents the entire dairy industry."

Life With A Dairy Princess

LANDENBERG (CHESTER) — Following her 50th public appearance as Chester County's Dairy Princess, Elisa Wilkinson took time out to show a visitor her family's dairy farm in Landenberg. Wilkinson Farm milks 650 Holsteins around the clock on a computerized carousel that takes eight cows at a time. Each cow rides the merry-go-round eight or nine minutes while she's milked.

"I used to do a lot of milking last year and the year before," said the 18-year-old Goldey Beacom College freshman. "I would say it takes about a month for them to get used to it the first time." A spray of water from a garden hose directed behind her legs persuades a cow to board the carousel.

"There's no water involved with the cow," Wilkinson explained. "The milker strips out a little bit. To open the holes we put iodine on the udder and let it soak. About a year ago we went to wash cloths for drying off instead of paper towels. We use one wash cloth per cow and have a washer and dryer in the barn." The rate of mastitis is very low, according to the Dairy Princess.

Chester County Dairy Princess Elisa Wilkinson with her mother dressed as the Purple Cow visit schools to promote dairy products.

The cows are grouping according to how much they are milking, Wilkinson said. There are three regular groups and a work with. Our advertising has doubled and we have been able to give our products a lot more exposure and we needed that. There is some evidence that it is showing some return.

"If we take farmers' dollars we must see that they are used the most efficient way and give them back the greatest return. We just have to sell more products. Working with the UDIA is one way to do that. We pay for production costs one time and then the promotional materials are distributed through 20 groups rather than having each group pay the costs. That's one way we have been able to stretch the dollar."

Cindy graduated from Penn State in 1984 with a major in ag economics. She worked with the National Holstein Association after she graduated and went to Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion program as the promotions coordinator. Since August of 1987 she has been with the Federal Order #36.

Cindy and her husband, Mike Weimer, farm what was once Cindy's parents farm in Clarion and milk 50-head of Holsteins.

Dear Dairy Princesses,

Each year your amazing accomplishments highlight Pennsylvania's dairy promotions calendar. Your wholehearted devotion of time and energy enables you to successfully conduct promotions and educate consumers, both young and old.

As dairy ambassadors, you greet thousands of consumers with a genuine smile and a warm hello. At numerous grocery store and mall events, you continually voice the nutritional benefits of REAL dairy products. It is through your zealous efforts that the dairy story reaches the public.

As Pennsylvania's dairy royalty, you are an excellent voice for our industry. We look forward to future generations and their continued successes and development.

To the Dairy Princesses — Past, Present, and Future — we extend our heartfelt appreciation. We are proud of you and your many accomplishments.

Best wishes for many more years of success.

Promoting Milk Keeps Dairy Princess Busy

WILLIAMSBURG — Ten months have passed since Jenny Bigelow was crowned Blair County Dairy Princess. Although busy, Jenny enjoys all her experiences promoting milk.

Jenny is the daughter of William and June Bigelow who take an active part in he reign. Mother and daughter can be seen several times a week motoring around the roads of Blair County promoting milk. When Jenny's activities are farther afield, father joins in as chauffeur.

Jenny became interested in the "crown" as a little girl and attended many pageants before she, herself, finally became a contestant and won the crown and title of dairy princess. She commented that being Dairy Princess has been very helpful to her as well. Once very shy, Jenny can now speak to large groups without hesitation.

One of Jenny's goals as Dairy Princess has been to meet as many people as possible and tell them about the goodness of milk. She admits that meeting new people is something she has come to really enjoy.

School presentations are another enjoyable aspect of Jenny's reign. She commented that you never know what children are going to say or ask next. In one classroom, after Jenny explained that cows have four stomachs, one little boy asked, "Well, if they have four stomachs, how do you know which one has the belly ache?" Jenny's favorite came after telling them that cows have no upper teeth. A little girl said, "Well, we should take them to a dental clinic and get them fitted for dentures!"

For her school presentation, Jenny starts out with a ten minute slide presentation then a skit in which she is Sally Sun. With the help of her "Dairy Book" and four different hats depicting childhood, teenage, adult and older adult, she explains the goodness of milk and why it is important to each age group.

Jenny also takes along a gallon jar full of Hershey Kisses to each class and gives them an opportunity to guess how many there are. At the end of the year, the class with the nearest guess receives an ice cream party.

So far three big events have taken place during Jenny's reign. The first was a 100-foot long cheese hoagie which the dairy promotion committee made. This was followed by a giant sundae with 51 gallons of ice cream. Both were distributed within an hour. The third event was the Homemakers Show where Jenny spoke with many people and also became friends with Miss Pennsylvania.

Even with all her activities as Dairy Princess, Jenny still finds time to help milk the family's herd of Holsteins and a few Brown Swiss twice daily.

Jenny is a 1987 graduate of Keystone Christian Academy where she was involved in basketball, volleyball, cheerleading, yearbook staff and she played the piano for opening exercises each morning.

Music is one of Jenny's first loves and it makes itself evident in her ability to play four instruments: the piano, organ, guitar and violin. Jenny's future plans involve studying music, possibly at Ohio Christian College.

Jenny attends Calvary Bible Church where she plays the piano and organ and also teaches Sunday School. Monday mornings find Jenny at the Calvary Christian Academy helping to teach youngsters to read.

Jenny is also an active member of the 4-H Dairy and Baby Beef Clubs.

If Jenny could change something about dairy promotion, it would be to have more girls interested in running for Dairy Princess. She said she can't figure out why the interest isn't there.

Jenny admitted that she had some big concerns starting out as Dairy Princess such as writing newspaper articles and radio spots. She stated, however, that she received much help from both state and county. She hoped that fear of writing those articles was not hindering othe girls because there is help available.

On June 3, Jenny will place her crown on another luck girl's head and will end a super busy year as Dairy Princess, but Jenny said, "I'll always be willing to help promote milk."

smaller group with fresh cows. The pickup from one milking may run 17,000 pounds.

Wilkinson has helped on the family's 4,800-acre farms since she was five. She began by helping with calf records. At 10, she drove the tractor and scraped out the barns. When she was 14, the princess was full-time calf manager. During the summer, the farm has as many as 120 calves in hutches up the hill from the milking parlor.

At the county pageant last May, the judges described the Dairy Princess as "self-assured and knowledgeable of the dairy industry." Wilkinson's presentation incorporates a purple cow, played by hr mother, Betsy, or 16-year-old sister, Chrissy.

The purple cow has traveled with the princess to promote dairy products at fairs and schools and at Independence Mall in Philadelphia, where the cow cavorted with the Phillie Phanatic to the delight of onlookers. Wilkinson has made a thick scrapbook and keeps a photo record of her promotional activities.

Her grandfather, Leon Wilkinson, served as the farmer advocate on Pennsylvania's Milk Marketing Board, commuting to Harrisburg from his home on the Wilkinson Farm. He expressed pride in his granddaughter's reign. "I preached to many of the farmers to give their sons an opportunity and I have four sons," he said, explaining that he'd like to see the operation continued by his grandchildren.

Elisa Wilkinson is studying business administration, hoping someday to manage her own business. Perhaps it will be connected to the dairy industry. Meanwhile she works parttime as an insurance company secretary in Kennett Square.

In addition to farming, the princess' father, Charles, constructs luxury homes on a nearby wooded knoll. He also raises and boards investment bulls as tax shelters for show business personalities.

One of the blue-eyed Dairy Princess' special memories is the day President Reagan visited Wilkinson Farm in May, 1982. "We did a lot of preparation," she said. "We painted the barn and trimmed everything... I couldn't believe the extent (of preparation)."

Security was very tight, Wilkinson explained. "None of our family got to talk to him except my grandfather. We sat in the first row (in the hay shed) about 15 feet away from him... He was only here about an hour." She concluded the reminiscence about the presidential visit, "It was nice to see him."

Introducing The PDPPS Board Of Directors

Poised and confident, the state dairy princess is the dairy industry's good-will ambassador to the public. She delights youngsters and adults alike with stories of the wholesome goodness of milk and milk products.

Her promotional prowess is the result of guidance that is orchestrated by the seven women who sit on the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services board. The ladies plan strategy and oversee its implementation by Jan Harding, program director. The highlights of their planning is the dairy princess pageant, the 3-day seminar, and the bi-yearly meetings.

The state is divided into six regions with a director for each as well as a director at-large. The director works with the county committees within her region and acts as a trouble shooter.

Judy Diebold
Co-Chairperson
Central District

"The dairy princess program is a great way for young women to get involved in what puts food on their table. They have some input in the dairy industry."

Family: Married to Raymond with three children, Karen, 22; Ken, 21; and Kevin, 17.

Farm: 135-acre dairy farm in Altoona.

Mim Kauffman
Co-Chairman
Southeast District

"It's a reward to see the growth in the girls. They really blossom and mature from the time they're crowned until the time they hand in their crown."

Family: Married to Robert with 5 children, Susan, 34; Linda, 30; and Steve, 26; and 3 grandchildren, Justin, 10 and Travis, 8, sons of Susan; and Mitchell, 18 months, son of Steve.

Farm: 110-acre dairy farm in Elizabethtown with another 130 acres rented.

In program: 12 years.

Mary Herman
Northeast District

"I like working with all the girls in any way I can to help them meet their goals and improve themselves."

Family: Married to Larry with two children, Larry, 15; and Teresa, 19, a former dairy princess for Tioga County.

Farm: 200-acre Holstein farm in Roaring Branch; been in the family since the early 1900s.

In program: 7 years.

Joanne Peifer
Director at large

"People are beginning to realize that the dairy princess is more than just a pretty girl. She can reach people that we couldn't really reach such as school children."

Family: Married to Melvin with two children, Jeff, 33; and Mike, 30.

Farm: 250-acre dairy farm before moving to Lancaster County last year.

In program: 9 years.

Pat Miller
South Central District

"We are doing more promotion now than we were five years ago. We have to continue to keep it up. Milk is such a worthwhile product."

Family: Married to Paul with three children, Jeffrey, 30; Michael, 28; and Deb, 31, a former state dairy princess; and six grandchildren.

Farm: 253-acre Holstein farm in Fishing Creek Valley.

In program: 14 years.

Rita Kennedy
Northwest District

"The best part of being involved with the dairy princess program is one year after the princess is crowned: she's a completely different girl."

Family: Married to James with five children, Jeffrey, 23; Jill, 21; Janelle, 18; John, 15; and Jason, 12; and one grandchild, Justin, 7 months, son of Jeffrey.

Farm: 700-acre five-generation farm with 70 Brown Swiss in Butler.

In program: 14 years.

Beverly Minor
Southwest District
1958 Dairy Princess

"The dairy princess program is a grassroots program; it is working with the farmer at the grassroots level to get milk promoted."

Family: Married to Samuel with five children, Marsha, 24; Tee, 23; Jody and Jill, 22; and Sam, 18.

Farm: 80-acre Holstein farm in Washington with another 370 acres rented.

Be A Dairy Princess For A Year

Wanted: Motivated, able, dairy related young ladies, ages 16-24, single, to devote available spare time for one year to promotion of local industry. No experience necessary; will train. Knolwedge of industry helpful Love and concern for dairy industry essential. Rewards: Tremendous personal growth, development of self confidence and speaking ability, opportunity to travel and meet new friends, respect of peers, satisfaction from contributing to family's vocation. For information: Call your county Dairy Promotion Committee or Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Services, Inc. (814) 226-7470.

PA Dairy Princess Program

The Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Program offers the opportunity to qualified young women to make a personal contribution to the well-being of the dairy industry by devoting their spare time and talent to the promotion of its products for the period of one year.

All local winners serve their county for a period of one year – July 1st through June 30th and have the opportunity to participate in an all expense paid training seminar and the state pageant. The Pennsylvania Dairy Princess serves as the representative of Pennsylvania's dairy industry at all official state functions and at many large industry promotions held throughout her reign.

Serving as a dairy princess is an honor and an education — equally beneficial to the contestant and the industry.

lies with each individual farmer," Laura said.

Two-Sided Benefit

While the benefits to the dairy industry by these young good-will ambassadors is well documented, the benefits to the individuals who get involved may be just as important. Of course not everyone credits the dairy princess program as a turning point in their lives, yet the princess workshops held each year to develop communication skills provide usable benefits to each candidate. Phoebe Ruth Bitler, 1973 Berks County princess, said it was the experience of being with people that was so beneficial. "I was able to develop my ability to talk and think on my feet and the contacts I made have helped me through the years," Phoebe said.

"It was not in any way a beauty pageant," Beverly Minor added. "We were judged on the way we were. We had personal interviews and had to give an impromptu speech, but that was easy. I have always been enthusiastic about the dairy industry."

Application Requested

And right now across Pennsylvania 42 dairy princesses and their alternates are giving of themselves to promote the dairy industry and receiving for themselves experiences that will be part of their lives forever. Best wishes go with each of them. But time marches on and the dairy princess program is ready to receive applications for the next group of candidates.

If all this sounds interesting to you, you come from a dairy farm background and are a single young lady between the ages of 16 and 24, why not contact your county chairperson about your possible involvement. Who knows, sometime, maybe soon, you will also get a chance to kick the governor off a milk stool, or teach a class on TV how to make butter, or do any number of other things that would be downright dairy princess fun. Best wishes!

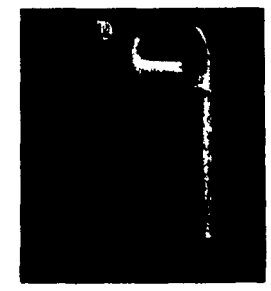
CONTROL TRIAZINE-RESISTANT WEEDS WITH PROWL®.

You want a good, clean stand of corn. A crop you can really take pride in.

That means getting control of triazine-resistant weeds, including pigweed and lambsquarters. So go with the herbicide that gets the job done. PROWL® herbicide. It not only helps control triazine-resistant weeds but other problem grasses and certain broadleaves such as foxtail and velvetleaf. And with PROWL, you don't have to worry about carryover.



You can surface-apply PROWL preemergence, or apply early postemergence in a tank mix with atrazine. Do NOT incorporate PROWL in corn.®

So if you want a good, clean, healthy stand of corn, start with PROWL and you'll finish with pride.

HAMILTON EQUIPMENT

THE SERVICE PEOPLE

Making Farming Easier

We back up your local dealer with 40 top product lines... overnight parts service... repair specialists... shop schools... nearby warehousing... demonstration shows... farm shows... our own truck fleet.

Nope, you can't buy from Hamilton Equipment unless you're a bonafide dealer. But good things do happen when you buy equipment made by one of Hamilton's 40 manufacturers.

The manufacturer, for one, has earned Hamilton Equipment's stamp of approval for quality, warranty protection and financial stability.

And your new product or piece of equipment automatically comes under Hamilton's service umbrella... things like overnight service on parts, and special help for your dealer on tough repairs. But more on that later.

Basically, Hamilton equipment is a wholesale distributor that stocks parts and equipment for your dealer at nearby Ephrata, Pa. and Raphine, Va. Something we've been doing for 50 years now.

But it is a business built on service to the dealer and the farmer. Bob Hamilton, Sr. saw the need in 1938 when he jumped head first into the farm equipment business.

"Lucky for me no one told me it couldn't be done," Bob recalls now.

A Pittsburgh lad, he had worked summers on nearby farms and earned his way through the University of Pittsburgh during the great depression of the 30s.

That was about the extent of Bob's experience in 1938 when he headed down Lincoln Highway in a $575 Plymouth to seek his career. First stop was Lancaster to find warehousing. But no luck. Not on his budget. Bob finally settled on an old tobacco storage at Ephrata with 4,000 square feet of space. The rent? $35 per month.

"By the end of the first year, Hamilton Equipment was barely breathing," he confesses. "But 1938 prospects became 1939 business and we were on our way."

Hamilton credits much of his success to the patience of dealers and manufacturers in teaching him the business. That and the new and better services he offered.

Bob traveled 60,000 miles a year calling on dealers.

"I'd leave home with $25 in my pocket, stay out all week and often arrive back at Ephrata Friday night with $5 and change," Bob says. "In places like Shamokin you could still get bed and breakfast for $2 a night."

First dealer was L.H. Brubaker at Strasburg, Pa. First manufacturer, Champion Irrigation. Today Danuser Machine Company has the longest continuous record with Hamilton... almost 39 years.

Bob, Sr., learned as he traveled. Dealers told him everything they ordered had to be shipped from the factory. That's when Hamilton Equipment started stocking equipment and parts in earnest.

A fleet of trucks was soon added to cut freight charges for dealers and eventually their customers. Hamilton Equipment still picks up truckload lots at the factories and delivers direct to dealers.

After World War II and the flood of new farm machinery, Hamilton Equipment put together a team of trouble shooters to help dealers solve repair problems. The service continues.

Today, Bob Hamilton, Jr., who now heads the firm, employs high tech computers to speed up parts service and keep inventory current on 17,134 different parts.

Inventory also has been expanded. Hamilton Equipment warehouses almost two acres of new equipment under roof at Ephrata and Raphine. On any one day, inventory of parts and equipment exceeds $3,000,000.

Another major responsibility, he says, is updating farmers on new equipment and practices at Farm Show, Ag Progress Days, crop shows and demonstrations Hamilton Equipment, in fact, first exhibited at Pennsylvania Farm Show in 1939.

And they haven't missed a show.

We hear talk of hard times in agriculture but there is no retrenching at Hamilton Equipment. Just the opposite.

Says Bob Hamilton, Jr., "New technology and practices will bring new innovations in equipment, and new profits to growers. We're prepared to meet the challenge."

HOW HAMILTON SERVES
YOU AND YOUR DEALER

Overnight Delivery on Parts

Waiting for parts can cost you big money at planting or harvest.

That's why Hamilton Equipment stocks 17,134 different parts for its 40 manufacturers at nearby Ephrata, Pa. and Raphine, Va. This to assure a quick turnaround on parts orders. We have over $500,000 in parts inventory at all times, in fact.

It's big business... with you and your dealer in mind.

As Bob Hamilton, Jr., sees it, a farmer can't expect his dealer to carry every part of every machine. But he can expect fast service on parts orders.

That's where Hamilton Equipment comes in.

"If your dealer orders a part by 11 a.m., we'll have it on a delivery truck by 5 p.m." says Hamilton. "In most of our six state territory, that means next day delivery."

In case of an emergency during evenings and weekends, Hamilton district managers teletype orders direct to the parts department.

This urgency on parts orders plays an important part on who Hamilton Equipment represents.

"We aren't about to take on a manufacturer if there is any doubt about availability of parts," Bob Hamilton, Jr. explains.

If a foreign manufacturer is involved, Hamilton insists it establishes U.S. warehousing. And stock it well.

Inventory on a new piece of equipment starts before the first machine is delivered to a dealer. Hamilton lays away a complete inventory of parts, including every nut and bolt.

Then the new IBM System 38 computer takes over, keeping the inventory full up by automatically reordering as parts are sold.

Parts manager Lester Matthews handles 140 to 150 parts orders at Ephrata on a busy day.

UPS picks up most orders same day. Those over 70 lbs. go by Hamilton truck or carrier.

HOW HAMILTON SERVES

We Make "House Calls" On Tough Repairs

It's not easy to stump Dale Henly on equipment repairs.

Hamilton Equipment's "Mr. Fix It" has been on the job nine years now. When service folks call from a local dealer with a real puzzler, Dale can usually suggest the right procedure over the phone.

Occasionally, Dale may call the equipment owner to hear the complaint first hand. Or check with the factory.

On the really tough jobs, Dale will make a "house call" to the dealer shop. He often spends three to five days a week helping dealer service departments put equipment back on the firing line.

Hamilton also holds shop schools to keep dealer servicemen abreast of new equipment and repair techniques.

It's all part of the service Hamilton provides dealers who carry equipment from the Ephrata wholesaler.

Recently, it took Henly, the dealer and a factory rep working together to solve the mystery of a balky backhoe. The culprits turned out to be a leaky cylinder and valve. Repairs were made on the spot.

To keep ahead of repair problems, Dale attends all factory schools and works closely with Hamilton's 40 manufacturers on problems encountered in the field. No trial and error for Henly.

Dale also monitors all warranties. That means playing judge and jury when the dealer and customer can't agree on whether its a defect or customer abuse.

"We insist that all warranties be honored to the letter. By the dealer and by the customer," Henly says.

Dale Henly is the person dealers call at Hamilton when they have a repair puzzler.

HOW HAMILTON SERVES
YOU AND YOUR DEALER

We're the show people for 40 manufacturers

You could have seen your first Tye stubble drill at Hamilton Equipment's Farm Show exhibit.

And the first post hole digger you ever saw just might have been a Danuser. We've been exhibiting them at eastern shows since 1948.

To Hamilton, that's what shows and demonstrations are all about. A chance to show off new equipment and new innovations. And the opportunity to hear what farmers have to say.

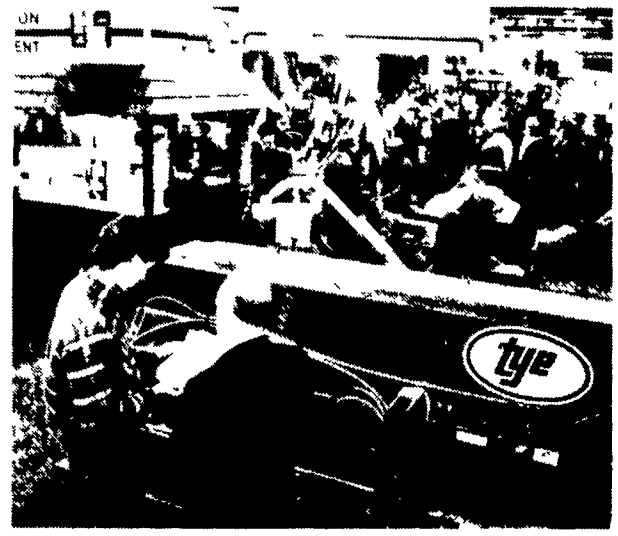
Hamilton has been big on shows since 1939 when we first exhibited at Farm Show. That was our second year in business. We're still there.

Today, we are the show people for 40 manufacturers and the hundreds of dealers who carry their lines.

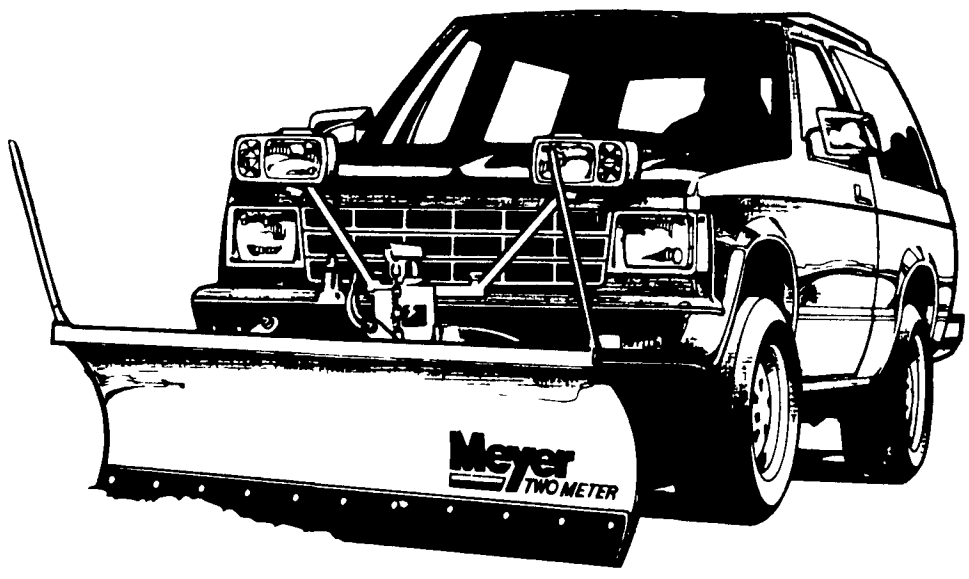
A big first in 1946 for Hamilton and farmers alike was an elevator that could handle either grain or baled hay. The firm sold out in 1986.

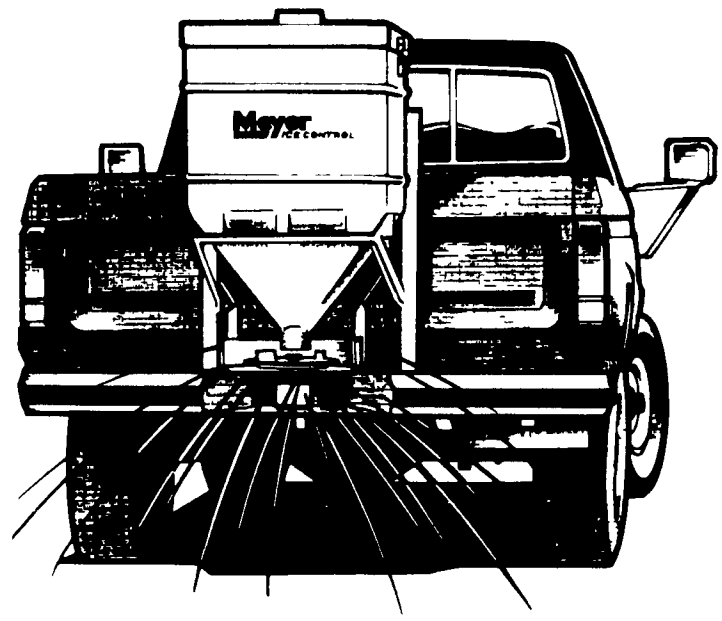
A few years later we introduced the first front end loader on the east coast. Along about that time we were also first with a backhoe. We saw farmers and contractors buy 1253 of them in 1956 alone. That says something about the impact of shows.

What's new down the road? We'll show you next time you stop around at our exhibit.



Hamilton Equipment has exhibited at Pennsylvania Farm Show since 1939. It is one of a dozen shows for Hamilton annually.





STAY IN CONTROL WITH MEYER

Meyer manufactures snow plows from 6½ feet to 10 feet which includes special heavy duty models. Mountings are custom designed to fit most 4-wheel drive vehicles and 2-wheel drive larger models. Meyer offers the benefits of rubber cutting edges as an accessory.

Ice covered parking lots are no longer a problem when using Meyer salt spreaders. We offer a mini spreader, insert hopper spreader and an under tailgate model, each designed to provide total ice control through the use of ice melting materials.

HOW HAMILTON SERVES
YOU AND YOUR DEALER

We Give Your Equipment Tender Loving Care

Warehouse manager Charles Martin has seen equipment storage more than double during his 24 years with Hamilton Equipment.

TLC? Absolutely!

Hamilton Equipment employs 22 people to make it happen in the firm's truck fleet and warehouses.

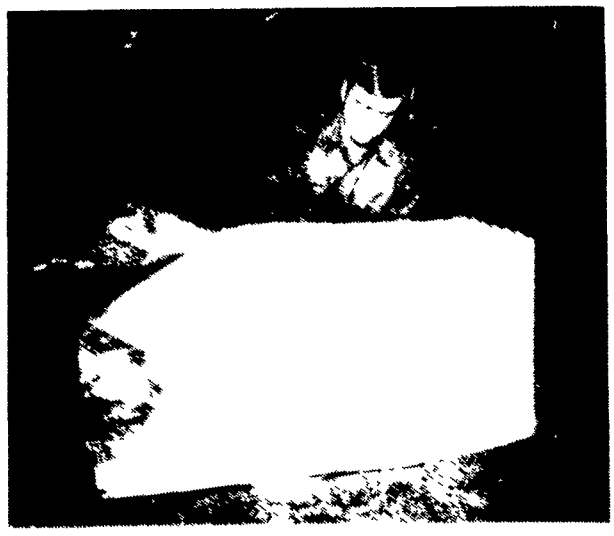
And it's one of the bonuses you get when you buy equipment made by one of Hamilton's 40 manufacturers.

The TLC treatment usually starts a month or more before the order is even placed. Hamilton Equipment buys a full truck of equipment at a time. For something like snowblowers that might be early July.

Then to make sure there's no rough handling Hamilton sends its own men and trucks to pick up the load. As far west as the Dakotas, in fact, and as far south as Georgia.

That also means a better break for you and your dealer on freight charges. Up to 40% better.

Equipment is then stored under two acres of roof at Ephrata, Pa. and Raphine, Va. until orders are received. No rain, sleet or snow on this stuff.



Jim Martin of Hamilton Equipment protects shipping carton with plastic for trip to a Pennsylvania dealer.

The new equipment gets Hamilton's personalized treatment on the last leg of the journey as well. It goes from the Ephrata and Raphine docks to your dealer dock on a Hamilton truck. If it's an open truck, all cartons get a plastic wrap.

No one does it quicker or better than Hamilton Equipment. Or with more tender loving care.

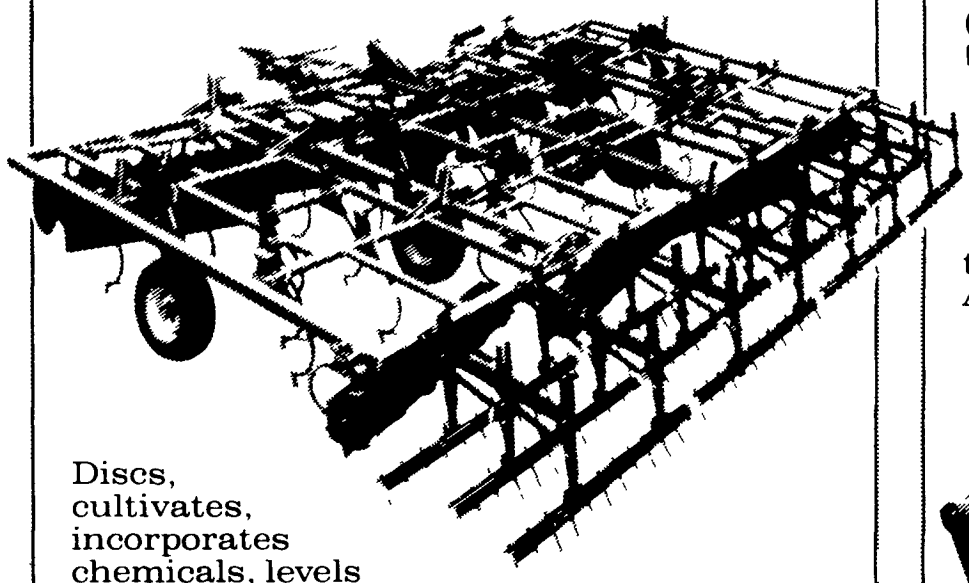
Model 875
Tilloll™



Discs, cultivates, incorporates chemicals, levels and harrows to prepare a perfect seedbed in just one trip. Can follow virtually any type of primary tillage and do an excellent job. Models are available with width of cut from 10'6" to 30'. Wings on the wider models fold 180° for narrow transport width and height.

LANDOLL®
Model 1600
Automatic Reset Sub-Soiler

Tills from 6 to 18 inches deep to break up wheel compaction, plow sole and hardpan. This allows moisture to percolate through the soil and at the same time retains valuable subsoil moisture. Available in 3, 5 and 7 shank models in working widths of 7½', 12' and 17½' respectively. Single or double bar— individual or gang coulters.

First Choice for Precision Spraying

Today's modern Century Sprayer combines all the technologies developed over 40 years and countless acres. Since 1947, thousands of Century Sprayers of all sizes and types have been used on farms across the United States.

Profitable spraying means precision spraying.

And that means Century! Because Century's exclusive No-Drip Nozzles allow hoses to be constantly filled with material under pressure, there's never a start-up lag, "On" means instantly and accurately!

"Off" means instantly... completely, with no crop-damaging dribble.

Even coverage is assured because flow capacity is uniform from one tip of the boom to the other. All Century booms are made with 1½" square-tube, heavy-duty construction, Century tanks carry a limited 5-year warranty.

Put Century's experience to work for you. Talk to your nearest Century Sprayer dealer soon.

TRIM FIT™ side-mount with 200-gal. cut-away tanks.

ADJA FOAM MARKER

A long lasting Foam Marking System that leaves highly visible strips or balls of foam. The ADJA Foam Marker is a new concept in foam generation which eliminates the need for compressors, pumps, or solution tanks, etc.

The simplicity and reliability of this state-of-the-art marker make it the most reasonably priced marking system presently available to the farming community.

Simple electronic controls allow in-cab control of on-off switch, left or right marking, foam mark size, and distance between marks. The ADJA Foam Marker is ideal for use on a variety of surfaces such as summerfallow, stubble, cultivated or disced stubble, green crops, green grass or brown grass. A totally new formula produces foam that will last for one full day or more.

ATTENTION OWNERS OF DYE OR SILVER MARKERS —
With the use of a very simple adaption kit the ADJA Foam Marker can be added to your existing system at very little expense. This will allow you to mark with dye or foam, depending on your field conditions.

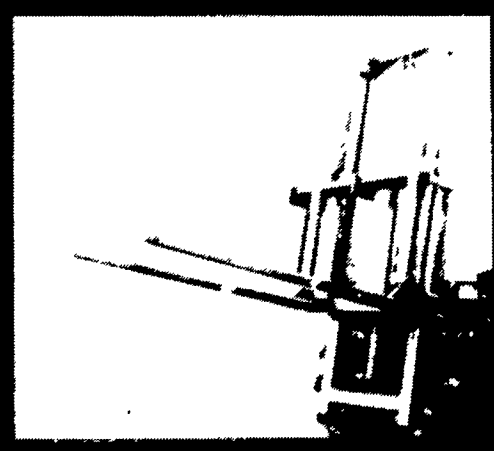
How to make a farmer's tractor the best investment he ever made

You know how the big corporations do it? They make money by keeping every bit of their equipment working, day and night, if possible. That amortizes the investment over greater productivity. You can offer your customers the same opportunity with their tractors and ATV's with Worksaver three-point accessories. They do more jobs in less time.

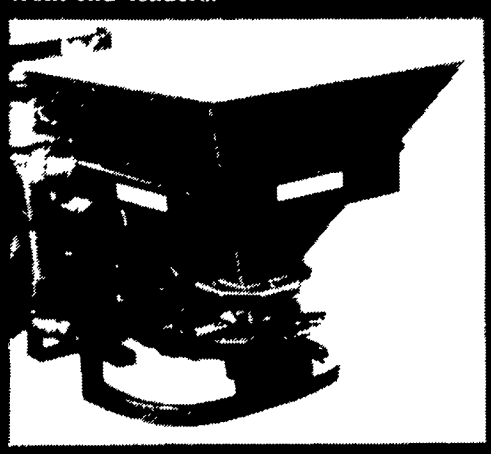
It's a full line, everything from posthole diggers to hay equipment, seeders, blades and scoops. Cash in with Worksaver. Your customers know a good thing when they see it. You'll know a good thing when you sell it.

Super Bale Claw lifts, stacks and loads round bales up to 1800 lbs. safely and effectively. Adjustable. Fits most two-cylinder front-end loaders.



Versatile rear-mounted hydraulic fork lift handles bales and other bulky items up to 4,000 pounds. Fifteen models.

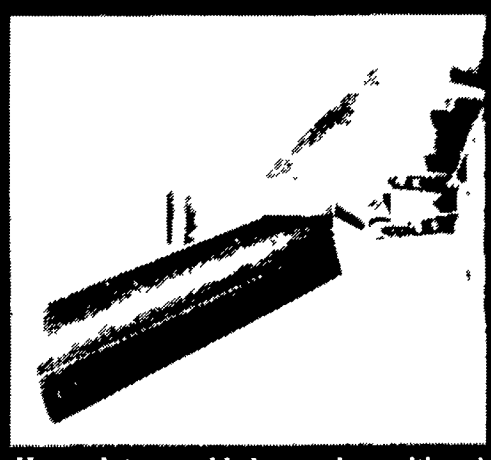
PTO powered auger digs a smooth deep hole in seconds. Choice of standard or heavy duty models.



Power seeder/spreader features adjustable seed gate control. Ten sizes from one to twenty bushels capacity.

Handy seeder/spreader goes anywhere on an ATV. Twenty-four models for all popular three and four wheel ATV's.

Worksaver front-end three point hitches double tractor work capacity.



Heavy-duty rear blades can be positioned for either "push" or "pull" applications. Sixteen models available for your selection.

Easy-to-install three-point adapter kits make tractors more versatile. Kits to fit 98 tractor models.

Worksaver's rugged 16" lawn aerator penetrates and loosens the soil, improves absorption, promotes strong vigorous sod.

Seminars A Success

Bill Roenigk, (center) Director of Economic Research and Membership Services at the National Broiler Council, was the speaker at the Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. (DPI) 1988 fund drive kick-off meeting. He said the future of America's poultry industry is good because of an expected per capita consumption increase, population growth and increased exports. Roenigk, shown with DPI Fund Drive Chairman Donald J. Lynch (left) and DPI President Dr. Keith E. Rinehart (right), look at figures showing early pledges and investments of nearly $219,000, 55% of the fund drive goal.

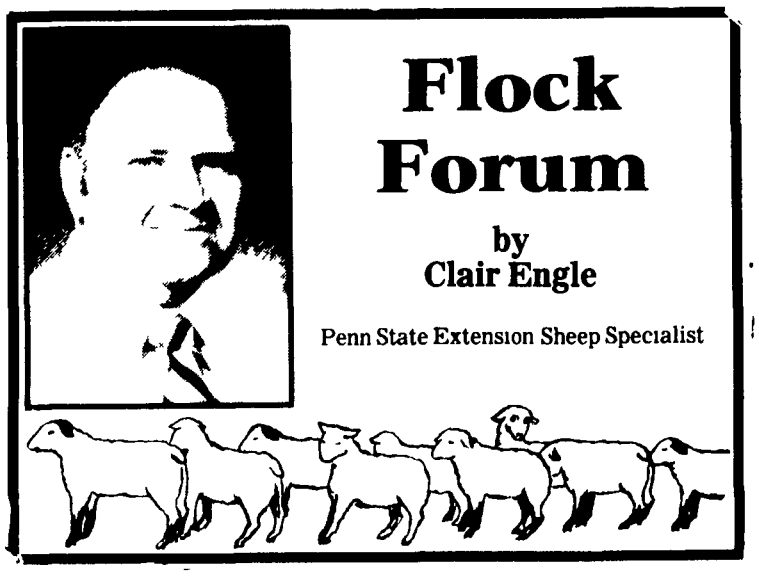
Pennsylvania-Bred Bulls Enter Select Sires' Proving Program

PLAIN CITY, OH — 7H3403 Royal-Haven Revere-ET bred by Lynn & Bonnie Miller of Towanda, PA and 7H3298 Singing-Brook Ned Boy Dandy-ET bred by Singing Brook Farm, Imler, PA, have been chosen to enter Select Sires' Program for Genetic Advancement (PGA) sire sampling system. Based on their outstanding pedigrees, 7H3298 and 7H3403 have been selected as two of 150 Holstein bulls from throughout the United States to enter the program in 1988.

7H3403 is an Arlinda Rotate son from an outstanding cow family. His dam, Royal-Haven Patience-ET (VG-88) has three consecutive records over 29,150M and 938F. The grandam is EX-90-2E GMD Elevation daughter with records of 35,40M 3.1% 1102F.

7H2398 is a Ned Boy son out of a very famous cow family. His dam, Jackbuilt Chairman Mandy EX-91 (EX-MS) has over 25,000M and 1000F as a three year old, and is considered one of the Chairman's best daughters. The grandam is EX-92-2E and is a full sister to Fisher-Place Mandingo-Twin (EX-91-GM). The next dam is the very famous Mandy cow (EX-96-3E-GM) and All American.

Select Sires is a family of 12 farmer-owned and controlled A.I. cooperatives, serving the largest number of co-op members in the United States. 7H543 Carlin-M Ivanhoe Bell, one of the breed's elite sires of high indexing daughters and A.I. proven sons, is an example of the superior genetics Select Sires offers. These proven results assist the federation in achieving its basic objective -- to supply livestock breeders with the industry's top genetics.



Clair Engle
Extension Sheep Specialist
Penn State University

Beef and sheep research in the areas of genetics and nutrition was the focus of a field day held at the Shenondoah Valley Research Station near Steeles Tavern, VA.

More and more livestock producers are realizing how the efficiency of today's red meat production in some way must focus on a forage-animal system. In otherwords after you define your production and marketing goals you take steps to establish a forage-pasture system that will match your objectives. This is nothing new. England and New Zealand livestock producers have been applying such production principles for years.

Nearly 20 years ago USDA researchers at the Beltsville Station in Maryland showed how beef and sheep grazing together utilize forage more efficiently than either species grazing alone. From these results came the common recommendation, "you can add one ewe for every cow unit with no additional land inputs." The different grazing habits of the two species and the selective or browsing nature of sheep permits more desirable forages to establish and subsequently the results are an improved pasture. Virginia livestock producers and researchers are actively involved in developing these forage animal systems.

Another important area being studied and reported on at the field day was managing ewes for out-of-season or spring and summer breeding, something contrary to their biological clock.

A key factor in overriding this "clock" seems to be in how you manage the ram. This process calls for isolating ewes from all rams for two months. The word isolation literally means separating the ram from the ewes so as there is no sight, sound or smell contact. A distance of 1/2 to 1 mile apart was suggested. Introducing rams after this management regime and time period the ewes were stimulated enough to ovulate even though there were no apparent signs of estrus. The major result was a high percentage of ewes were in standing and fertile estrus 17 to 24 days later.

Early studies indicate also a ram breed effect does exist. Rams having the inherent capability of breeding out-of-season also resulted in having greater libids, getting more ewes bred and having higher lambing rates than rams not having this characteristic. The importance of these studies of course is a natural approach through selection and genetics to get more fall lambs and subsequently getting a more even distribution of prime lamb in the market place.

Swine Management Column

Pork Prices

I recently read an article in "Feedstuffs" magazine predicting that the poultry industry could take a bloodbath in 1988. We in the pork industry should all be concerned about this situation.

I know that the title of this column is "Pig Tales" and that I'm supposed to write on topics relating to pigs, but just hold on with me a minute and hear me through.

What are the implications of a poultry industry setback? Currently higher numbers of both turkeys and broilers are in storage than there were a year ago. Stocks are building, and there has been no major reduction in the placement of chicks in broiler houses.

If something drastic doesn't happen, broiler prices could plummet. This could be detrimental to other livestock industries since low chicken prices would enable consumers to further stretch their food dollars with chicken.

Couple this with increasing hog inventories and the end result would be reduced hog prices.

Why does life have to be so complicated? You'd think that after so many years of up and down market trends, producers would learn that over-expansion leads to reduced commodity prices. It's all a matter of supply and demand.

The poultry industry has gotten itself caught in the same mess that we in the hog industry have dealt with for years. However, we don't seem to learn from our mistakes either.

The last hog inventory report that I saw indicated that expansion was not occurring as rapidly as expected. Newspaper articles around the same time as the report indicated that there was a lot of skepticism about it. In other words, the accuracy of the report was questioned.

You're never in a good position when you have to settle for the price that a buyer is offering instead of figuring your costs and setting the price yourself. Unfortunately, we don't have that luxury in the livestock industry. Only through careful planning and cost-effective production practices can individual producers better their market position.

If you haven't been doing the best job possible marketing your hogs, now's the time to get yourself on the right track. Study the markets and cost out your expenses to ensure that you're selling to your best advantage.

The future doesn't look as bright for the hog industry as it did 12 to 18 months ago, but with good management, low production costs and proper marketing, there should still be a profit for those producers who are willing to work for it.

If all indications are correct and hog inventories aren't as high as the skeptics feel, price outlooks could be better than expected. Current local prices are ranging between $45 and $47 per hundredweight, while October futures for Chicago hogs are approximately $42.

Can you survive a $42 market? At what price do you meet your production costs? You need to know the answers to these questions so you can make the proper business decisions. Keep abreast of the markets and do the best job possible with your hogs. The profits you reap will be yours to enjoy.

Charolais Association Names New Youth Activities Director

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Bonnie B. Coley has been named Director of Youth Activities/ Executive Assistant by the American-International Charolais Association (AICA), says Joe Garrett, AICA Executive Vice President.

Scheduled to begin her duties with the Charolais association on April 4, Coley will graduate with a bachelor's degree in agriculture from the University of Tennessee at Knoxville this June. Coley will be responsible for the 850-member American-International Junior Charolais Association (AIJCA) activities, including the annual Junior National which consists of a heifer show, a steer show and a leadership conference. Coley brings special expertise in this area as she is a past director and officer of the national American Junior Hereford Association (AJHA).

Bonnie B. Coley

Coley also will be Garrett's assistant, which entails coordinating AICA board meetings, planning World Charolais Federation attendance for AICA members, making travel arrangements and managing the AICA headquarters office in Garrett's absence. Experiences as a student intern at the American Chianina Association and Chianina Journal and as a staff assistant for the University of Tennessee Agricultural Experiment Station leave Coley well prepared for her new duties.

In addition to her AJHA activities, Coley has been involved in Block & Bridle, the University of Tennessee Livestock and Meats Judging Teams, Alpha Zeta, and several other campus-wide organizations.

Originally from Lafayette, Tenn., Coley was raised on her family's farm. The farm operations involved registered and commercial cattle, corn and hay.

Maryland Sheep & Wool Festival Gearing Up

W. FRIENDSHIP, Md. — One of the time-honored rites of spring — sheep shearing — will be demonstrated by one of the most skilled exponents of the art at the 15th annual Maryland Sheep and Wool Festival May 7 and 8 at the Howard County Fairgrounds, West Friendship, Md., when Charlie Swaim, Drakesville, Iowa, several times international shearing champion, will be on stage at various times both days. In addition he will judge shearing competitions. Novice competitors, those who have sheared 75 but not over 700 sheep in a lifetime, will compete at 6 p.m. Saturday, while professionals who have sheared over 700 sheep will show their skills at 11 a.m. Sunday.

The Festival, located off I-70 at exit 80, just west of Baltimore, includes sheep shows, educational seminars, crafts, entertainment in the form of music and dancing, good food, trade shows and contests involving both old and young in an annual celebration of the wonders of the miracle fiber, wool, and the animals who produce it. Sponsored by the Maryland Sheep Breeders Assoc. and chaired by Mary E.F. Streaker, the event is open to all free of charge and with ample free parking. Take Exit 80, go south on Rte. 32, then turn right on Rte. 144 to Fairgrounds.

Nearly 200 craftspersons and suppliers will be exhibiting, demonstrating and selling their wares, according to Ernie Hall, Keymar, crafts coordinator. This is the largest number ever recorded and they hail from 21 different states, from Maine through Florida and as far west as Colorado and Utah, with midwest states sandwiched in between.

More than 500 sheep, bred for their wool, will be shown in shows featuring Border Leicester, Columbia, Corriedale, Romney, white wool and natural colored. In addition, more than 30 breeds, representing dual purpose, meat, wool and exotic breeds, will be displayed in separate quarters. Their owners will be on hand to discuss their merits. Eleven breed organizations will have booths explaining the attributes of their sheep. Three county organizations will have booths.

Feeder lambs to grow out for the future will be shown and sold Saturday. A carcass contest is scheduled, with the champion and reserve champion lambs to be awarded lucky raffle ticket holders.

Always a crowd pleaser is the sheep to shawl contest, which this year will pit 11 teams against each other and the clock. One team will feature male personnel. Each team consists of a shearer, 3 spinners and a weaver. The sheep is shorn and wool given to the spinners who treadle as fast and evenly as they are able. The yarn then goes to the weaver who creates a shawl to specific dimensions within a 3-hour time limit, beginning at 9:30 a.m. Saturday. Shawls are judged, awarded ribbons and cash prizes and are sold at auction. The auctioneer will remind the gentlemen that this is a rare opportunity to buy their ladies "one of a kind" items.

Some festival goers wouldn't think it complete without witnessing the expertise of Border Collies herding sheep. They won't be disappointed, for Nathan Mooney, Carlisle, PA, will put his talented dogs through their paces both days.

Food is an important part of any gathering and the festival will offer many kinds of dishes, from sandwiches to gourmet lamb. Several restaurants will be selling food in the food building, which also will house the lamb cook-off contest and lamb cutting demonstrations. There will be food booths throughout the grounds. Coupons for redemption in certain markets for fresh American lamb will be distributed. Fundings for the lamb promotion is provided by the American Sheep Producers Council, Maryland Sheep Breeders Assoc. and partially by the Virginia Sheep Federation. Giant Food and other retailers are cooperating.

A lamb and wool queen will be crowned Saturday and will reign for the year over many sheep-related events. Other events include skein and garment competition, fine arts, photo and poster contests, shepherd's lead, fashion show, square dancing, junior spinning and 4-H, FFA judging.

An important auction will take place at 3 p.m. Sunday when breeding rams and ewes will be sold. These animals will have been shown and evaluated by the judge. Only rams grading blue will sell, while ewes grading blue and red will be offered. Jack Price, 339 Lemmon Rd., Westminster, Md. 21157, is sale manager. Phone 301-848-8097. Sale catalogs are available. Sheep shows coordinator is Donald Scaling II, 7524 Gaither Rd., Sykesville, Md. 21784. Phone 301-795-6955.

Festival visitors look to suppliers for raw materials to take home with which to fashion their own garments or products. Paramount is the offering of many kinds of fleeces. Both natural colored and white fleeces of grades from the finest to the coarsest may be purchased at the fleece barn. Fleeces may be consigned for sale or entered in competition and placed for sale at producer's option. They will be judged Saturday morning and go on sale at 1 p.m.

While the festival is intended to be fun and entertaining, it is also designed to provide education on various subjects through seminars. Dr. Scott Barao, extension livestock specialist, University of Maryland, will begin the sessions at 7 p.m. Friday, May 6. He will discuss reasons for and usefulness of good record keeping in the sheep flock; minimum records and methods of collection, on the farm computerization of flock records, software available, and the new national sheep improvement program.

If you've always wanted to try your hand at spinning here's your chance. West Friendship 4-H club members will conduct a "drop in, learn to spin" from 12:30 to 2 p.m. Sunday.

"We are fortunate to have two experts on fleece selection and preparation and knitting," states Mrs. Streaker, chairman. Caye Speakman, who holds a degree in crafts from the University of Maryland and a master weaver rating will talk about what to look for in a fleece, different methods of preparation for spinning and demonstrate techniques of spinning at 1 p.m. Sunday. Mrs. Speakman has taught in the area for 15 years, is past president of Potomac Craftsmen and charter member of both Arachne Spinners and Moonspinners.

Hands on Knitting will be taught at 3 p.m. Sunday by Beth Brown Reinsel. She is a teacher, designer, writer and most recently, organizer of the Harford County chapter of the Knitting Guild of America. She chairs the national guild committee for professional designers and teaches knitting, spinninng and dyeing at Harford Community College as well as in her own studio. Bring size 7 or 8 needles and 2 or 3 colors of worsted weight yarn for this course.

On-going both days in the information tent will be a video show on fiber working techniques.

Of great interest will be a slide presentation of sheep of the USSR presented by Peter Hagerty, Maine sheep farmer and orginator of the peace fleece. He will discuss breeds of sheep raised in the Soviet Union and relate his experiences concerning his negotiations for the purchase of Russian wool, which he combines with American wool for "peace fleece". Both yarns and patterns or instructions for finished garments are merchandised in both countries.

Additional information may be obtained by calling 301-321-1344 or 301-845-8744.

Misinterpreting Egg Records Causes Net Income Losses

Interpret egg records accurately to adjust pullets life to meet all needs.

Do not allow daily feed consumption to drop below 22 pounds per 100 birds on some strains of SCWL pullets. (Check with the major breeder on this.)

Results or Reasons:

1) Gizzard may decrease in size if feed consumption is below 22 lb/100 birds/day and eventually pullet will get sick and produce 1 to 3 dozen fewer eggs per bird annually.

2) Gut may be more severely damaged by diseases like coccidiosis because highly concentrated feeds have low fiber to keep feed per 100 birds per day low, therefore toxins are not carried out of the gut.

3) In every gut are undesirable microbes that produce some toxin. Fiber may carry these out rather than allowing the gut to absorb them.

4) Examine many records and you find it daily feed consumption per 100 birds drops below 22 pounds for 2 consecutive months or more, laying pullets are more apt to have high mortality (1-6% per month). They will become pale, feathers will break more easily, gizzards will get thin walls and reduce in size, birds may become obese or get too much fat in the abdomen. Worst of all pullets will begin to miss a day in egg production.

As birds get off the normal egg production cycle we find they put on unwanted fat, get sicker more easily and the entire gut is invaded by ailments and disease not found if birds eat a diet adequate in fiber and one with normal amounts of high quality nutrients.

Small gizzard disease may contribute to loose watery droppings. Loose droppings is a real problem with egg laying pullets today. If the alimentary tract is healthy, loose watery droppings are less likely to occur.

If loose, watery or liquid droppings occur we find other terrible things happen:

> Odor problems can be smelled by neighbors some distance away.

> Liquid manure in one spot in the pit reproduces microbes that create more liquid which soon runs out of the pit.

> The fertilizer value of manure drops as nitrogen in the form of gaseous ammonia is lost.

So all things considered, keep that entire alimentary tract healthy and keep birds eating enough of an adequate diet.

Lancaster Co. Team Nabs Top Honors At Judging Contest

LANCASTER — In an outstanding performance, Lancaster County 4-H'ers won numerous competitions at the Block & Bridle Club Spring Judging Contest. The Lancaster team competed among 270 FFA'ers and 4-H'ers and came away as the high team overall, high team for reasons given, high team sheep, high team swine, and second place cattle. Apollo Ridge FFA was the high team cattle.

The Lancaster livestock judging team consists of John Hess, Manheim; Fred Weaver, Ephrata; Jeff Craig, Nottingham; and Doug Musser, Elizabethtown.

Contestants were required to give three sets of oral reasons as part of the competition.

High scoring individuals from Lancaster County were John Hess, first place overall, first place reasons given, second place sheep; Diane Musser, third place sheep, seventh place overall; Carey Donches, third place cattle, nineteenth place overall; Jeff Craig, eleventh place overall; and Fred Weaver, thirteenth place overall.

Bull Olympics '88 Approaches

BINGHAMTON, NY — With only weeks to go, the road to Ithaca and the Bull Olympics '88 is approaching. Competition is keen for the New York State Bull Test Sale to be held at the Cornell Livestock Pavilion at Cornell University starting at 7 p.m. on May 6th. Out of the initial 72 bulls which entered the program it looks like approximately 45 bulls will be up for sale. Extension Associate, Bill Greene says, "this year's bulls are setting a new record gain with a 4.07 lbs. cumulative average daily gain. I'm getting excited about this years' Bull Olympics '88."

After the fourth weigh in period, here are the medal contenders for this year's Bull Olympics '88. In the Angus category Gold Medal contender is a Ballantrae Angus Farm bull born 2/6/87 from Westfield, N.Y. with a cumulative daily average gain of 4.56 lbs. Close behind for second place Silver Medal is a Maple Avenue Farm bull born 3/5/87 from Earlville, N.Y. with an average cumulative gain of 4.53 lbs. A Bippart's Farm bull born 3/11/87 is the Bronze Medal Contender with a cumulative daily average of 4.43 lbs. This bull is from Alden, N.Y.

In the Charolais category vieing for the top prize is a Cooper Charolais Farm bull from Windham, Me. This bull was born on 4/1/87 and has a cumulative daily average gain of 4.48 lbs. A bull born 2/9/87 from Tamberlane Farm of Canandaiqua is in second place with a cumulative dailiy average gain of 4.23 lbs. Secure in third place is a 4/6/87 bull owned by Meadow View Farm of Frankfort, N.Y. with a cumulative gain of 4.02 lbs.

The three medal contenders in the Polled Hereford category are: first place is Dunwalke/Puddinstone bull, born 3/17/87 with a cumulative gain of 4.65 lbs. This bull is from Far Hills, N.J.; second place is held by a Valley View Farm 4/14/87 bull from Eugene Sapp, of Buckhannon, W.V. with a cumulative daily average gain of 4.55 lbs. Not far behind and vieing for third place is another Valley View Farm bull born 3/20/87 with a 4.23 total gain.

Gold Medal Contender in the Shorthorn category is a Stony Brook bull born 2/16/87 from Locke, N.Y. with a cumulative daily average gain of 4.68 lbs. Not far behind with a 4.65 lbs. gain is an Ashwood Farm bull born 4/3/87 from Castle Creek, N.Y. Bronze medal contender in this category is another Ashwood Farm bull born 3/8/87 with a gain of 4.57 lbs. It looks like the Shorthorn division will be a close one!

In the final category, Simmental, the top three medal contenders are: first place Gold Medal is Shag Bark Farm bull born 3/19/87 from Olean, N.Y. with a daily cumulative average again of 5.65 lbs. Second place Silver medal is Forty Dollar Road Farm 3/28/87 bull from Campbell, N.Y. with a cumulative gain of 5.34 lbs. Vieing for the Bronze third place medal is Blue Chip Stock Farm 4/1/87 bull from Warren, Pa. with a gain of 5.29 lbs.

Not only will these top 15 bulls be ready for the sale on May 6th but there will be many others waiting for the right bid at the Cornell Livestock Pavilion at 7 p.m.

The New York Bull Test is a performance testing program to evaluate bulls under unbiased, uniform conditions and to make these performance tested bulls available to beef cattle breeders. There is a total of five weigh periods of 28 consecutive days. The bulls are fed a ration containing approximatley 75% TDN and 14% protein.

The Bull Test is co-sponsored by the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association, New York State Department of Ag & Markets and the Department of Animal Science, Cooperative Extension, Cornell University.

The final weigh period will be April 18th. On that day the lead contenders in the Bull Olympics '88 will be known and the road to Ithaca will be just around the corner. Be a part of the Bull Olympics '88 and join the medal contenders for this exciting event!

The Deutz-Allis gleaner combine has a harvesting system where the rotary cylinder is mounted crosswise, causing the crop to flow smoothly without twisting & tangling.

New Gleaner Ushers In All-Rotary Era

MILWAUKEE, WI — With the introduction of the R40 Gleaner combine, Deutz-Allis has crossed the threshold into the all-rotary area. "Farmers today have complete confidence in the efficiency, superior crop cleaning capability and higher capacity of rotary combines," says Tom Stadtmueller, Gleaner combine marketing manager.

Combines equipped with the Natural Flow rotary harvesting system and Deutz air-cooled diesel engine now are available to fit all sixes of farming operations. In addition to the R40, the R Series includes the R50, R60 and R70.

The R40 features a 150-bu. grain bin and a 155-hp, six cylinder Deutz engine. "An economical machine for the mid- to large-sized farmer, the R40 turns on a shorter radius-- 224 inches-- than competitive models," says Stadtmueller. The Natural Flow harvesting system provides improved harvesting capacity and gentle crop handling, Stadtmueller adds. "Because the rotary cylinder is is mounted crosswise, the crop flows smoothly without twisting and tangling," he explains.

Precision-engineered Deutz air-cooled engines are used throughout the world. The absence of radiator, hoses, gaskets and other liquid-cooling hardware means greater reliability and performance teamed with low maintenance requirements.

Case IH Presents New Planter Series

RACINE, Wis.— Case IH continues to refine its revolutionary Early Riser planting design with its 900 Series Cyclo® Air and plate planters. First introduced in 1971, the 900 Series is the third generation of Cyclo Air planters and is still unmatched for seeding accuracy, simplicity and productive design.

All Case IH 900 Series planters feature Early Riser row units that produce uniform and fast plant emergence under an even wider range of tillage conditions than previous Case IH models. The Early Riser planters' flexibility allows planting in conventional, minimum-till and no-till conditions without time-consuming and costly equipment changeovers.

Proven Early Riser features include staggered seed opener disks, equalizing depth gauge wheels and a patented furrow-firming point. The unique staggered-disk design allows the leading disk to easily penetrate soil and plant residues in tough no-till conditions.

All 900 Series planters feature Earth Metal® disk openers, made of an exclusive material with an internal structure that greatly increases blade life and durability. Earth Metal blades are up to 60 percent stronger and last 20 percent longer than conventional blades. In addition, a reversed bevel-edged trailing disk provides increased wear life.

The equalizing linkage on every Early Riser row unit closely gauges planting depth, especially important in rough minimum-till conditions. One convenient knob adjusts the disk-opener depth, furrow-firming point depth, covering-disk down pressure and press-wheel down pressure. Exclusive to the Early Riser planters is the ability to "zero" the row units, assuring that each unit will plant at exactly the same depth when set to the same depth setting.

The latest in the Early Riser planting design, the 900 Series Cyclo® Air and plate planters are available in 4- to 16-row models and in five different frame styles.

For quicker plant emergence, the unique design of the gauge-wheel tire traps moist soil brought up by the openers and then places it back into the bottom of the seed trench following seed placement.

Early Riser openers provide a narrow trench with a furrow-firming point that forms a firm, well-defined "V" furrow bottom. This results in optimum depth control, seed placement and germination.

Seed/soil contact is also enhanced with improved covering disks that allow the Early Riser planters to close the seed trench under a variety of soil conditions. The staggering design reduces the possibility of clods, roots or rocks plugging the disks.

Chevron-type tread bars on the proven center-rib press wheel provide additional soil fracture points, and the center-rib allows seedlings to easily break through soil crusts for consistent stands. The press wheel also firms the soil directly over the seed, enhancing quick germination and early emergence.

Placement, Calibration, Safety Important When Applying Soil Insecticides

LITITZ — The idea behind applying a soil insecticide on corn is to make money -- by stopping rootworms, cutworms and other insects from chewing into your yields.

But if you're not applying your insecticide correctly, you're probably not getting full value from it, says Steve Lowder, ICI Americas product manager for Dyfonate insecticide.

"For every hundred acres of corn after corn, you'll be spending roughly $1,000 on a soil insecticide," he says. "It just makes sense to spend a couple of hours fine-tuning your planter to maximize your return on that investment."

Calibration and placement -- getting the right amount of the product in the right place -- are the keys, he says. And while you're handling and applying any pesticide, be sure to protect yourself by taking proper safety precautions.

T-Banding Is Best

First, Lowder recommends, set up your planter to band the insecticide in front of the closing wheels. This forms a so-called "T-band" distribution of the product, with some in the furrow and most banded on either side of the furrow.

Most product labels specify a 6- to 8-inch band. Make sure the band is centered over the furrow.

T-banding has several advantages over other applications. It utilizes the closing wheels to lightly incorporate the insecticide over and around the row. This incorporated band gives a wider zone of protection than simply dropping the insecticide in the furrow.

"University trials show that bands are equal to or better than in-furrow treatments for rootworm control," Lowder says.

Banding also gives you a broad choice of labeled products to choose from, he adds. Setting up for in-furrow application restricts your choices considerably.

Placing banders in front of the closing wheels helps protect the pattern from wind distortion, too. Setting the banders close to the ground will virtually eliminate any possible problem with wind drift, Lowder advises.

Calibration Crucial

As planting time nears, calibrating your planter to deliver the correct amount of insecticide is a crucial step. Applying too much product wastes money, Lowder says, while under-applying leaves the crop vulnerable to insect attack.

Even if you calibrated last year and aren't switching products, do it again, he advises. And calibrate every unit on your planter -- don't count on the same settings to deliver exactly the same rates across all the rows.

The best way to calibrate is to find the rate on the label in terms of ounces of product per length of row.

For example, with Dyfonate 20G the recommended rate for rootworm and cutworm control is 6 ounces per 1,000 linear feet of row. Measure the distance in a field, catch the insecticide as it comes out of the applicator, weigh it, then adjust the applicator as needed.

Some manufacturers offer graduated calibration tubes that make the process easier. They can be simply taped or wired to the planter unit. Calibration tubes for Dyfonate are available from ICI dealers, according to Lowder.

Safety First

While [illegible]ng, applying insecticides, [illegible] working on equipment th[illegible] insecticide re[illegible]lue, always follow safety precautions that are on the product label.

For most farm chemicals, this means wearing rubber gloves, goggles and protective clothing. You should wash thoroughly after handling and before eating or smoking, and shower or bathe after work.

Dyfonate 20-G is a restricted-use pesticide.

Balmer Wins State Honor In NCGA Yield Contest

MYERSTOWN, PA — Vernon Balmer was recently honored at the 1988 National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) Convention in St. Louis, MO. Balmer won first place in Pennsylvania with his entry in the No-Till Non-Irrigated Division of the 1987 NCGA yield contest. He earned this honor with DEKALB-PFIZER GENETICS Hybrid DK672, which yielded 190.58 bushels per acre.

Balmer planted his winning corn crop on May 1, 1987 in 30 inch rows. The crop was harvested on September 11, 1987 with a final plant population of 26,700 and moisture content of 28 percent.

Balmer also won first place in the Pennsylvania Corn Growers Association with his entry in the three acre shelled class.

Besides corn, Balmer produces wheat, hay, tobacco and has 25 bred dairy heifers. He has been farming for 23 years.

Vernon Balmer

"Mr. Balmer is to be congratulated for his successful management practices and winning yield," says Harry Buck, DEKALB's National Sales Manager. "We support the NCGA as an excellent proving ground for corn hybrids and a source of valuable information for farmers."

The NCGA yield contest provides the opportunity for farmers across the United States to have their production and management skills evaluated and measured against each other. According to the NCGA, all contest [illegible]es ar[illegible] judged by two impartial third party judges who verify each field and its actual harvest.

Now in its 31st year, the NCGA is a 20-state commodity organization involved in improving the profitability of corn production through research, market development and government relations programs.
